Cabinet Meeting Cancelled

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Premier Ian Smith tonight cancelled an emergency cabinet meeting he had dramatically called by radio from the mid-Mediterranean to report on his seaborne summit with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

The meeting — which brought Rhodesian ministers flying into Salisbury from hundreds of miles away — was cancelled without explanation, a spokesman said.

Cancellation of the cabinet session immediately sent a wave of rumors through the city that Smith had reached a settlement with Wilson on the future of breakaway Rhodesia.

RADIO TELEPHONE

Smith had sent his summons 4,000 miles from the British cruiser HMS Tiger — apparently using the warship's radio telephone — before or during his five-hour morning session on the warship with Wilson.

The cancellation was announced here about 7:30 p.m., implying Smith had changed his mind during an afternoon session with the British leader.

Political circles felt the reversal possibly indicated that Smith and Wilson had been able successfully to iron out some major point on which Smith had earlier felt it necessary to consult the cabinet.

The latest move also strengthened belief here and in Gibraltar that the crucial meeting on the cruiser might continue into Sunday.

Official details of the talks on the Rhodesian independence crisis, were limited to the fact that they were still going on.

A statement issued early today from Wilson's official residence in London said only that talks were held and would continue today.

Wilson and their advisers boarded the cruiser Tiger early Friday and sailed eastward into stormy seas for a series of working sessions.

The vessel slipped briefly back into the outer harbor here Friday night. A launch, probably carrying urgent mail flown from London, went out to meet it.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

Senior British ministers were reported in London Friday night to be hopeful that the meeting would produce moves by Smith to end the crisis. But they warned, as Wilson did earlier in the week, that there were still major stumbling blocks.

Wilson was reported to have assured a small group of key Labor party MPs a few hours before leaving London there was no question of Smith's returning to Salisbury to consult with his cabinet on the terms.

It was said Smith was told he must enter the summit with full power to negotiate and that no further delay would be accepted by Britain.

Many hard-line members of Smith's government and party were reported to be worried just how far the prime minister was prepared to go in pacifying Britain.

U.S. Stages 'Sneak Test' Experiment

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The United States today exploded a nuclear bomb more than a half-mile underground in a major test of a possible "sneak" method of concealing subsurface blasts to long-range detection should they ever be banned by treaty.

The blast, which cost $5,000,000 to prepare and shoot, was touched off at 7:15 a.m. EST, in a huge cavity 2,700 feet beneath the surface of the gigantic Tatum Salt Dome, some 22 miles southwest of Hattiesburg.

Reporters and observers watching from an observation point 1½ miles from the detonation point heard no sound from the blast, which packed the explosive wallop of 350 tons of TNT.

But the needle of a seismograph at the observation point swerved sharply several times at the instant of the detonation.

Reporters also saw a fan-shaped glow resembling a neon light above the distant point. Project officials said that came from an instrument at the site which was supposed to flash a light when the explosion occurred.

FELT NOTHING

Although the seismograph quivered sharply, no shaking of the earth was felt by observers.

The experiment could have international impact in the event that the nuclear powers extend the present limited test ban treaty to include underground tests.

Project scientists had indicated a successful demonstration of the "sneak" technique — technically known as "decoupling" or muffling—might do this:

1. Help toward ultimately developing means of detecting any such sneak tests.

2. Possibly speed ratification of an underground test ban, since all countries would realize that any one of the others could conduct sneak attacks—and thus all would be in the same boat.

OPENING OF B.C. BANK EXPECTED BY MID-67

VANCOUVER (CP) — Einar Gunderson, a provisional director of the planned Bank of British Columbia, said today the bank could be operating by mid-1967.

Mr. Gunderson, an executive director of the provincially-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, made the comment after the bank bill won passage in the Commons. (See story page 2.)

Mr. Gunderson said the provisional directors will meet shortly—"We have to get busy and start organizing."

The bank hopes to raise between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 in capital, he said, by selling shares of $25 to $30 across Canada.

Six Fastest U.S. Bombers Lost In Day

SAIGON (CP) — Six U.S. supersonic jet bombers were shot down by heavy anti-aircraft fire during raids near the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi Friday, the second heaviest one-day aircraft loss of the war.

U.S. headquarters said all 11 fliers were listed as missing—presumed dead or captured. It was the highest loss of U.S. fliers of the war.

The headquarters said some of the planes crashed with Communist MiG-21, but none were hit by the enemy fighters.

North Viet Nam claimed in a broadcast by its official news agency that 11 planes were downed and a "sizable number" of U.S. pilots were captured.

Five of the planes were Phantom jets, fastest in operational use in the Viet Nam war.

The highest loss of U.S. planes occurred when seven planes were lost Aug. 7 and again on Aug. 13.

The planes were shot down as waves of aircraft blasted a vehicle depot only five miles from Hanoi and struck at the city's port of Haiphong and around Dien Bien Phu, near the Laotian border.

FOUND HEAVY FIRE

The U.S. spokesman said the attacking planes encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire everywhere during the raids.

Friday's losses brought the total of U.S. aircraft downed over North Viet Nam since August, 1964, to 433 by unofficial count.

The report of the U.S. air losses followed word from South Vietnamese government that U.S. troops would move into the vital Mekong Delta where the Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been deadlocked for months.

Prime Minister Guyen Cao Ky told reporters the U.S. forces will begin moving into the delta within three or four weeks. U.S. military officials declined to comment.

JUDY DECLARES:

Fees for MPs 'Not Illegal'

MONTREAL (CP)—"There is absolutely nothing illegal about a Member of Parliament accepting a fee for taking part in a CBC broadcast," State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Friday night.

Miss LaMarsh, the minister responsible for the publicly-owned CBC, was commenting in an interview on reports that the right of such MPs to sit in Parliament may be questioned next week.

The number of MPs who have accepted such fees is unknown, although a news report by Patrick Nicholson in the Oakville (Ont.) Journal-Record put the number at 39 or 40.

The Senate and House of Commons Act says any MP who accepts public money for a transaction—other than his $18,000-a-year salary as an MP—must vacate his seat in Parliament.

The act also provides a penalty of $200 a day for every day he is a member. The money would be paid to anyone who wins a civil lawsuit on the basis of his ineligibility.

GAVE NO REPLY

Written questions were submitted to the government in the Commons last May by Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) asking whether such payments had been made to cabinet ministers. The questions went unanswered and Dr. Brand submitted another set of questions in September. These also were not answered.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in commenting on the Oakville report there is reason to believe MPs have accepted CBC fees and some want the government to introduce retroactive legislation to regularize their status.

"Retroactive legislation of that kind can't be justified in any way," he said.

"The people of Canada are in no mood to add to the sources of income available through the government to MPs."

One possibility mentioned by the Oakville Journal - Record was that the government might have to call upwards of 40 by-elections to fill vacated seats or a general election early in February.

Youth Takes Opening For Freedom Dash

A 17-year-old prisoner escaped from a police officer Friday night, nipping out a third floor window and down a fire escape at his home.

The youth, facing several charges of theft and with a lengthy delinquency record, had been taken from the detention home to his own house to produce goods police believe have been stolen, Chief J. F. Gregory said today.

He and his mother and the officer were standing talking in a third-floor room when the youth suddenly bolted through the window and down a fire escape the officer did not know was there.

All area police forces were alerted. The youth had not been recaptured by press time.

Pearson Challenges B.C. Shelf Action

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Friday night challenged British Columbia's right to take over the continental shelf off the B.C. coast on the grounds that the changing of provincial boundaries is a federal right.

(See also page 44.)

Mr. Pearson, here to deliver an address to a Liberal dinner, noted that the matter of provincial ocean boundaries is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The decision of the Supreme Court will take precedence over any of Mr. Bennett's orders-in-council," he said in an interview.

He declined further comment.

The Supreme Court hearings on ownership of offshore mineral rights probably won't be heard until February, it was learned Friday.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said B.C.'s action was "not done with the offshore dispute in mind," but added it might have some effect on the hearings.

In Ottawa Friday night Resources Minister Pepin said he stood squarely behind a 1965 statement by Prime Minister Pearson to the effect that "we needed a legal decision on the subject and that such a decision would not preclude political arrangements being made."

PROBLEM NOT UNIQUE

The jurisdictional question was not unique to Canada, the minister said. Every federal state had had a similar problem.

"Those disputes that have been solved — in the United States and in Australia for instance — have usually been solved by compromise."

William Burke-Robertson of Ottawa, who is to plead the B.C. case in the Supreme Court of Canada, said he wasn't aware of the province's action but added it was entirely consistent with the act of ownership.

Orange Injunction Refused by Court

See Also Page 31)

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justic G. F. Gregory of the B.C. Supreme Court today refused to grant an injunction that would have forced unloading of Mandarin oranges along the B.C. waterfront.

The oranges, aboard ships left idle by a waterfront dispute between West Coast maritime employers and 190 dock foremen, are in danger of spoiling, according to reports from company officials.

The injunction was sought by three fruit wholesale companies against the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association. It would have forced the BCMEA to call out longshore gangs to unload ships carrying mandarin oranges from the Orient.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Nicholson was expected to fill a key role today in the dispute that has halted longshore activity on the Pacific coast from Vancouver to Prince Rupert.

Mr. Nicholson arrived Friday night from Ottawa with Deputy Labor Minister Bernard Wilson and arranged meetings for today with the B.C. Maritime Employers Association and with the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

He promised to remain in B.C. for several days, at least.

INSIDE MUD SHACK IS LIFE OF TORMENT

In one of the slum areas of the teeming city of Mokpo, Korea, there is a tiny shack, built of mud, cardboard and bits of canvas.

In it lives one of the large Korean families almost destitute but not despairing, who make up a large part of the population of crowded Mokpo.

A count of their material possessions would take very little time, but they make up for this in courage, which keeps them going in the face of everything.

The father has tuberculosis, as have approximately a million other Koreans.

All day he lies on a pile of rags in a corner of the hovel, staring at the streaked and crumbling walls and the collapsing roof.

In another corner of the shack one of his sons works away at the occupation that must earn the family's keep — food, shelter and warmth for the cold Korean winter.

He is a quilt-maker, making thick, warm coverings that his own family could use so well, but that he must sell to wealthier Koreans to earn the family income.

Although some of the quilt work must be done by hand, the work is speeded up immensely by use of a sewing machine, which was provided by the Unitarian Service Committee.

Money for this aid, which allows the family to keep going and eke out a miserable living, comes from Canadian funds such as the Times Share with Asian Children Fund.

Victorians through their generosity in supporting the fund, can give a new lease on life to families like this one, whose only hope comes from outside.

Contributions to the Share with Asian Children Fund may be sent care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas St.

INSIDE CITY HALL

It's That Type Of Campaign Among Friends

By JIM HUME

It isn't often that the voters in a community are witnesses to the gentlemanly type election campaign now being conducted in Victoria.

Two of the candidates, Ald. Hugh Stephen and Ald. Clyde Savage, have been companions on council and remain the best of old friends.

Hume

If either one is elected mayor his sincerest regret will be that his good friend had to go down in defeat.

The third candidate, Frank Hunter, is a deeply religious man who would never condescend to enter the normal rough and tumble fight usually touched off when mayor's chairs are at stake.

So, with no surprising controversial issues facing the electorate or candidates the calm campaign jogs on towards next Saturday and polling day.

The only real surprise to date came in Mr. Hunter's long, two-column advertisement the other day when the mayoralty candidate noted that he had no party ties and would make a non-party mayor.

That one must have slipped by whoever is editing Mr. Hunter's campaign copy. Few have forgotten that little more than a year ago he was the defeated Social Credit candidate in a federal election.

For the record both Ald. Stephen and Ald. Savage are Liberal in their thinking, but neither of them hold party cards.

So how should people vote next Saturday?

Far be it from this column to suggest where the "X" should be put on the ballot. But there are a few obvious facts to consider.

A mayor is not, cannot be, a dictator. He does not and cannot achieve anything unless he has the confidence and support of his council.

So, when the cross is made against one of the three contenders' names, bear that in mind. Vote for the man you think best as a leader of men.

For good example of what can happen when you have a good, strong mayor who is unable to get his council behind him, Victorians have only to cast their eyes across the water to Vancouver where Mayor William Rathie has had more than his share of troubles during the past two years.

The incessant wrangling which appears to be an everyday mainland occurrence could become part of the Victoria scene if the voters send the wrong man into the mayor's office.

In addition to requiring the full support and confidence of his council a mayor must be able to win similar confidence and support from the often-unsung workers in city hall, the permanent staff.

Victoria could have the best mayor in the world, but if he is unable to win that essential loyalty from the staff charged with implementing council decisions, he could harm the city immeasurably.

It's worth a thought before a vote is cast.

And thirdly, the man elected mayor of Victoria must not only be a sound leader within the city but also a sound leader in the general Greater Victoria area.

He must be able to obtain respect from other councils and offer the historic leadership of the capital city on the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

As the campaign unfolds next week all three candidates will be talking about existing problems.

Some have already started with drum-rolls on the traffic problem the sewerage problem, the hospital problem and the school financing problem.

The electorate, we are quite sure, is well aware of the problems. What it will be looking for next Saturday, what it should be looking for, anyway, is the man they think can lead the council and other councils towards a solution.

Not an easy task, but then, if the three candidates are weighed carefully as to experience and known ability, not a difficult one either.

Sailors, Salesman Plead Guilty

Two sailors and a salesman pleaded guilty today in central court to an assortment of hit-and-run and impaired driving charges.

Naval rating Leo Edward Orr was fined a total of $400 on hit-and-run and impaired-driving charges arising out of an accident on Esquimalt Road Friday night.

About 7:30 p.m. the 28-year-old CFB Naden sailor crumpled the fender of one parked car, then spun off and backed into another. He then fled the scene and was nabbed at a roadblock at Esquimalt and Tyee.

A total of $150 damage was inflicted on the three cars.

Orr was fined $250 on the impaired charge and $150 for the hit-and-run offence. His licence was suspended for six months.

Just after midnight Friday another Naden sailor, 22-year-old Douglas Charles Cavill of HMCS Naden, was stopped on Bay Street by police following an accident on Craigflower in which $125 damage was caused.

EYES OFF ROAD

Cavill told police he took his eyes off the road for a moment and when he looked back a car was bearing down on him.

He pleaded guilty to careless driving and hit-and-run and was fined $75 and $150 respectively on the two charges.

His licence was also suspended for six months.

The magistrate rejected a 22-year-old "cleaner" salesman's request he be permitted to retain his licence for business purposes after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Harry Burns, of 345 Gorge Road West, admitted weaving at 50 miles an hour around a bend on Gorge Road near Harriet.

When he finally responded to the flashing light of the pursuing police car he pulled over into the ditch, came back on to the road again, then ended up in the ditch, police claimed.

In turning down his request the magistrate noted Burns "aparently not only does his selling at night, he also does his drinking then."

He was fined $250 and his licence was suspended unconditionally for six months.

B.C. Bank Approved By House

OTTAWA (CP) — A private member's bill incorporating the Bank of British Columbia won passage in the Commons Friday after a stormy ride through Parliament that began in 1964.

Amendments made by a Commons standing committee in October now must be passed by the Senate before the bill is given royal assent.

The standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs earlier amended the bill to prevent provincial government officials from becoming executive officers. They may become directors, however.

Another amendment deleted a requirement that a majority of directors come from British Columbia. But the headquarters of the bank will be B.C.

Only Social Credit and New Democratic Party members spoke as the bill underwent clause-by-clause study in the Commons.

SAYS CUTS POWER

Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) and Arnold Peters (NDP — Temiskaming) both said the amendments watered down the intent of the bill.

"This is just another bank," Mr. Peters said, adding that the recently chartered Bank of Western Canada "already is in serious trouble" because of efforts by a company "that is in shaky financial condition" to take it over.

British Columbia had wanted its own bank so that it wouldn't have to go to the United States to borrow money as it did to finance the Peace River hydro-electric development, he said.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said the bill had general support in B.C. because of a popular feeling that it would break the hold of Eastern Canada on banking headquarters and because of "a certain pride" in the fact that the province would have its own bank.

Bert Leboe (SC — Cariboo) and A. B. Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley) supported the amended bill.

Authorized capital stock of the Vancouver-based bank will be $100,000,000. It it wishes, it can use a French version of its name-Banque de la Colombie-Britannique.

Petitioners named in the bill include Einar Gunderson, a Social Credit fund-raiser and former finance minister in B.C.'s Social Credit government.

sources under the sea bed off the B.C. coast. But all provinces except Quebec and Saskatchewan will present arguments during the reference.

The court is to answer three questions from the hearings.

The first is in relation to Canada's territorial waters but not with respect to the ocean shelf beyond the three-mile territorial limit.

The other two questions apply to underwater natural resources beyond the territorial limit where drilling is feasible.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said his province also claims rights "far beyond the 12-mile limit" but he said his province has not formally stated claim to the whole continental shelf the way B.C. has.

Lawyer Killed

SPRING CITY, Tenn. (UPI)—A private plane piloted by Joseph I. Bulger crashed into a snow-covered Tennessee hillside Friday night, carrying the famed crime syndicate lawyer to his death.

. . . INJUNCTION

If he must return to Ottawa later next week, he said, Mr. Wilson would remain here "as long as necessary."

The waterfront dispute began Nov. 17 when about 200 longshore foremen walked off the docks to back up demands for bargaining recognition by the employers. They set up picket lines the following day, which the 4,000 B.C. longshoremen refused to cross.

The lines were removed Nov. 21 on a court injunction, but the foremen stayed out. Longshoremen returned to work and were accused by employers of staging a deliberate slowdown.

After a week of day-to-day hiring and firing of longshore gangs, the employers said Monday they would call no more longshoremen to work until the union gave an assurance in advance of a day's work for a day's pay.

The union has refused to do this, claiming that any slowdown was because of the lack of efficient supervisory personnel—namely the striking foremen. It said employer complaints should be processed through normal grievance channels as outlined in the contract.

More than 75 ships now are idle along the B.C. coast, including 22 in Vancouver waiting to take on grain cargoes and three waiting to unload mandarin oranges. Some freighters have sailed from Vancouver with Christmas cargo still in their holds, others have sailed without taking on expected cargo and two shiploads of oranges have been unloaded in Seattle for trucking to Vancouver.

At least 2,000 loaded boxcars of grain are waiting to be unloaded. The CPR and the CNR have placed embargoes on further grain shipments from the Prairies to the West Coast.

Max Hurren, president of the unrecognized foremen's local of the longshoremen, said Friday that only an undertaking by employers to meet a committee of foremen would end the strike.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The retreat of the cold air in the interior has come to a halt around Williams Lake. Temperatures in the colder air to the north will remain below freezing during the day but rise to near 40 in southern areas.

A large complex storm off the coast will continue to send surges of moist air over the province from the southwest over the weekend. This will result in mainly cloudy unsettled conditions on the coast and give a few showers or snowflurries in the interior.

IF YOU THINK ABOUT THE FUTURE

you'll realize that for years Victoria has been accumulating problems. Our harbour has been allowed to decline in importance while others are built up with Federal money. The Gorge waterway cries out for development, yet nothing much has been accomplished. We need a mayor with experience and knowledge, who can get action with economy. Think about this election, then

Tory Policy Making Role To Be Grabbed by Caucus

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative party's federal MPs took on a policy-making role Friday with disclosure of plans to chart directions at a pre-Christmas meeting.

Announcing the move, Alvin Hamilton, MP for Qu'Appelle, said it was made necessary by the failure of the Nov. 13-16 annual meeting of the party association to do the policy job.

As a result, the federal caucus, made up of MPs and senators, will meet Dec. 10 and 11 at the party's national headquarters in Ottawa to discuss "75 per cent of the policy spectrum."

Specifically excluded from the closed-door discussions will be defence, external affairs and federal-provincial relations. But the MPs will tackle agriculture, labor, immigration, urban affairs, finance, trade and health matters.

The November convention gave short shrift to policy matters, wrangling instead over the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

The Conservative Association president, Dalton Camp, won the day when delegates favored a leadership convention next year, placing Mr. Diefenbaker's "10-year" hold on the job in jeopardy.

POLICY SAID LACKING

Mr. Hamilton said the party was left in a policy vacuum by the November convention.

"Ordinarily, the association meets to give direction on policy," he said. "This time we didn't get much of a chance to discuss it."

He said Mr. Camp, the top man in the Conservative association, had not been notified of the caucus plans to assume a policy role. But Mr. Diefenbaker was acquainted with them.

HAMILTON
. . . picks up pieces

Mr. Hamilton said he recognized that the association, made up of various party elements including the caucus, had the final say on policy.

The caucus - drafted policy would hold a "high level of authenticity, however, until it is approved by the association."

Mr. Hamilton gave no indication when association approval might be forthcoming. He doubted that a leadership convention was the place to discuss policy.

The caucus-produced platform will be presented by Mr. Hamilton and other MPs to Conservative urban committees that Mr. Hamilton is trying to establish in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver.

PUSH IDEA

The Toronto committee is operational, but has not met since June. Vancouver and Montreal committees are less advanced. Mr. Hamilton has pushed for the development of these urban committees to maintain caucus contact with urban centres where the party is all but shut out in parliamentary seats.

Mr. Hamilton said there is also talk of carrying the caucus policy draft to regional policy conferences, but money is a problem.

The party lost the opportunity to reach the people on policy at the November meeting. "We have to do it the hard way now," Mr. Hamilton said.

Mr. Hamilton maintained that discussion of policy through the urban committees and at regional conferences could unite the party, divided over Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership.

"The thing is to get something definite around which the party can rally," said Mr. Hamilton, a respected idea man in party circles.

Mr. Hamilton talked of the possibility of a western regional conference, possibly at Banff, to discuss the caucus ideas. However, he made clear this is indefinite.

MADE DECISION

The decision to proceed with the policy move came at Wednesday's caucus meeting, the same session at which the pro-Diefenbaker elements eliminated six dissident caucus representatives on the national executive of the association. Mr. Hamilton said there was "widespread aproval" in caucus for the policy move.

The list of MPs who will chair panels at the pre-Christmas meeting included at least two who did not sign the pro-Diefenbaker declaration.

Mr. Hamilton indicated he was concerned about newspaper accounts of the convention that had led people to believe "the party has blown apart."

In an apparent reference to Mr. Diefenbaker, he said many people think "the champion of the little people" has been knocked out of the ring.

"We want to hold these people."

Canada Uncertain Of FBI

OTTAWA (CP) —A Vancouver investigation has brought only inconclusive results about whether FBI agents are going after Americans who have come to Canada to avoid the draft, Solicitor - General Pennell told the Commons Friday.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked whether Mr. Pennell was able to furnish information from the RCMP about whether U.S. police are coming into Canada without RCMP assistance in their searches.

Mr. Pennell said RCMP have questioned the people who made the reports, but haven't been able to get conclusive answers.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that the government go straight to Washington and ask if the FBI had agents "snooping about" in Canada.

"Certainly this is something that shouldn't take place."

NO FIGHTING

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) wanted to know whether any Americans who have refused to fight in Viet Nam have sought political asylum here.

External Affairs Minister Martin said he didn't know of any.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there are groups in Ontario and B.C. that are welcoming deserters. He asked whether anyone "not willing to assume the responsibility of their own citizenship" should be welcomed here.

"Let them stay," interjected an NDP member.

With Increased Authority?

THE SIGNIFICANT FACT about U Thant's agreement to serve another five-year term as secretary-general of the United Nations is not that he has received a very gratifying global tribute to his desirability as the UN's top official but that he has enhanced the powers of his office and enforced recognition of his intention to insist on international support for peace.

The several months during which Thant indicated that he did not wish to stand for re-election have been climaxed by a week of high-pressure private negotiations in which Thant evidently pressed his terms of acceptance and the major powers presumably acquiesced.

Thant has spoken very plainly of his disappointment that the United States has not moved more positively in the direction of peace negotiations in Viet Nam, and of his critical view of such powers as France and Russia which have withheld finances for the UN's peace-keeping operations in the Congo and elsewhere.

While Thant apparently has settled for far less than agreement by the major powers to act on his requests, he has obtained the formal agreement of the Security Council regarding his right to insist on UN responsibilities in respect of "basic issues" and "disturbing developments in many parts of the world." The change implied in the diplomatic jargon is that U Thant is conceded a greater importance in United Nations activities and wider scope in trying to put into effect the peace-making policies which he sees as essential.

Thant has complained that the major powers, in pursuing their own international policies, had downgraded the office of secretary-general to that of a glorified clerk. His reappointment is interpreted as a strengthening of his authority, and the effectiveness of the secretary-general's office should now depend on the personal qualities of leadership and initiative which Thant can bring to bear on his problems.

Certainly we may expect to see renewed efforts to further the cause of peace in Viet Nam, and to recruit wider Assembly support for policing operations past and future. Thant asks why, if a cease-fire can be arranged for a holiday period in the battle zones, this halt cannot be prolonged so as to provide a more favorable climate for truce talks. He asks why, if the great powers are sincere in their desire for peace, some of them are unwilling to pay their financial assessments to the point where they imperil the whole structure and effectiveness of the United Nations.

These questions apparently will be asked with augmented sharpness in the days to come. The pressure of public opinion, and of the possibility of resignation by U Thant if he is thwarted in his efforts to do his job, will weigh more heavily on the major powers and in fact on all the members of the United Nations. U Thant resumes with a strengthened hand, it is hoped, and a strengthened mandate to work for peace.

Back to a Basic Issue

THURSDAY'S MEETING OF civic, municipal and district representatives cast no new light on the problem of bringing the community's health administration under regional control. It did, however, emphasize inequalities that must be removed in financing the service, and showed the course which must be followed if regionalism in all fields here is to succeed.

Reeve Alan Cox was concerned specifically with the public health board when he said: "The whole system as it now stands is wrong," and then noted the service was costing Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt $2 per capita while other areas, even within this jurisdiction, paid only 30 to 40 cents.

"We all agree," he added, "that public health must eventually come under the regional district, but until these inequities are rectified there is no sense in our discussing the mechanics of a take-over."

The differences in municipal payments for the health board result from the unequal grants made by the province toward total costs. And while this factor is not common to the cost-sharing problem of all the proposed regional services, there are other financial aspects which render inter-municipal agreement difficult. Council representatives, and the taxpayers who elect them, want to know who pays for what.

There is much greater agreement on the general principle of regional control of a number of services and functions common to all the municipalities. The system has many obvious advantages and will be implemented with great benefit in numerous fields.

But to overcome the problems of distributing costs fairly, comprehensive studies of the financial backgrounds must be made, and these should involve full co-operation between the provincial government and the municipalities. The pose of detachment which the province so often assumes is an evasion of the responsibility to provide leadership. The capital region is an entity. What it needs now is further implementation.

Uneasy Heads

WHILE CANADIANS HAVE watched with considerable interest the political travails in Germany, on the other side of the world another thriving country is also having its troubles.

Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party re-elected Prime Minister Eisaku Sato as party president this week at a special meeting but Mr. Sato received an almost unprecedented rebuke in that the vote was only 289 to 161. In Japanese politics, where compromise and consensus are the general rule, this is interpreted as strong criticism.

Nor is the Liberal Democratic Party itself much in favor with the Japanese people. Tokyo's leading newspaper, Asahi Shimbun, took a poll a few days ago which showed that only 25 per cent of the people support the government while 38 per cent actively oppose it. The poll also showed that 44 per cent of the people want the government to resign and 46 per cent believe a general election should be held immediately.

Mr. Sato's problem stems from an almost daily revelation of scandal and corruption, several cases involving cabinet ministers, which has gone on for nearly two months. The prime minister has not been helped by the fact that after denying the charges, he has been forced to admit that further investigation proved many of them were true. This has given rise to what critics, both within and without the Liberal Democratic Party, have labelled the "black mist" and it has severely weakened Mr. Sato's grip on the party and the parliament.

Observers in Tokyo believe the only thing which keeps Mr. Sato in power is that the opposition in his party is still divided on a possible successor. The prime minister has been given a reprieve in order that he may clean out the corruption and scandal, but if he does not succeed it is considered likely that Japan will have a full-fledged political crisis on its hands.

Loaded Word

I was surprised and disgusted to read in your paper (Tuesday, Nov. 29) Mr. Bonner's comment regarding the Cariboo byelection campaign—"The NDP mafia practically swinging out of the trees in the last week." Mr. Bonner knows that the word "'mafia" is strongly loaded and that in using it in this connection he is guilty of slander. This, to say the least, is out of keeping with his position as the Attorney-General of this province and does not add any dignity to that office.

Aside from the "mafia" connotation it would be well for the pot to refrain from calling the kettle black. Premier Bennett was reported to have said during the campaign that practically every B.C. cabinet minister had spoken or would be speaking on Mr. Bonner's behalf in the Cariboo byelection.—J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Ave.

Surviving Very Well While Worrying About Survival

ENGLISH-speaking Canadians may have read with interest, but no little bewilderment, reports of the weekend deliberations of the privately organized Estates General of French Canada. The principal message of the congress was, apparently, that French Canadian society (or the "nation", to use the currently fashionable word) is in a state of grave peril from which it can be rescued only by very drastic action.

Western

While the delegates differed radically in their views about what should be done, a large number seemed to place the blame for their condition on the existing constitution. In the British North America Act, according to the report of one committee, "we have no guarantee of survival."

To the non-French it is bound to seem that the Estates General is examining Quebec's future through the wrong end of a telescope. What is the justification for these pessimistic conclusions?

According to the non-political census returns, the percentage of French-speaking people in Canada has remained virtually constant since Confederation. Despite the vast inpouring of immigrants. It is the population of British descent which has declined. Why then these nightmares about survival which seem to occur in the most extreme form in the heart of the French fortress of Quebec?

But statistics do not tell the full story. It appears at least to people in the other provinces, that there was never a time when French speaking citizens exercised such effective power, both in Quebec City and in Ottawa. There are nine Quebec ministers in the Pearson cabinet and three French Canadian ministers from outside Quebec. (It is sometimes said that Quebec fails to send her foremost people to Ottawa but, if so, the remedy is in her own hands.) In addition, the speaker of the House of Commons is a French Canadian. Nor is this all; the premier of New Brunswick, which has a large and expanding French population, is Mr. Robichaud, an Acadian.

The argument is often couched in economic terms and, no doubt, it is true that much Quebec business and industry is controlled by English capital. But the complaint about "exploitation" differs in no important respect from the old grievances of the Prairies against domination by English Canada. To the extent that the objections have to do with the practices of English firms within Quebec, there are provincial powers of control under the famous heading of "property and civil rights." In any case, the complaints are often contradictory; at one moment it has to do with domination by outside firms; at another it concerns the under-developed Quebec economy.

What has impressed a great many people in other provinces has been the enormous vitality of French society in recent years. When the English Canadian thinks of Quebec nowadays, he is less likely to conjure up an image of sleepy rural towns than of Mayor Drapeau's Montreal and Expo.

Nor does he see a Quebec bound and fettered by a pitiless constitution; he is much more likely to see a Quebec so successful at federal provincial conference that it has more of less imposed a pattern of development (within the present constitution) on the other nine provinces.

In any event why the obsession with constitutions? While constitutional guarantees of language, religion and culture long antedate the British North America Act and have no doubt contributed to the survival of a French speaking society, no form of words can guarantee it. The Weimar constitution was one of the most elaborate constitutional documents ever worked out by Europeans but it did not save German democracy.

The common question, what does Quebec want? needs to be supplemented by another, why does Quebec want it? If the province is now being confined and held back, how and at what points? For a new constitution certainly would not confer automatically and simultaneously greater freedom and well-being; that would depend on its effects upon Quebec in Canada (or out of it). There are many ways by which Quebec could be accorded greater freedom of power to control labor mobility, but if the effect was to damage the general economy, Quebec would suffer with the rest of the provinces and it might be found that the gain was not worth the price.

On the part of delegates from outside Quebec, there seems to have been a much sounder appreciation of the advantages of life within a vast confederation and fierce opposition to proposals for Quebec separatism. This so-called "option" would certainly make the defence of French minority rights elsewhere in Canada appear a somewhat hopeless cause.

Insidious Effects

It is not clear either how it would save Quebec from the insidious effects of North American mass culture; if it meant a severe reduction of living standards it might simply produce a dispersion of Quebecers to the English provinces exceeding the former migration to the New England states.

The very title, Estates General, suggests a romantic adventure and it is probably to be expected that such a body will generate some rather extravagant ideas. But Quebecers, like the rest of us, have to contend with the 20th century and with highly practical problems more likely to yield to common sense than the word formulas, however intoxicating to those of nationalist sentiments.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A hike along the Dogwood Trail at Goldstream Park now that the leaves are off the deciduous trees reveals a changed picture. You will see the flower buds of the dogwood already formed. They look like dark green buttons on the end of the twigs.

The catkins of the hazel hang like little tassels against the reddish brown of the limbs. Perhaps you may find the odd nut still hanging on a branch. Soon the tiny scarlet female flower will form in the angle of a twig.

Both the male catkin and the female cone of the red alders are now easily seen on the mature trees, while on the new growths the old leaves are still held. Look close by and you will see the leaf buds already formed.

This is the time of the year when the lichens are developing and growing. Some of them are beautiful. On some of them you find the fruiting bodies. Some will be like little spikes, others like miniature cups, while some have a "fringe."

There are many kinds of lichens and all have a different shade of color, which perhaps makes these plants one of the most enchanting of the winter flora of the forest.

Along the trail the mosses too have taken on a brighter hue, showing their many colors and new growth.

The little streams and falls are now running and make a pleasing sight as the water tumbles down the canyon, creating music as it cascades over the rocks, running down the hill to join, with other little brooks, to swell the waters of the Goldstream River. The increased volume will help the salmon on their way up to the spawning beds.

Moving along, you will see the little marsh at the entrance to the Arbutus Ridge Trail now beginning to fill up. It, too, will fulfil its task to fill up. It special habitat for plants and animals.

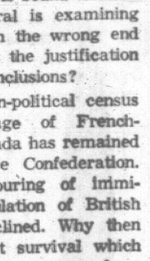
The Moscow-Peking Cold War Could Become Active

THE cold war between Russia and Red China continues to be one of the most fascinating and significant features of the international landscape. This past week, on successive days, organs of the Soviet and Chinese parties virtually called for the overthrow of the other's top government leaders. Pravda, in Moscow, said Mao Tse-tung's "anti-Soviet policy" must be "overcome" and clearly implied that the man would have to go with it.



Frye

Jenmin Jih Pao, in Peking, called Russia's leaders "a group of renegades" and said "imperialism, modern revisionism and reaction" will "all be overthrown, defeated and eliminated by the revolutionary people." ("Modern revisionism" is China's description of Soviet policy.)

Close to War

These two thunderbolts came close to a formal declaration of a kind of war — a "war of national liberation," as it were, somewhere between active subversion and guerrilla conflict. The stated objective in each case was a forced change in the adversary's leadership and/or fundamental policy, which is usually the objective in a "liberation" war.

Meanwhile Soviet Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev was active trying to line up allies. At a party congress in Budapest, Hungary, this past week, he sought to wheedle, pressure and exhort the world's 88 Communist parties into holding a mammoth conference to discuss China's heresies.

Brezhnev denied the purpose was to read Red China out of the world Communist movement. On the contrary, he said, the idea was to have a "comradely discussion" to "elaborate a common line" on how to bring China back "under the banner of Marxism-Leninism" — that is, into the Soviet fold.

This would entail ousting Mao.

Every sign is that a struggle for power is already under way within China. Mao and his heir apparent, Lin Piao, are on one side; on the other is a group which, according to Mao's propagandists, would prefer to heal the breach with Moscow.

What Brezhnev was asking the world's Communist parties to do, therefore, was to intervene in this struggle on behalf of Mao's adversaries.

They could intervene with words, which the Communists use skilfully as weapons; with money; and presumably with intelligence operatives and all the paraphernalia of subversion employed in more traditional "wars of national liberation."

The outside world does not know whether Moscow already has begun such an operation — and whether China has sought to strike back. But there are a number of signs pointing in this direction.

There are recurrent reports of serious border tension between the two countries. They include accounts of Soviet troop movements to the frontier, crossings by refugees, and of the deployment of special Soviet intelligence equipment there.

This is the kind of thing that could accompany an effort to penetrate hostile territory with underground operatives — especially if there were actual, or feared, counteraction by the adversary.

The Chinese are said to have concentrated as many as 2,000,000 men in the area of the Soviet frontier in the past six months. Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi is authority for the statement that there were more than 5,000 Sino-Soviet border incidents in the period 1960-1965.

Sme analysts even see a possibility of "confrontation" — that is, outright war — between Russia and Red China.

It seems difficult to believe that relations between the two could deteriorate that far; yet Red China is fast developing a modest nuclear-weapons capability, which clearly has given Russia concern, and "hate-Russia" propaganda within China has reached an extraordinarily shrill pitch.

Border Tensions

The United States indirectly took cognizance of Sino-Soviet border tensions this past week in the UN, implying that the deployment of American forces in Asia is a contribution to Soviet security.

It is also a strong probability that Chinese preoccupation with the Soviet frontier has reduced the peril of a major Chinese intervention in Viet Nam. Thus the United States and the Soviet Union each benefit from the other's hostility to China. They share an inerest in containing her.

This is one of the major considerations governing East-West relations and every increase in Sino-Soviet hostility makes it more relevant.

To Meet the Building Crisis

Montreal La Presse

As far back as last March, housing contractors across the country realized they were in for a lamentable season. The number of housing starts was despairingly low; lenders displayed no interest, and it was useless to look for mortgage funds because they couldn't be found. The interested parties brought the problem to the attention of the federal government . . . but . . . the politicians were immersed in the Munsinger affair . . . in the last few days, in its third annual report, the Economic Council of Canada stressed in capital letters that the stagnation in the housing industry had reached the proportions of a crisis.

A surprise solution, so astonishing that there was hardly any reaction to it, was announced . . .

The rate of interest on mortgage loans by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation was fixed at 7.25 per cent. It might as well be said immediately that in many private deals the rate will be eight per cent . . . This is enough to discourage young couples who dream of having their own little home with green shutters. . . .

Would it not have been simpler to abolish the irritating 11-per-cent sales tax on construction materials? Ever since it came into existence, this tax has been denounced by all industrial bodies and also some chambers of commerce, and on several occasions has been the object of rather violent outbursts in the House of Commons. The recession in the building industry, more serious than they care to admit, finds its origin in this tax.

Canadian Stand on China Sign of a New Maturity

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — The implications of Canada's moves for the admission of Communist China to the United Nations are several and important, and Foreign Minister Paul Martin's last-minute tactical decision to postpone a showdown hardly minimizes them.

Waring

First is that Canada has ceased, after several years of increasing unease, to support the rigid opposition of the United States to admission of the Pekin regime. This fact may be strongly resented in the U.S. to Canada's disadvantage, but on the other hand it should win Canada added respect and regard in the great majority of countries that do not share the inimical American attitude towards Red China.

Canada and the U.S. are the friendliest of neighbors and the fastest of allies, with a high degree of economic, military and cultural interdependence. It is obvious to all the world how difficult it is for the smaller and weaker of the two to embark on a course that conflicts with a long established policy that the larger nation considers to be one of its vital interests.

The fact that the Ottawa government found the courage to make this hard decision is evidence of Canada's maturity as well as independence.

A second implication is that Canada is now committed, in logic and honor, to pursue not only the admission of China to the UN, but also the establishment of normal diplomatic relations between Canada and Peking, assuming that unforeseen events do not alter the delicate balance in favor of this action. For example, hostilities between the U.S. and China would destroy this balance.

For several years now Canada has engaged in trade and cultural exchanges with mainland China, but neither government has pressed the question of diplomatic recognition. Yet the situation had become increasingly anomalous, after China became the second largest customer for Canadian wheat, and began admitting Canadian journalists and tourists.

It would have been more logical for Ottawa and Peking to have exchanged diplomatic missions prior to Mr. Martin's attempt to further Peking's admission to the UN, except for two things. One is the difficulty over Taiwan. Canada does not admit Pekin's sovereignty over the Chinese Nationalist base, and it is doubtful if Peking would send a mission to Ottawa unless Canada simultaneously broke relations with the regime on Taiwan. The second is that it would be easier on Canadian-American relations if Canada were to recognize a China that was a UN member, than a China that was a pariah in the community of nations.

These are delicate factors in the situation, and Prime Minister Pearson was understandably loath to say much in the Commons last week about diplomatic recognition on a bilateral basis. If the "log jam" in the UN continues immoveable, and hopelessly so, then the government "could consider" bilateral recognition. But, he warned in what likely was an allusion to the stalemate over Taiwan, Peking might not recognize Ottawa.

Among the lesser implications is a favorable one for Mr. Martin — for his prestige as a foreign minister, and as a politician of Liberal leadership calibre.

'Hey Friend, Say Friend,' Let's Not Get Too Gallic

By ART STOTT

The other evening we watched and listened to the Expo program on CBC that introduced the Expo song. I thought the program was pretty good. I think the Expo song may grow on a listener. I didn't like the "My Fair Lady" music the first time I heard it and now it's among my favorites.

Stott

Part of the charm of the whole program was the lack of intrusive commercials. Those that were used described some part of the arrangements for the fair which had general interest. Nobody was pushing deodorants at the viewer, or destroying new cars by driving them through surf or over impossible terrain.

Also, I happen to like French popular singing. It slides along like oysters off the half-shell and has a cadence modulation that may come from the diphthong sounds of some French word endings and the elisions of the language.

Some of the introductions had the customary syrup of video-fulsomeness that Ed Sullivan can make so cloying. The performers were adequate, but not all that good, if you compare them with the Moulin Rouge this year, or contrast the dance routines to those of the Tiller girls who once graced the Victoria Palace. Still, the production was several cuts above the Flintstones.

The one thing that impressed me — and not with unalloyed delight — was the "Mo-ray-al" character of the show. Of course it should be Montreal in flavor. That's the Expo site and presumably a lot of the appeal for North American visitors is going to depend on the "foreign" touch lent by les Canadiens et les Canadiennes, addressing themselves to predominantly North American audiences who speak a rudimentary Anglo-Saxon in different forms.

So why couldn't I appreciate the French language emphasis? Because one or two of the people involved were just a little too condescending to members of the CBC audience in the Far West who are not bilingual. The introductory pitches were made in French. The translations into English came later, in a casual tone that hit me in a sensitive spot.

I'd like very much to be bilingual. My deficiencies in that respect are a constant source of regret to me. But I don't want any of my cousins in Quebec trying to create in me too much of an inferiority complex because spoken French passes over me like high cloud.

My sensitivity is the greater because I like the French Canadians I know and those whom I've met. One of the reasons I like them — apart from the favorable impressions instilled in my childhood by the romantic stories of the voyageurs and the happy slapstick of William Henry Drummond's verse — is that they've never tried to adopt an attitude of superiority toward me.

It can be argued that I merely imagined an attitude of condescension and that my imagination tended to run away with me on the point, making me wonder why artists, whom my taxes were helping to support, advertising a centennial fair in Montreal, which my taxes are also helping to support, seemed to show a lack of appreciation for English-speaking-only TV-viewers on the Pacific Coast.

I'm prepared to accept as a fact that Montreal is the most sophisticated and urban city in Canada, that its relatively cosmopolitan character should not limit itself to the appreciations of a small-town yokel on the edge of the Pacific. And I'm not prepared to agree with Mr. Robert Coates, who told Parliament the other day that the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was "nothing more than a boon-doggler for researchers and friends of this (Liberal) government" and a proven "multi-million-dollar flop."

At the same time, if my reaction to the nuances of the Expo CBC program seemed strange and unnatural and were not justified, it's entirely possible that they were shared by others of backgrounds similar to mine. It wakened certain dormant defence mechanisms which I'd rather let sleep. It even made me wonder if the artists were representing the same people who lament so tearfully over the condescension and patronizing air English-speaking people allegedly adopt toward them.

COALITION CARRIES SEEDS FOR OWN DISINTEGRATION

By JOHN DORNBERG

BONN — Germany's new grand coalition government between Social and Christian Democrats will carry in it the seeds for its own disintegration.

This became increasingly apparent as each partner boasted that the other had capitulated fully on substantive issues.

When Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government collapsed six weeks ago, the Social Democrates pieced together an eight-point platform, acceptance of which they made a preconditon for entering any government coalition with either the Free Democratic party or the Christian Democrats.

In addition to four domestic points, the 11-page document

KURT-GEORG KIESINGER

outlined in considerable detail the SPD's views on improving relations with the Eastern European countries, establishing close contacts with East Germany short of actual recognition, and putting in order Bonn's relationship to both Washington and Paris. Furthermore, the platform unequivocally renounced West German claims to a finger on the nuclear trigger.

The Free Democrats countered by issuing a program of their own that coincided on vital issues with that of the SPD.

The Christian Democrats have yet to issue a statement outlining their views. Nevertheless, Social Democratic spokesmen are staunchly insisting that the CDU acceded to all eight points "without any reservations."

Christian Democratic pary officials, however, maintain that they did not give in on any of the points, "except, of course, those which the SPD copied from us in the first place."

And highly-placed sources in both parties said, almost identically: "Well, you know they have to create the impression that we capitulated so as to break down the resistance against the grand coalition among the backbenchers and in the countryside."

Where the truth lies is anyone's guess, as a coalition contract spelling out the new government's programs has yet to be published. Light on the mystery may be shed when Kurt-Georg Kiesinger delivers his first government declaration in the Bundestag (Parliament).

But it would surprise no one in Bonn if the new government turns out to be a vertical arrangement, with the SPD pursuing its foreign and German reunification policy and the CDU conducting domestic policy in accordance with its views.

Trouble, however, is likely to arise in the two areas where the two parties' areas of responsibility clash, between Professor Karl Schiller's economics ministry and Franz-Josef Strauss' finance ministry, and between Willy Brandt's foreign ministry and Gerhard Schroeder's defence ministry.

While the SPD has boasted that it will embark on a completely new foreign policy, CDU leaders have indicated that their intention is to pusue the old tried and true course.

The SPD platform, for example, calls for establishment of a sub-cabinet level agency for handling all contacts and relations with East Germany, including interzonal trade. But CDU sources disclosed that such an agency, presumably under the direction of Herbert Wehner as minister for all-German affairs, would not be established.

In a similar vein, the SPD program calls for diplomatic relations with all the East European countries. But CDU sources have disclosed that the new government's policies will proscribe "diplomatic recognition at any price or if it might result in mass recognition of

. . . his foreign policy?

East Germany by third countries."

Unquestionably, the most curious aspect is that during the past weeks the SPD has loudly trumpeted that its platform will lead to new policies, new roads and new horizons in German government. But in a television interview the other day, Chancellor-nominee Kiesinger said unabashedly that the "objective of the grand coalition is to continue the heretofore successful policies of the federal government in cooperation with the SPD."

As a somewhat bitter spokesman for the Free Democratic Party said: "The coalition between SPD and CDU will mean nothing more than a perpetuation of the present government crisis on a broader parliamentary basis."

Premier Ky's Tame Communist Defector

By WARD JUST
The Washington Post

SAIGON — A tame Communist committed to ownership of private property was displayed before the press by the Vietnamese government here, and billed as one of the highest ranking Reds ever to desert the enemy camp.

He is Le Trung Chueyn, a handsome, well-groomed, neatly-dressed lieutenant colonel who until the fall of 1965 commanded a Viet Cong regiment and was later a deputy chief of staff and operations officers of the 5th Viet Cong division.

Twenty years a Communist, Chuyen and his wife (whom he met in the south, and married last April) presented themselves to government officials on Aug. 2. Trung came down from the north in July, 1965, landing by sea in Kien Hoa province, south of Saigon in the Mekong delta.

His activities on behalf of the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam are obscure. Asked at the end of the 30-minute press conference what his job was at the time he decided to give himself up, said he was "travelling."

He said his reason for leaving the Communist bosom was a yearning for freedom. "In North Viet Nam," he said, "They have destroyed the right of private ownership of property."

Observers here were struck that Chuyen's views seemed in so many ways to parallel those of the prime minister, Air Vice-Marshal Ky, and the military director. When direct answers to direct questions may have proved embarrassing, Chuyen politely eluded the questions.

His views on his one-time associates and on the conduct of the war were remarkably similar to the most conservative officials here.

On the prospects for the government's pacification program: "I fully agree with the Vietnamese war cabinet, that you have to fight the war on several fronts . . ."

On the principal motivation of the Viet Cong: "They are brainwashed by propaganda . . . and there are a few people, quite a few people, who are compelled, forced to fight . . ."

On the question whether the Viet Cong could continue fighting if support from the north was ended: "If North Viet Nam cut off its (infiltration) of men and supplies, the Viet Cong in the south would be unable to continue their fight."

There were smiles from the Vietnamese press at part of his reply to why he had defected.

"I think that we should be free," he said.

"I read the newspapers from the south because you can talk about what you want, report about what you want."

The Vietnamese newsmen were smiling because their press is heavily censored, and obviously so because each day there are large white patches on the front pages and editorial pages where offending items have literally been chiseled out. This is a matter of some sensitivity to the government.

Computer Translation Has Little Future

By J. V. REISTRUP

WASHINGTON — Computers is lousy writers.

A committee of the National Research Council came to that conclusion, among others, in a report on the future of using machines to translate technical texts from one language to another.

The committee found that computer translation appears to have very little future — tending to be slower, less accurate and more costly than human translators.

And the machine's prose reads like this example:

"However is base to trust that jointly scientists of different specialities of various countries of world-peace radiobiological investigations in outer space will be successfully continued and expanded."

When the electronic digital computer was developed, the idea struck scholars and administrators that foreign words and their English equivalents could be fed into machines, which would quickly provide translations. Early results of testing were encouraging.

In 1954, for example, an experiment showed that machine could produce sentences like: "The quality of crude oil is determined by calory content."

Large Grants

For about a decade, the Defence Department, the National Science Foundation and the Central Intelligence Agency supported research projects in machine translation — with grants totalling more than $19 million.

Some three years ago, at the suggestion of the three federal agencies, an automatic language processing advisory committee was set up by the National Research Council, the operating arm of the private and prestigious National Academy of Sciences.

The group was headed by John R. Pierce, executive director of communications research for Bell Telephone Laboratories. Members included representatives of Harvard, Carnegie Institute of Technology, the University of Chicago and the Rand Corporation, an organization that does much of the government's research work.

In its report published last week, "Language and Machines," the committee said:

—"There is no emergency in the field of translation." There are enough human translators and they come relatively cheaply.

—The product of mechanical translation requires editing, or retranslation from computer prose into readable English, that takes as long as human translation from the original.

Improvements

—Present translation practices can be improved. Some mechanical processes, such as automatic dictionary lookup, might help translators.

The committee's report said "It is wise to press forward, in the name of science, but the motive for doing so cannot sensibly be any foreseeable improvement in machine translation."

Dr. Pierce said the committee considered $2.5 to $3 million a year a reasonable amount for such research.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Once again the United Nations has voted to keep China out.

In what has become an annual ritual at the UN, the United States led the way in blocking admission of the Communist regime. This year the U.S. reversed a trend of sliding support for its position and scored a more decisive win than last year.

Canada played a more aggressive role than usual in this year's negotiations and debate but was rebuffed on all sides. Seeking a compromise solution, External Affairs Minister Martin was unable to bridge the gap between two seemingly inflexible positions.

Martin had hoped to present a resolution calling for the seating of both the Communists and the Nationalist regime of Chiang-Kai-Shek on Formosa as an interim solution until the issue of Chinese sovereignty is finally solved. He was forced to drop the plan when it became obvious it was doomed to fail.

In the final voting Canada abstained for the first time on the motion to seat the Communists in place of the Nationalists. In previous years Canada has voted with the U.S. against similar resolutions.

The vote was 57 to 46 against the motion, with 16 other countries joining Canada in abstention. It was supported by the Soviet Bloc, Britain, France, India, Indonesia and several African countries, while lined up against it were the U.S., Japan, Australia, the Latin American nations and most of the Arab countries.

A subsequent Italian motion to refer the issue of Chinese representation to a committee for a year's study was crushed by 62 votes to 34, with 25 abstentions. Canada voted in favor.

And so Peking was barred for the 17th year in succession.

Meanwhile the UN debate was followed by rumors that Canada is on the verge of extending formal recognition to the Peking regime to help facilitate growing trade between the two countries.

Secretary-General U Thant finally bowed to pressure and agreed to accept another five-year term. The UN had been faced with the difficult task of finding a successor when his present term expires Dec. 20.

Thant, a 57-year-old ascetic Burmese diplomat, earlier this year expressed frustration over the state of the world and said he wanted to retire.

The 15-member Security Council and the General Assembly were unanimous in asking him to stay on.

The long Rhodesian crisis entered another showdown phase this week as British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and breakaway leader Ian Smith held talks aimed at breaking the deadlock.

The two leaders met aboard the British warship Tiger in the Mediterranean near Gibraltar for their first head-to-head conference since Smith declared independence more than a year ago.

Wilson had warned that if no settlement was reached by Nov. 30 he would go before the UN to call for mandatory sanctions against Smith's regime.

There were signs Smith was giving some ground in a bid to avert this move which could cripple his economy.

However Wilson told the British House of Commons before leaving for the talks there was still a considerable gap to bridge.

Wilson pledged he would not compromise on Britain's insistence that guarantees be provided in a Rhodesian constitution for eventual majority rule by Rhodesia's four million Africans.

Tension continued high in the Middle East as King Hussein of Jordan battled pressure from his Arab neighbors to take stronger action against Israel.

Jordan accused Syria of sending saboteurs across the border to damage government installations and help topple Hussein's moderate regime. Hussein has indicated he would like to see more United Nations troops stationed along the troubled Israel-Jordan boundary.

Meanwhile Israel claimed to have shot down two Egyptian jet fighters in an air battle over Israel territory in the Negev Desert region.

IF YOU THINK ABOUT TAXES

you'll reflect that only the Homeowners' Grants have made Victoria's tax increases supportable by the ordinary man. The free-spending policies of past years must be restrained right now. Gilbey's find merry mixed gin drinks in old English Inns

ENGLAND'S OLDEST INNS have been around long enough to learn that Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance for mixed drinks. You can count on it to give you a fresh, clean tasting drink. Just like the Gimlet that they mix in the Cat and Fiddle at Hinton Admiral, a village on the edge of the New Forest.

Cat and Fiddle—Gimlet

The Cat and Fiddle is justly famous for its Gimlet, a refreshing drink made from Gilbey's London Dry and fresh lime juice. Close by in Wiltshire, at the Sign of the Angel, we discovered how to give a Gilbey's and orange juice a "frosty" edge. Wet a glass, then put it upside down in the freezer compartment. After half an hour it will have a sparkling "frosty" edge.

Eagle—Gilbey's Weasel

At the Eagle in London they mix a superb Gilbey's Weasel (made from Gilbey's and Bitter Lemon). They say the drink was named after a saddler's weasel (used for making holes in leather). A saddler who had premises at the rear of the Eagle enjoyed the drink so much that he would 'pop' or pledge his weasel when he was short of money.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

Sunday Sports Debate 'Premature'

Mayoralty candidate Ald. Hugh Stephen thinks debate on Sunday sport for Victoria a little premature.

"People seem to forget that you can't have paid admissions to Sunday sporting events without a referendum and that the Municipal Act contains no provisions for municipalities to hold such a referendum," he said this morning when asked for his views on the subject.

"If the Municipal Act is changed and then if a referendum is held and the majority of people want professional Sunday sport, I would, if elected mayor, endorse the wishes of the people.

"But it isn't an issue at present. It can't be an issue until the act is changed and a referendum held."

Ald. Stephen stressed that even with changes to the Act he would be against over-commercialization of Sunday.

NOT WIDE OPEN

"If the people want to pay to watch games and they so vote, I would respect their wishes," he said. "But I would not want to see a wide-open Sunday."

The other mayoralty candidates, Ald. Clyde Savage and retired city clerk Frank Hunter, took opposing but cautious views on the matter.

"I am not advocating a wide-open Sunday with all stores open or anything like that," said Ald. Savage. "But, let's face it, we have Sunday sport now so we may as well make it legal."

At present it is legal to hold sporting events on Sunday but illegal to charge admission.

Most sporting organizations circumvent the law by taking up a collection during Sunday games.

"If I am elected mayor I shall turn the problem over to the Victoria Council of Churches and let them decide what should be done," said Ald. Savage.

MAKE IT LEGAL

"I feel sure the church council would support the type of Sunday activity I am talking about. I don't think anyone is suggesting that Sunday should be the same as every other day in the week. Just that we acknowledge that Sunday activities are here to stay and that we should make them legal."

Mr. Hunter said he was "unequivocally opposed" to any suggestion of Sunday commercialism.

"Today any man can go out and play any game he likes on Sunday," Mr. Hunter said. "It is the charging of admission — the commercialism — that I oppose.

"We see moral degeneracy an every hand and it is all part of this commercialism," he added. I would like to see Sunday as God ordained it to be spent, and this does not include the charging of money for sports.

"I would do what I could to prevent this, although if it was the decision of the people that Sunday sport be commercialized I would, of course, do nothing to stand in the way."

Sunday sport became an election topic earlier this week when city council in committee discussed proposed changes to the Municipal Act.

Ald. Michael Griffin and Ald. Robert Baird clashed head-on on the subject.

Ald. Griffin said he was completely in favor of afternoon sporting events on Sunday.

Federal CS Accept Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — A pay dispute involving some 29,000 federal government employees ended Thursday with the union involved accepting a seven-per-cent interim salary increase.

Revenue Minister Benson made the announcement in the Commons in reply to a question from Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre).

The employees are members of the Group D pay category, the same category as postal workers who settled two weeks ago for a 25-cent-an-hour increase and 10-month contract. The non-postal employees are members of the newly-formed 115,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada.

Mr. Benson announced earlier this week that Judge Andre Montpetit of the Quebec Superior Court, who mediated the postal situation under a strike deadline, had been called in to mediate the salary dispute.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A leak in a troublesome unit aboard the U.S. Apollo 1 spacecraft has set back by two more weeks to late February the drive to launch America's first three-man crew this winter.

Archivist B.C.'s Man Of Year

Willard Ireland, provincial archivist and librarian has been named British Columbia's man of the year.

The award sponsored by the Newsmen's Club of B.C. was made by newspaper editors and radio and TV news editors.

Dr. Patrick MacTaggart-Cowan president of Simon Fraser University made the presentation at a Newsmen's Club dinner in Vancouver Friday night.

Mr. Ireland said his job as provincial archivist and librarian "has been easy because we have a history of which we can be proud."

Born in New Westminster Mr. Ireland acquired his taste for history as a boy. His father was a Methodist minister and the family lived in many parts of the province.

From the University of British Columbia Mr. Ireland obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree majoring in history and went on to the University of Toronto where he received his Master of Arts degree.

He taught high school in South Burnaby before being appointed provincial archivist in Victoria in 1940. Later he took leave of absence to serve with the RCAF overseas. On his return he was given the additional appointment of librarian.

Mr. Ireland is married with three children and lives at 184 St. Charles Street.

The Newsmen's Club of B.C. also set up a $500 scholarship in the name of late Vancouver newspaperman Eddie Moyer to enable an Indian boy to attend Simon Fraser University.

ROBBERY of a Toronto bank this week was foiled by Donald Snell, who knocked out the bandit. The 220-pound truck driver said he thought it was a joke at first when the stranger ordered the teller to hand over her big bills. (CP Wirephoto.)

300 Get Relief As Wild Storm In East Weakens

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A storm that howled over western New York Friday abated today, to the relief of about 300 persons who had been trapped in makeshift accommodations.

Many sought refuge Friday in public school gyms in Westfield, Fredonia and Ripley. The gyms served as overnight homes for more than 260 men, women and children.

A snow storm Friday left more than 50 inches of snow on a wide area south of Buffalo to the Pennsylvania state line, forcing the travellers to take refuge.

In central New York State, up to 48 inches of snow fell in the "snow belt" region from Watertown, south of Syracuse.

U.S. Probes 'Bugging'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. justice department is reviewing all its past and present cases to determine whether anyone's constitutional rights have been violated by illegal use of electronic "bugging" devices to gather evidence, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Non-Students a Breed Apart in U.S.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Berkeley's non-students live in a world of shabby apartments, crowded coffee houses, beards and intellectual ferment - convinced they have as much right to participate in University of California affairs as any registered student.

By day and night, they are seen in what has been called the city's "underground"—blocks of old homes, shops and bookstores. They saunter up to the big university campus and sometimes engage in protests that are limited by the administration to those enrolled.

Their attire is casual-beards, battered sport coats, sandals and slacks. None of them carry the registration card the university issues to the 27,500 young men and women enrolled at Berkeley.

To Chancellor Roger Heyns and governor-elect Ronald Reagan of California, they are outsiders who provoked a classroom strike that started Thursday.

The non-student community is divided between people who once were Berkeley students, but dropped out temporarily, and those who have no connection with the school at all.

She Laughs at Talent Scout Promises

NEW YORK (AP) — Susan Pack is a talent scout's dream.

She is 19, auburn-haired, slender and lovely.

Everyone who meets her is sure this young singer has a great future in show business.

"You could be real big in films," the talent scouts tell her. Or, "When you hit Broadway, they'll forget all about Mary Martin and Julie Andrews."

But Susan, who is so wholesome it almost hurts, simply laughs at these promises of a pie-in-the-sky show business future. Recently she turned down three other contract offers in order to join the New Christy Minstrels, a folk swinging group of two girls and seven boys that has made 16 hit record albums in the last five years.

"I'm not interested in films at all," she said. "Film work is too cold. You have to be able to turn your emotions on and off. I'm not sure I can. I enjoy working with an audience too much.

"Performing is a lot of fun. But I'm not at all certain I would want it to become a line of work. I like to think of it as a hobby.

"One of the reasons I'm in the Christies is to earn enough to go back to college."

Miss Pack, born in Hollywood, is the daughter of Mary Norse, a former singer and dancer.

Her father is employed by an auto sales firm in Eugene, Ore., where she grew up and attended the University of Oregon for two quarters.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Determination on my part to avoid being lured into seasonal topics in this corner at least until the true Yule season is upon us, have just been scuttled.

Having moaned over the tedium of long drawn-out exposure to carols, lighted trees and Santas, the moaning itself has become tedious.

Therefore, the resolve: Not to mention the high-priced season for good or ill until the time arrives to say "Merry — —" to all.

And here I am, Scuttled. And quite happy about it.

The reason is a record, an LP 33 1-3, which has arrived in the city ideally timed for—it must be said—Christmas.

For a number of people this record will have a particular appeal.

It will appeal to those for whom music is an essential part of the season but who are less than inspired by the trite stuff that is the usual available fare.

And it will appeal to those who have enjoyed many hours of fine music within the walls of Christ Church Cathedral.

This is the second time the cathedral has produced a recording. The first one, Bill Dyson Sings, came out about this time last year, sold 1,000 copies and won praise from musicians over a wide area.

In the current release we have the choirs and soloists, the organ and the bells of the cathedral in one quite delightful package.

There are 12 bands, six on either side. Setting the scene and the mood, the first band is devoted to the summoning voices of the bells, a brief welcome by Dean Brian Whitlow and an organ voluntary that includes the great state trumpet.

Then there follows a well-arranged program which pleases by its very contrasts and balance, frequently is moving and has moments which are really a thrill.

Treble Bill Dyson is featured on the cover as the soloist in Mendelssohn's Hear My Prayer and Handel's Let the Bright Seraphim.

Backed in the first instance by the adult choir and surrounded in the second by eight of the leading boys, these are altogether two impressive performances. They were taped when Bill's voice was at its mature best and plainly reveal his many musical attributes as well as some happy ensemble effects.

Bill's career as the finest of Christ Church Cathedral boy trebles is over now, so for the hundreds of Victorians who have been enchanted by his singing, this record is a salute and a farewell.

But while the record jacket headlines these two items, there are other highlights worthy of notice. Chief among them for me, is the voice of William Broadhead.

This warm, lyrical baritone, backed by a lovely organ accompaniment, is heard in an Epiphany song, The Three Kings, and it is a gem.

Then there are the haunting young voices of Laura Groos and Stephen Horning in separate solo numbers and at the end a pleasing combination of Broadhead with the smooth contralto of Eleanor Ashford, soloists in a Mendelssohn anthem.

Both the adult and boys' choirs are in fine form, particularly in the two headline numbers and in the carols, The Infant King and Ding-Dong Merrily.

Side Two of the record is introduced with a stirring performance of Reger's Organ Toccata in D-minor, played by Richard Proudman.

Organist choir master Proudman has, of course, been the chief instigator of these cathedral recording sessions and through his work with the choirs and soloists, the initiative, imagination and drive by which he has conceived and carried the project through, he has achieved something for which, not only the cathedral, but the city itself should be grateful.

The sound, technically speaking, is good and particularly in regard to the organ, an improvement on the first record.

From many points of view, quality, nature of the music, nostalgia, and appeal to the affections of Victorians, it will add something special to Christmas for a lot of us.

And speaking of records, a few people have been fortunate enough to hear in advance the voice of the Norwegian lyric tenor Rikard Fluor, who will appear in two recitals at McPherson Playhouse, Sunday afternoon and Monday evening.

What we have heard proves that advance reports have been by no means exaggerated.

The gifted singer, who commands numerous languages and sometimes accompanies himself on the guitar, has indeed a rare and beautiful voice, smooth and full with a silver bell-like resonance.

His Playhouse concerts will include an Italian group, seven songs from Schumann's Dichterliebe cycle, arias from Mozart, Massenet and Ponchielli operas, art songs by Edvard Griez, and folk songs.

Return Of Toad Cheered

It is now six years since one of the most successful family Christmas shows produced in Victoria was first seen at the Langham Court Theatre.

Toad of Toad Hall — an adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's classic Wind in the Willows — drew delighted raves from all who saw Anthony Burton's production.

Its star was Cliff Clarke as the addle-pated reptile with a craze for speeding in soupy sports cars.

Next Saturday the same director and star hope to "bring it off again" in a new Victoria Theatre Guild edition tailored for the stage of the McPherson Playhouse.

In the years between there has been a second successful production, steered by Mr. Clarke as producer, which crossed the strait for a well-received run in Port Angeles.

The current production will run through Dec. 17 at the McPherson for a total of nine performances. There will be matinees on both Saturdays, starting at 2.

In the cast of delightful characters that throng the stage, two leading Victoria character performers will appear.

Singer-actor, Norman Tyrrell, whose wonderful gift of comedy has enhanced many city shows, plays the Judge. His last role was as Ali Hakim, the peddler in Oklahoma.

Rat is being played by another Victoria Operatic Society member, Tony Wilkins.

Musical director for the show is Jack Lanagan and its overall producer is Edna Kowalchuk.

Tickets are available now at the McPherson box office.

He Likes Cooking Concert Into Shape

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A short, stocky man built like a wrestler walks decisively onto the stage of the War Memorial Opera House with his violin, bows to a flutter of applause and gives the signal for the musicians to tune.

When the resulting cacophony subsides Conductor Josef Krips emerges from the wings to direct another concert of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Who was the first man? He was Concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick, 46, a foremost violinist in his own right but who does much more than just play the fiddle.

"What I do at a concert," Krachmalnick says, "is like bringing the roast beef to the dinner table. I like being the cook much better." Which is his way of explaining he enjoys preparing for the concert better than giving the performance itself.

The concertmaster's job varies with the man himself and the conductor, but in general, here's how it goes:

Before the season begins, Krachmalnick gets together with Krips and reviews the repertoire. Then as the day for a particular concert approaches, he goes over the phrasing and bowing of the string parts.

His master copy is then copied and distributed to the players — which is why, incidentally all the strings play up and down together at the concert. It would be mighty distracting otherwise.

Krachmalnick has other duties. "Maybe a woodwind player has some trouble with his intonation," he says. "I talk to the man who's having trouble and work out the problem."

He also rehearses the orchestra if Maestro Krips is unable to do so himself.

NON-CONFORMIST DISPLAYS PLUCK

WOODEN HEAD by F. H. Staverman, Exposition Press, New York: 1966. 199 pages. $5.

Reviewed by Eric Henderson

Names of far-distant lands and seas to excite the most unromantic imagination abound in this autobiography of a retired officer from the Royal Dutch Navy, who has lived in Victoria district since 1927.

Mr. Staverman, however, treats the early, sea-going years of his adventurous and widely-travelled career almost casually.

A self-proclaimed "non-comformist" even from early boyhood, he was forced by ill-advised parental decision into a naval career despite his strong preference for agriculture.

His story is a never-ending struggle throughout his years as a naval officer, government official, rubber planter, poultry farmer and agriculturist — whether against officialdom, ill-health, personal tragedy, adverse climate in the Dutch East Indies and heart-breaking reverses in British Columbia while still a recently-arrived immigrant.

A man who has been awarded the Dutch equivalent of our own Victoria Cross for gallantry under fire, attained his nineties, and now written a book, deserves full admiration and respect

Not all his readers will agree with his repeatedly-stated views on politics, religion or divorce, but there will be unanimous appreciation of his courageous struggle and plucky endurance against the Great Depression of unhappy memory.

AUTHOR Merrill Denison, 73-year-old dean of Canadian business historians, at work on his 1,000-page history of the Bank of Montreal.

Bank's History Is Fascinating Tale

CANADA'S FIRST BANK: A history of the Bank of Montreal. By Merrill Denison. McClelland and Stewart, 1966. 471 pp. Index. Illustrated. $7.00.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

This is the first of a two volume comprehensive history of one of the oldest banks in Canada.

It is also a beautifully published book, filled with numerous illustrations of the early history of Canada by a number of well-known painters and illustrators.

It is not only a handsome book, and one obviously well subsidized to be sold at such a modest price, but it is a well-written, clear and interesting account of the growth of the Bank of Montreal from its origins in 1817 to the post-Rebellion era in the early 1840's

Mr. Denison has been given full access to the bank's archives, and his own background knowledge of the economic history of Canada as evidenced in his other works has permitted him to place the growth of this financial institution in its proper historical perspective.

Readers who might expect from the title to be presented with a large, dull tome dealing primarily with banking and financial techniques will be pleasantly surprised when they dip into this volume.

The author keeps his eye on the bank, but at the same time he very frequently leaves the counting-house and wanders into the fields, forests and beaver meadows of early Canada to show the impact of the new bank on our pioneer economy.

In many cases he brings new light to the Canadian economic scene, and brings to attention the political, international and other forces shaping the development of Canadian banking and determining the conservative but constructive development of the Bank of Montreal during its first half century.

This attractive and interesting volume deserves to be more widely read than it may be.

Certainly it is a credit to the bank, the publisher and the author.

NORTH BREEZES

"You mean you've got relatives coming at Christmas?" asked the man in the Blue Suit.

"From Regina," said his dinner companion, the man in the Brown Suit. "They said they like to visit around without freezing their ears."

"I've got an idea," said Blue Suit. "Put them up here at Imperial. They'd have the comforts of home without any of the inconveniences of the get-ready-for-Christmas rush."

Brown Suit said, "You're a genius."

Blue Suit said, "I knew someday you'd listen to my advice."

Brown Suit said "They're booked already. They stayed here last year and you couldn't get them to go anywhere else. Got anymore good ideas that I didn't have first?" And then they started arguing again until the steaks came and they were all smiles.

AN ARCHITECTURAL HISTORY OF CANADIAN LIFE
by Alan Gowans
This brilliant and beautiful book presents an incomparable portrait of Canada. If you are interested in architecture, in history, or in the conditions—past, present and future—of Canadian living, you must have this book. Superbly illustrated, with 246 halftones. FACTS ABOUT EYES
Only two persons in one hundred have perfect eyes. However, many more than this obtain normal vision because the eye is able to compensate for slight irregularities, but often this clear vision is obtained only by sacrificing comfort.
Surveys indicate that seven out of ten people require glasses for one purpose or another, if they are to have the clear, comfortable and efficient vision to which they are entitled.
Reading speed—fast readers absorb more and tire less than do slow readers—should be from three hundred and fifty words per minute for adults.
Good vision is your most precious asset—protect it by having your eyes examined at least every two years.

U.S. Pumps $250 Million Into Housing Industry

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The government acted this week to pump new life into the badly ailing American housing industry.

President Johnson released $250,000,000 in special funds to finance the purchase of mortgages from savings and loan associations and other lenders who write mortgages.

Housing starts have slumped to a 20-year low.

The mortgage-financing assistance will come from the Federal National Mortgage Association, a federal agency. Congress earlier this year authorized the agency to spend $1,000,000,000 in support of housing.

The government will make the funds available only for houses on which construction has not yet begun.

Another restriction is that only mortgages that are no larger than $15,000 will be purchased, except in high-cost areas.

MONEY ELUSIVE

A shortage of money in the hands of savings and loan associations and other lenders has made it difficult recently for those who want to buy houses to find mortgage financing.

F. W. Dodge Co., a construction and marketing information concern, reported that further weakening in the housing market caused the total value of construction contracts awarded in October to fall to $4,106,093,000 from $4,355,890,000 a year earlier.

Continued large gains in most kinds of non-residential construction last month failed to offset the 35 per cent drop from October 1965 in the value of contracts awarded for residential construction.

The question of an income tax increase in 1967 remained up in the air. President Johnson was working on his budget for the 1967-68 fiscal year that may total a record $140,000,000, and was reported still undecided about a tax increase.

Johnson announced he had whittled $5,300,000,000 off federal spending programs, of which $3,000,000,000 would be saved in the current fiscal year.

ORDERS HELD FIRM

Suspension of the seven-per-cent investment credit in October apparently had little effect on buyers of new machine tools as orders slipped only slightly from the September level.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that U.S. factories operated at 91 per cent of capacity in each of the first three quarters of this year, the highest since the last quarter of 1955 when the rate also was 91 per cent.

Automobile production this week was estimated at 201,500 passenger cars, compared with 155,625 last week when production was curtailed by Thanksgiving Day, but was seven per cent behind the 216,952 built a year ago.

Steel production last week dipped 1.4 per cent to 2,528,000 tons from 2,565,000 the previous week.

Weldwood Sales Off, Staff Cut

VANCOUVER (CP)—Weldwood of Canada Ltd. announced Friday it will lay off 185 men at its three plywood divisions in B.C. because of dwindling plywood sales.

President John Bene said the continuing slump in house construction across Canada is forcing the company to start cutbacks.

He said starting Monday the overnight shifts at Kent Avenue division in Vancouver, the North Surrey division and the Cariboo division at Quesnel will be eliminated. Instead of three shifts, the three plants will work with only two shifts daily.

Mr. Bene said housing starts in the last six months have been 25 per cent below those for the same period last year and there is no marked increase in the demand for plywood or other wood products expected in the foreseeable future.

Uranium Boom Seen For Wyoming Area

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Salt Lake City Tribune says a second uranium boom is building up in the arid, sandstone-sculptured lands of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

The new boom centres on central Wyoming. The November Engineering and Mining Journal reports mor than 20,000 claims have been staked in Wyoming, the most since last March 1.

Canadian Companies 'Having Problems'

MONTREAL (CP) — J. W. Tait, president of Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd., said Thursday Canadian companies are having difficulty maintaining their position in export markets because of rising wages at home.

He told the company's annual meeting that a "reasonable relationship" should be maintained between wage and productivity increases.

City Man Develops Plan To Tie Wages With COL

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A Victoria man relays to us a plan that would tie wage increases to a factor based on cost of living so that progressions will be fair and constant.

C. W. Wilkinson, of Box 693, suggests the system has advantages to both unions and management and that strikes for better wage levels would be less likely.

The factor would be determined by government figures according to COL index, based on hourly rates when COL was 100 and computed on a figure obtained by manipulating the current COL index.

The base figure would be constant, while the multiple would vary according to changes in the COL index.

And the resulting figure is expressed in dollars and cents per hour of work.

Just what the original hourly rate should be would have to be decided arbitrarily according to value or importance of occupation, Mr. Wilkinson said.

Some of the advantages would include consistent buying power, union negotiation for a higher multiple factor when production goes up, and more efficient production planning based on firm wage projections.

But the biggest hurdle would be in having the idea accepted universally. How about a plan for that, Mr. Wilkinson?

Mutual funds have begun to react to the approaching federal government investigation into the funds, which is planned for early next year.

A program of uniform training for fund salesmen has been organized and an effort is being made to bring all 10 Canadian agencies within the Canadian Mutual Funds Association as a step toward internal policing.

The thinking is that self-help may rule out the necessity for uniform legislation to cover fund operations in the provinces.

One of the newer Canadian funds, the Regent Fund, is related to Investor's Overseas Services through the Canadian-incorporated Fund of Funds.

Lack of disclosure has been criticized in several countries where IOS operates, notably the U.S. where there is litigation involving Fund of Funds.

But in Brazil the government has gone further and siezed the company's books, believing that too much money is leaving the country through its international investments.

What happens there will be watched closely from abroad.

Britain Kicks Out Pound Prop

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain has kicked away a multi-million-dollar prop that has been supporting the pound sterling for the last two years.

The British government said the United States Friday it no longer needs access to the $250,000,000 that was earmarked as emergency backing for the pound — though never touched — since November, 1964.

Following soon after an announcement that Britain's gold and currency reserves had increased for the third straight month, the move signified the British government's confidence in the pound.

The finance ministry announcement of a £23,000,000 (€9,000,000) rise in November brought the total gain in the nation's reserves during the three-month period to £46,000,000. ($138,000,000.)

The British currency has been showing a gradual, although not sensational, improvement in the international money market since the end of September.

This strength enabled the Bank of England to improve its dollar holdings.

A credit balance of £29,000,000 ($87,000,000) on overseas trading in October also gave the government additional confidence — and more funds.

CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES

Auto Industry Studies Safety Research Grants

By DAVID QUINTNER

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canadian automobile manufacturers are to consider making donations to Canadian universities for auto safety research, three spokesmen for the companies said Thursday.

John Addison, Liberal member of Parliament for North York and a member of the 18-man Commons committee on justice and legal affairs, suggested at the conclusion here of two days of hearings into auto safety that some of the $10,000,000 donated by the companies to United States universities for auto safety research be funnelled to Canadian institutions.

"By 1968, under the provisions of the auto trade agreement, Canada will be producing 7.5 per cent of all cars manufactured in North America. A similar proportion of that money should go to Canadian universities," Mr. Addison said.

Spokesmen for American Motors (Canada) Ltd., Chrysler Corp. and Chrysler (Canada) Ltd., agreed guardedly that such a request was "worthy of further consideration" and "seemed reasonable."

The governmental committee, conducting hearings outside of Parliament for the first time, concluded its questioning of the industry Thursday after a morning tour of the Chrysler Corp. auto research centre near Detroit.

During the tour Chrysler barred newspaper men from its facilities.

After being invited by the committee to join it on the tour, the company prevented reporters from accompanying the committee. Two members of Parliament expressed dissatisfaction at the ruling.

Gordon Aiken, Conservative member for Parry Sound-Muskoka, left the tour briefly to speak with reporters.

STIFF OPPOSITION

U.S. Mutual Funds Face Reform Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key parts of a U.S. government plan to reform mutual fund operations —including an outright ban on one type investment—face stiff opposition from the $38,000,000,000 industry.

In a 346-page report Friday, the securities and exchange commission recommended a five-per-cent ceiling on sales charges by mutual funds, reduced advisory fees and a ban on contract plans which can siphon off up to half the first-year investment in commissions and fees.

If adopted by Congress, the recommendations could save investors millions of dollars yearly, commission sources said.

More than 3,500,000 Americans own shares in the 379 mutual funds which were registered by the commission as of last June 30.

Mutual funds sell shares representing an investment in the securities they hold, thus permitting a customer to spread his money over a large number of stocks, usually 30 to 40.

Commission Chairman Manuel Cohen said the recommendations are designed to protect charges. He described mutual funds as a sound and useful investment medium.

The industry was quick to react.

The Investment Company Institute said the industry will agree with some recommendations and reject others but it didn't spell out which ones.

The Association of Mutual Fund Plan Spnsors Inc., composed of 19 funds doing 70 per cent of the contract plan business, said the report ignores corrective changes made within the industry over the last four years.

It said a ban on so-called front-end load funds is contrary to the public interest.

Under these plans, a customer agrees to invest a given amount over a specified period with up to half the first year's investment going for sales charges.

SEATTLE — As his whistling indicated, Murray Costello knows a good thing when he sees it.

He figured Seattle Totems' 4-3 overtime victory over Victoria Maple Leafs here Friday night was a 'good thing." For Seattle. Certainly, the Leafs regard the Western Hockey League result in a different light.

A one-time National League performer whose shingle now indicates he is the managing director of the Totems, Costello is inclined to think Seattle "was a bit fortunate" in pulling Friday's skate out of the fire.

The Totems did that by spotting the slumping Leafs the first two goals, then charging back to win it at 2:48 in overtime on a goal by Earl Heiskala.

Don Chiz, Larry Lund and Guyle Fielder scored Seattle's other goals. Andy Hebenton, Gordie Redahl and Bruce Carmichael pulled the trigger for Victoria.

Costello went into a whistling act twice during the night. He intoned relief after the first period and whistled, naturally enough, when Heiskala pumped in the winner.

"We'll take the victory because we need it," said Costello, "but I'd have to say we were fortunate we weren't bombed out of the building.

"The way the Leafs came at our club in the first period, I thought they were going to skate us right out of the rink. If Victoria breaks out of its slump, they'll do it in a big way. I thought that was happening in that first period.

"Leafs took that 2-0 lead, and we were fortunate it wasn't 5-0 or 6-0."

Jim Armstrong Was Key to Success

Such was Victoria's effort that they outshot the Totems 13-3. But goaltender Jim Armstrong held Seattle together with an excellent stopping display, and the Totems regained their composure later.

Armstrong was the key. Although tagged for goals by Hebenton and Redahl, he held the fort just long enough. He was especially brilliant when Leafs held a man advantage through penalties on three separate occasions in the first period.

Armstrong took particular delight in frustrating Victoria winger Bob Barlow. A 42-goal scorer last year who has cashed in only once in 20 games this time out, Barlow had at least four good scoring chances. But the frustration, for Barlow, continues.

If he didn't miss the target, then Armstrong was there to pull off an unexpected stop.

Hebenton and team captain Sandy Hucul also played strong games for the Leafs, but it wasn't enough to stop Victoria from suffering its seventh straight loss.

HITTING LEADER

Both teams resorted to a "hitting" game in the late stages, and defenceman Hucul was the Leafs' leader. Hucul took particular delight in belting Fielder.

As it turned out Fielder bounced back to enjoy the final chuckle. It was Fielder's goal, at 14:29 of the third period, that sent the game into overtime.

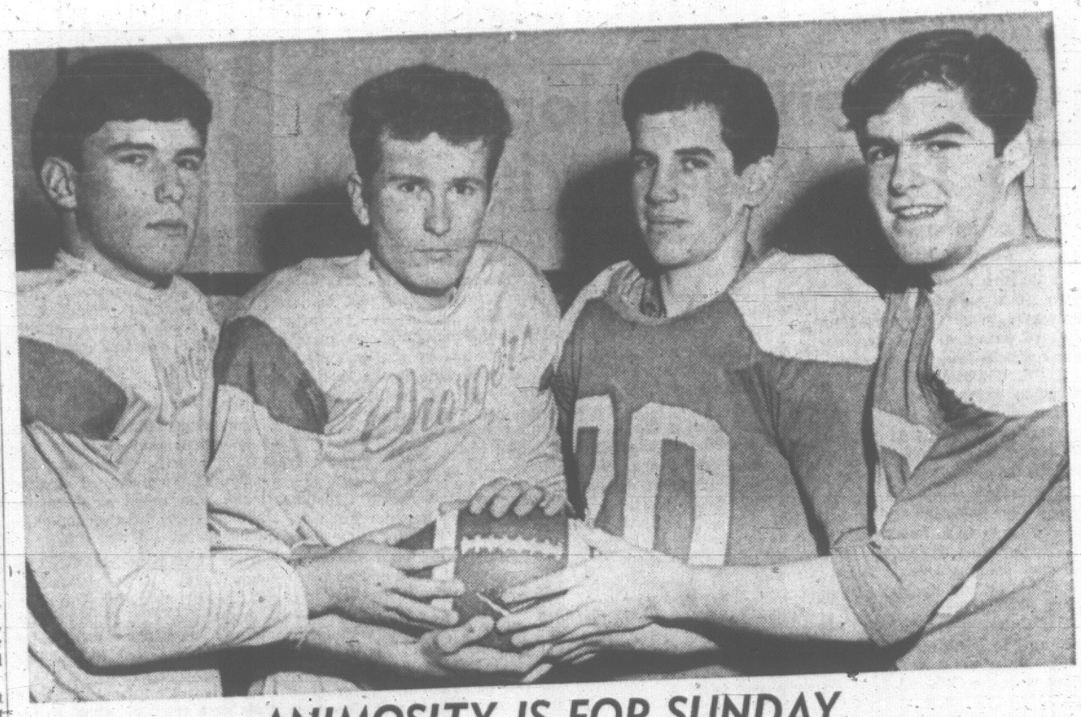
It was a spectacular effort. Fielder carried the puck over Victoria's blueline on a three-man rush. But instead of swerving and lobbing a pass to a wingman, as he normally does, Fielder let go with a hard shot while in full stride.

SURPRISED GOALIE

The shot took everyone, including Victoria goaltender Al Smith, by surprise.

Consequently, the Leafs returned home today mired in sixth place, three points behind Seattle and Oakland Seals. They also hustle home as disheartened Davids hoping to battle the gay Goliaths of the league.

Winless since Nov. 13, the Leafs play Portland Buckaroos at Memorial Arena tonight. The front-running Buckaroos have ticked off nine victories and four draws in their last 14 games.



ANIMOSITY IS FOR SUNDAY

Animosity was absent as these players grappled for ball while Times photographer Irving Strickland clicked shutter, but they'll be battling like bantam roosters Sunday at Carnarvon Park. Paul Burgoyne (left) and Brett Vining of Gordon Head Chargers are hoping to handle ball many times when they line up against Pat Griffin and Dan Fogden (right) of St. Louis College Gaels. Chargers and Gaels are scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. for Lower Island bantam football championship.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

If crow had been on the menu last weekend, y'r agent—and several million other Solomons — would have had feathers coming out our ears.

"Ottawa is the greatest thing since bread!" we chorused.

"Saskatchewan not only can't win, it can't be pronounced," we solemnly agreed.

Ah reckless youth! Ah wisdom! Ah nuts!

To determine what made us wrong (besides carrying too much fat upstairs and high taxes) retrospect made us revert to our pre-game notes.

Consider . . .

Lumber on Skulls Might Have Helped

Two days before the Grey Cup contest, Eagle Keys was asked to say a few words at the Canadian Football League luncheon.

For a man who considers "Hello" and "Goodbye" running off at the mouth, Keys was absolutely eloquent.

Quoth the coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders: "From what I hear Ottawa is probably the best team. But don't underestimate us. We are in the best condition we have been in this year.

"We are ready physically, mentally and in every way."

How subtle can you be? But subtlety doesn't always get through concrete skulls. Next time you have a good thing, Eagle, try tapping our domes with a two-by-four . . .

If that wasn't enough there was a private pre-game session with Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster. He is so persuasive that if he ever gets religion there won't be an empty church from Bamfield to Bangkok.

Q. On the basis of its Eastern Conference record and what it did to Hamilton, Ottawa must have the best defence in Canadian football. Does this give you insomnia?

A. "No. Those eight interceptions Ottawa made in the second game against Hamilton were meaningless. After Ottawa scored the first touchdown Hamilton was committed to pass. You can't make up five touchdowns with a ground game. The Ottawa deep backs knew this. Instead of dropping off two or three steps as they might in a close game, they were falling back eight or 10.

"There isn't a defence that can't be had. They all give away by characteristics their intentions. Ottawa conceals better than most teams. But they will make mistakes. It might take me to the fourth quarter to find their weakness but I'll find it."

Coach Has Worst Seat In Stadium

Q. Does the fact that you will be playing Ottawa, the team that dropped you for Russ Jackson, give you extra motivation?

A. "Not really. I like playing the best because the challenge is greater. Going to Saskatchewan was the best thing for me. The two-quarterback system doesn't work. Some players unconsciously are drawn to one quarterback or the other. If your players lose confidence in you, you lose confidence in yourself."

Q. How do you rate the coaches, Frank Clair and Eagle Keys?

A. "Technically, equal. But I communicate much better with Eagle than I did with Clair. Frank's a pragmatist; his quarterback must go with the play he called in the huddle. Eagle leaves checkoffs (or audibles, so known because a coded number system is spoken at the line of scrimmage, changing the original play) to me.

"Ottawa has five types of pass blitzes, from a two-man to an eight-man. If I call a pass play and then 'read' their defence and see an eight-man blitz coming, do you think I want to pass? I'm going to hand off to (George) Reed or (Ed) Buchanan and get out of there."

(Keys said 50 per cent of all Saskatchewan's plays against Ottawa were audibles.)

Q. So you would rather be a thinking quarterback than a robot?

A. "Absolutely. But there's more to it than that. The coach has the worst seat in the stadium for seeing the game. How can he possibly know what the other team's defence is doing?

"There are only two people who really know. The spotter on the roof and the quarterback. Our spotter tells Eagle and we talk it over. But Eagle never imposes his judgments on me. That's the greatest morale builder a quarterback can have."

Ah, so! Ah, woe! Ah, poverty!

RANGER FANS JUMPING GUN

NEW YORK (AP) — Playoff-starved New York Ranger fans are jumping for joy at the team's current, second-place standing in the National Hockey League.

They also seem to be jumping the gun.

"We had two telephone calls today asking when playoff tickets would go on sale," a club spokesman reported.

The regular season ends April 2.

The Rangers have qualified for the Stanley Cup competition only once in the last eight years.

SMILING Carl Brewer dons sweater of Canadian national hockey team after learning his long flight for amateur status is almost over. He may be playing with Nationals next week.

Way Clear for Brewer To Join National Team

WINNIPEG (CP) — Only a formality stands between former all-star defenceman Carl Brewer and the amateur status he has been seeking for more than three months.

The break in his stalemate with the National Hockey League came Friday when NHL president Clarence Campbell announced the way for Brewer's return to amateur ranks came through a liberalization of regulations.

Brewer, who ended a seven-year career with Toronto Maple Leafs in the spring of 1965, had gone into voluntary retirement but decided this year to seek amateur status and a berth on Canada's national team.

Friday's decision clears the way for Brewer to be placed on the voluntary retirement list, the only roster from which he can seek reinstatement and amateur status.

WITH NATS MONDAY?

The 28-year-old player's counsel, Allan Eagleson, said in Toronto that he could be "in the Nationals' colors by Monday."

His formal application for reinstatement must be countersigned by Maple Leaf Gardens and sent on to the NHL central registry.

Eagleson says: "Twenty-four hours after the central registry receives his application, he should have clearance."

Brewer was attending a Nationals' luncheon when he was first informed. He was dubious at first. Later, when the information was confirmed, he said: "I am grateful to the people who have given me so much help."

"Above all, I am indebted to my attorney and friend, Allan Eagleson."

During his lengthy battle with the NHL for reinstatement, Brewer was selling tickets for the CAHA centennial hockey tournament here Jan. 1-6 and working two days a week as an Indian affairs officer at Kenora, Ont.

He dressed for a Nationals' practice Friday night and said:

"This is a great team—a great team. I am proud to be a member of it.

When he left the Maple Leafs —"for personal reasons" — he turned his back on a $20,000-plus NHL contract. At that time, he said, he fully intended never to play hockey again.

Canucks Continue Start-Fast Habit

OAKLAND, Calif. — Vancouver Canucks are running a habit for scoring the first goal of a game into a blazing Western Hockey League victory streak.

Canucks scored the first goal for the 14th time this season Friday night and went on to chalk up their seventh successive triumph by defeating Oakland Seals 5-3.

Victory settled the Canadian club more firmly in second place. The Canucks now hold a six-point margin over Los Angeles Blades. Seals remained in fourth place, tied with Seattle Totems.

ONLY 20 SECONDS

Gordie Vejprava, the veteran centre who is having one of his best seasons, needed only 20 seconds from the opening faceoff to get the Canucks out in front. Tom Thurlby tied the score but Ken Block sent Vancouver ahead 2-1 before the period ended.

Goals by Larry Popein, Ray Brunel and another by Cook gave Vancouver a 5-1 lead before Seals bounced back with two goals in the final five minutes, by Charlie Burns and George Swarbrick.

MILAN (AP) — The Italian Soccer League announced today random anti-doping checkups on players immediately after major and minor league games will start this month.

Should tests show that any player took illegal stimulants, fines of from 10,000,000 to 1,100,000,000 lire ($16,600 to $160,000) would be levied against the player's club, the league said. It said drugged players might face terms of one year in jail.

If It's 'Lost Weekend' Some Habs May Travel

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens lack of success this season is worrying the club's brass.

The Canadiens, defending National Hockey League and Stanley Cup champions, have won seven, lost eight and tied one in 16 games this year and are deadlocked for fourth place with Boston Bruins.

The situation is grim enough in the eyes of the club's brass to send general manager Sam Pollock on a road trip for a good look at Montreal hands in the minor leagues.

Should this weekend turn out to be another "lost weekend" some of the club's players may be on the road as well—travelling by bus in the minors.

The Canadiens play host to league - leading Chicago Black Hawks tonight while Detroit Red Wings visit Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers travel to Boston.

In Sunday's action, Montreal is at New York, Toronto plays in Boston and Detroit is at Chicago.

BLAME INJURIES

So far, Montreal coach Toe Blake and the club brass have refused to push the panic button. They point to injuries as a major factor in the club's poor start.

Pollock will take in tonight's Quebec - Cleveland AHL game and will then move on to St. Louis and Houston of the Central Professional Hockey League. His objective is to get a first-hand rating on players who did well during the Canadiens' training camp.

Tonight's game will be the third meeting between the Chicago and Montreal. Chicago has won two previous games—5-3 and 5-0.

Cowichan Cricketer Receives Top Trophy

Tom Brierly picked up the top individual prize of the year Friday night as the Victoria and District Cricket Association held its annual banquet and trophy presentations.

Vice-captain of the Cowichan club, the veteran Brierley received the Gillespie Trophy as the man who made the greatest contribution to cricket during the past season.

Cowichan collected two team trophies, receiving the Colonist Cup for winning the league title and the trophy for taking the annual knockout competition.

Albions and Cowichan shared the Holiday Trophy as leaders in the Wednesday evening league.

Trevor Holgate received the ball he bowled for a hat-trick in September. It was incorporated in a desk set.

Guest speaker was Dr. Ted Allen of South Africa.

RIB, SPINE INJURIES SIDELINE TOP SCORER

BALTIMORE (CP) — Bob Leduc, leading scorer with Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, suffered "a fractured transverse process of the spine," during a game against Baltimore Clippers Friday night.

The 22-year-old Sudbury native also suffered a fractured rib when he took a bodycheck from Baltimore defenceman Bob Plager in the second period of the game. The Clippers won 3-1.

He was taken to hospital where the Clippers' chief surgeon, Dr. Ross Pierpont, confirmed the nature of the injuries.

Pension While Playing?

TORONTO (CP) — A lot of people are looking forward to pipe, slippers and fireside when it comes time to collect that pension.

But not everyone—there are two oldsters in Toronto who could still be skating, swinging sticks and blocking pucks.

Allan (Sam) Stanley will be 41 in three months and could still be around when he becomes eligible for National Hockey League pension payments at age 45.

The other is Stanley's teammate, goalie Johnny Bower, who is listed on Toronto Maple Leaf records as 42.

Stanley, queried on the possibility of becoming the first NHL player to hit pension age while still active, replied:

"I might be second. I think Bower may be the first."

With a grin, he added:

"Bower may even be drawing it now."

Stanley believes that the chances of people like himself and Bower making pension age in the big league will be enhanced by next year's expansion.

With the league going from six teams to 12, present teams will be required to supply players to the newcomers.

Rawlings Jolted By Guard's Loss

VANCOUVER — University of British Columbia topped Victoria Rawlings by nine points Friday night but coach Howie Tooby feels "things might have been different" with Sylvia Campbell on hand.

Misfortune came and Miss Campbell left early Friday. UBC picked up the cue and went on to defeat Rawlings 50-41 in the opening round of a senior women's basketball tournament being held to pick B.C.'s representatives to the first Canadian Winter Games.

The Victoria guard reinjured a problem knee after only four minutes of play and had to sit it out the rest of the way.

Rawlings trailed 24-13 at the half but showed their best form in the second session, moving to within four points of UBC at one stage.

Mary Coutts of Victoria was the game's individual standout, rapping in 27 points in a valiant effort to spark Rawlings.

In another game Friday, defending Canadian champion Molsons trounced Mount Pleasant Legion 51-27.

Rawlings play again today and Sunday.

Courtenay Grad Joins Chinooks

It would seem that no one is going to catch the University of British Columbia Jayvees in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League.

The only thing Victoria Chinooks hope for is that none of the Jayvee power rubs off onto other mainland entries in the eight-team league.

UBC rang up its eighth straight victory Friday night in Vancouver, whomping Killarney 106 - 29 with an awesome display of power. Jayvees led 49 - 10 at the half.

Chinooks, runnersup to UBC in the national junior finals last season, stand only a step ahead of last-place Killarney in the league standings. The Victorians hope to move two steps ahead when they face the luckless (0-for-8) Killarney team tonight at Central Junior High.

Chinooks hope to improve their lot with the help of Mike Taafe, former Courtenay high school ace who will make his first appearance for Victoria tonight.

Ron Inrig (23) and Sam Vandermuelen (21) spearheaded UBC's one sided attack Friday.

CHANCE FOLLOWS BELINSKY . . .

. . . IN BASEBALL MOVES

How Dull Will Los Angeles Be?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dean Chance and Bo Belinsky, once the most notorious off-field duo in baseball, have had one more fling — but only through the drafting and dealing at the annual meetings.

California Angels completed the link as the meetings neared an end Friday when they traded Chance, the Cy Young Award winner in 1964, to Minnesota Twins for first baseman Don Mincher, outfielder Jimmie Hall and pitcher Pete Cimino. Houston Astros triggered the fling at the start of the meetings by drafting Belinsky from the minor leagues.

The Angels ended the Hollywood high jinks of the dashing duo exactly two years ago when they traded Belinsky to Philadelphia Phillies.

Chance's turn came Friday.

"That's a fine pitcher we gave up," Angels' manager Bill Rigney said. "He has the finest arm in the American League. I can't replace that arm. There's no way I ever could do that.

"I'm reluctant to lose him, but we had to get nine men on the field, so to speak. We didn't have a first baseman, and we needed some punch."

Chance, named baseball's best pitcher three seasons ago when he compiled a 20-9 mark, a 1.65 earned run average and 11 shutouts, followed Maury Wills and Tommy Davis in one of the most sizzling trading markets in recent years.

Wills went from Los Angeles to Pittsburgh and Davis from Los Angeles to New York Mets during the meetings that saw 10 teams make six deals involving 19 players.

Rigney was hopeful Chance's departure could pave the way for his younger pitchers to come through.

"This will give some of our younger pitchers a chance," he said. "I'm hoping Jorge Rubio will step in and say 'I'm it.' He has the best curve in our organization. His 15 strikeouts against Cleveland on the last day of the season impressed me.

"We're hoping he can join Marcelino Lopez, George Brunet and Fred Newman as our fourth starter.

"I also hope Cimino is the sleeper in the deal. I like him. I feel he's going to be good."

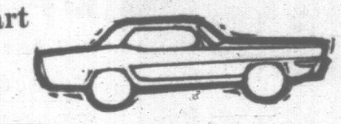
You need a newer, better car. Right? Well, Morrison's have more cars than they want. That's what happens, when people start trading in last year's cars on the new models.



So now, Morrison's used car lot is covered with cars. Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Chryslers, Fords, Buicks. You name it. Morrison's lot has so many cars on it that salesmen keep getting lost.

Morrison's answer: Sell the cars. Fast. Don't give them away, but stand still for any sensible offer. Not enough? Concerned about car payments over the Christmas shopping season? Then how's this: No payments for 45 days! (Look at the calendar, and see how long that is.) No payments, for 45 days, starting on the day you drive your new car away. And, that means no car payments at all—because Morrison's credit man (a pussycat) will take over the payments on your present car!

But that's not all. Here's the kicker: Morrison's will give every used car buyer $100. In cash. No strings. Choose a car anytime between now and Christmas. Forget car payments for 45 days. And take $100 to help with holiday shopping.

You think we're kidding? Come in and see. We have your $100 ready.

Cardinals Overpower Keep-Busy Uvic Team

A touring team helps the Vikings to tie the ribbon tonight on a three-games-in-two-days home stand by the University of Victoria basketball team.

Cardinals had little trouble with the Vikings Friday. The visitors jumped away to a 56-35 half-time lead and coasted the rest of the way. Every member of the Skagit Valley team managed at least four points.

Ken Jackson, with 19 points, paced Vikings. Other standouts for Victoria were Al Glover and Jack Noonan.

SUCCESSOR LIVING UP TO HIS NAME

NEW YORK (AP)—Successor, never out of the money in nine starts, lived up to his difficult name by being picked as the Thoroughbred Racing Association's two-year-old colt champion. Bold Lad, a full brother, won the same title in 1964 and Bold Ruler, his sire, was best of the juvenile colts in 1957.

Forty-eight of the 55 votes cast by the TRA's board of selection went to Successor with Dr. Fager and In Reality the only others to receive consideration.

Polish Team Plays to Tie

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — The Polish national hockey team and Gander Flyers battled to a 3-3 tie in an exhibition hockey game Friday night.

Harry Katrynuk, Doug Squires and Mike Kelly were the Flyers' scorers. Kilanovipch scored two goals for the Polish team and Fonfara added the other marker.

The Nationals travel to St. John's for a game against St. John's Capitals tonight.

Prescriptions. Drugs and medicines and other things that kids hate.

At Cunninghams we stock the biggest selection of pharmaceuticals in the province. And every store is managed by a graduate pharmacist who knows exactly what your doctor has in mind.

It's been our number one reason for being in business for over fifty-five years. Which is why more people use Cunninghams prescription service than any other drug store in B.C.

GEMS WORTH $210,000 MISSING FROM PLANE

LONDON (CP)—Somewhere between London and Hong Kong a mail bag with $210,000 worth of diamonds has disappeared, British Overseas Airways Corp. reported Friday.

The consignment of cut and polished gems arrived in London from Johannesburg, South Africa, on a BOAC flight Nov. 25 and was put aboard the Hong Kong flight a few hours later. The plane touched down in Frankfurt, Rome, New Delhi and Bangkok en route. In Hong Kong, BOAC officials could not find the mail bag and turned the case over to security officers.

SAANICH ABOUT-FACE

Sewer Lead Flushed Away

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than the sewer utility went down the drain this week when the majority of Saanich council pulled the chain on the proposed referendum this month.

The councillors (six of them) also flushed away Saanich's leadership in a regional approach to the problems of sewers and sewage pollution.

Down the drain too went political courage and political leadership, and the start of a big move against a serious health problem.

Six elected officials did a complete about-face on the sewer utility, which was to have gone to the municipal voters for a decision at the annual elections.

Three others stuck by their guns—and their earlier votes—and opposed delaying the utility proposal. They were Reeve Hugh Curtis, Coun. Edith Gunning, and Coun. Digby Kier.

LEADERSHIP ABSENT

Leadership of the Oak Bay kind, where council has for two successive years put forward the explosive issue of fluoridation for the public to decide, was sadly absent at Saanich.

It is interesting to note the compostion of the six Saanich councillors who changed their minds —and their votes.

Four of them are seeking re-election Dec. 10.

They are Couns. Leslie Passmore, Harold Todd, Edward Lum and Alan Newberry.

The other two switchers can at least say that re-election problems were not part of their decision. They were Couns. William Campbell and William Noel.

Only two councillors expressed serious misgivings before this week—Passmore and Noel.

QUICK CHANGE

But even they, along with everyone else on council, voted unanimously earlier to put the sewer utility to the electorate and give the necessary bylaw three unanimous readings.

One week later the votes changed, and by a 6-to-3 decision you won't be able to vote on the sewer utility—whether you think it's a good idea or a bad one.

Almost two years ago, I recall discussions on the same subject at the old municipal hall at Royal Oak.

Last Aug. 16, comptroller-treasurer John Tribe presented a report on the subject outlining certain questions that needed consideration.

The public works committee recommended the creation of a sewer utility.

On Nov. 10 he presented a comprehensive report outlining the benefits, costs and savings. The public works committee endorsed it.

The proposal would wrap up six sewerage areas into a common utility with costs averaged out.

It would have ended an administrative jungle and paved the way for implementation of the $70,000 Greater Victoria sewerage report of last summer.

Substantial savings would have accrued to some and slight increases for others. The maximun increase would be $9 a year.

The referendum is dead until the municipal elections at the end of 1967. It may be dead for even longer.

Perhaps the most devastating comment was made by Coun. Edith Gunning, the bright newcomer to council who gets an A-plus for her actions this week —along with Reeve Curtis and Coun. Kier.

If Saanich can't take an overall approach in its own municipality, she didn't see how it can take a regional approach to the whole problem of sewers, sewage and pollution.

Enrich Central Saanich Council with New PROFESSIONAL Blood

VOTE FOR

A. M. Galbraith | X

Ratepayers of Central Saanich will inevitably be called upon during the next few months to back their council's deliberations and decisions with cold hard cash. These decisions involve important engineering projects such as the proposed Brentwood Sewerage System, extension of Central Saanich Waterworks, and expansion of street lighting.

Urgently needed are council members whose professional training qualifies them to help council make the right decisions and advise fellow-members on technicalities. Mishandling could easily result in needless expense.

As an engineer of many years standing, I suggest that I may be of unique service to the people of Central Saanich, if they elect me to the Council.

A vote for A. M. GALBRAITH is a vote for maximum efficiency and economy in your local government.

Fiercely Proud of 'Brew' Aussies Great Drinkers

SYDNEY, Australia — Don't ever challenge an Australian to a beer drinking contest. Chances are you'll lose.

Australians are fiercely proud of their home brew, and back up their pride by drinking prodigious amounts of the golden liquid. Per capita, Australians are the greatest beer drinkers in the world.

However, the beer certainly doesn't slow the typical Australian down. In fact, they seem to thrive on it, because Australians are among the most active and athletic people in the world.

With a population of only 11,500,000, Australia invariably produces some of the worlds greatest swimmers, track and field stars and tennis players. The Davis Cup, symbolic of world amateur tennis supremacy, is almost the strict domain of Australia.

Other popular Australian sports include golf, sailing, horseback riding, and many more participant sports.

Spectator sports in Australia often provide some colorful moments for photographers who are first time visitors to the country. Australian rules football is a sport unique to Australia, with crowds of up to 110,000 attending the games.

Horse racing is another favorite Australian sport, with four race courses in the metropolitan Sydney area. One track in Melbourne is so large it has a straight six furlongs (eight furlongs equals a mile) for six furlong races. Cricket is also a popular sport with Australians, and an excellent attraction for tourists and picture takers.

For professional and amateur photographers, the asimals which are native to Australia present unique photo subjects. Koala bears, which feed on eucalyptus leaves, are the cutest little animals imaginable, and make appealing photo studies. The kangaroo, wallaby, platypus, anteater, and giant turtle are other animals indigenous to Australia. At the Zoological Gardens, near Sydney, there is an excellent array of these animals shown in surrounding resembling their native haunts.

The two largest cities in Australia are Sydney and Melbourne. Canadian Pacific Airlines has regularly scheduled flights to Sydney from Vancouver.

Sydney is surrounded by beach resorts which stretch for hundreds of miles in each direction. Although it is a city of tall buildings, Sydney has a number of parks, including Hyde Park, which is almost in the centre of the city.

Sydney is also a large shipping centre, with one of the busiest ports in the world. Frequent harbor ferry excursions are an excellent way to see the city.

The Blue Mountains range about 3,500 feet above sea level, and provide magnificent scenery. Just a two hour drive from Sydney, the Blue Mountains have a number of hotels for tourists.

There are also two national parks just a short distance from Sydney. Both are sanctuaries for animal and bird life and each features indigenous flora.

Other Australian points of interest include Melbourne, with numerous gardens and parks; Canberra, the federal capital of Australia; Brisbane, the capital of Queensland; Adelaide, the capital of South Australia; Tasmania, a heart-shaped island south of Melbourne, smallest of the six Australian states; and Perth, capital of Western Australia.

A special point of interest for photographers is the Great Barrier Reef, stretching for about 1200 miles along the Queensland coast. The visitor can get there from Sydney by plane in about three hours, or take one of a number of cruises. This coral reef contains hundreds of small islands and coves which are almost completely unspoiled.

Ghost towns.
Parading whales.
Spanish missions.
Movie studios.

High-powered flowers. You need a ladder to measure Southern California's winter poinsettias. They reach up to roof eaves, peer over patio walls. Some geraniums grow just as tall. Or form 100-foot-long hedges. Or cover entire front yards.

Gold-rush days. At a desert mine, you can pan gold ore, walk through the spooky tunnels. At a restored ghost town, you'll ride the mine train, visit the old fire house. Many colorful mining camps will remind you of movie sets. But they're real.

Nature's greatest parade. If you've ever watched ducks or geese migrate, you should see whales do it! And they do, by the thousands, right by the Pacific shore in winter . . . whales bigger than most yachts.

Spanish California. Romantic missions, about the age of the U.S., still exist here. Often they're just off the freeway! See their massive adobe arches, hand-carved altars, and primitive Indian art.

Lights, action, camera! Go behind the scenes at a major movie-and-TV studio that conducts tours for visitors. See film sets, stars' dressing rooms, a live stunt show, movie rain, a push-button snow storm.

Southern California: the vacation at hometown prices

All four seasons are vacation seasons in Southern California. That's unusual, but good. With visitors coming out here all year, we can afford to be reasonable. Most hotels, motels, restaurants and shops charge about what you'd pay at home.

Skyline drive. Mulholland Drive, along the crest of the Santa Monica Mountains, offers breathtaking views of Los Angeles. Many homes are on stilts, or suspended on pedestals, or on lots carved out of canyon walls!

Lemonland U. S. A. When it's deep winter elsewhere, enjoy a sunny lemonade in lush groves that drowse beneath sheltering mountains. Many trees are trimmed square to produce more fruit. And do they produce: up to 3,000 lemons per year, per tree!

Man-made oases. Irrigation has turned desert sands into rich date gardens in an area called the "Arabia of America." People have backyard date palms instead of apple trees. You can try date candy or cake, a date milk shake.

Gem stone souvenirs. On a balmy winter day, picnic in a desert canyon, then look around for gem stones worth saving. Visitors often find opals, jasper, agate or petrified wood. Sometimes Indian arrowheads, unchanged a century later.

Harbor sights & sounds. Some of the West's great harbors are here. They're alive with fishing boats and ocean liners, the toots of tugboats and mournful voices of fog horns. You can see the ports from hillsides taller than any mast; then take a boat ride for nautical close-ups.

Oriental visit. Winding paths and tiny red bridges take you into the Far East at the Oriental Garden of Huntington Library. A Japanese garden features shoji screens, authentic carvings, exotic flower arrangements.

Enjoy all this—and lots more! When you get here, visit the All-Year Club Information Center at 705 W. 7th St., Los Angeles, for free official vacation-planning help.

Powindah Tucked Lee Rail Under . . . And Charged!

By JOHN MANNING

There was a champagne toast, a newspaper man with two cameras, friends with thoughtful gifts, and old gentleman on shore offering advice about the tidal bore up the Seine Estuary, and belting Nor'west wind that kept our Canadian ensign knife-taut.

We were about to begin, my wife and I, a centennial voyage home from England to Victoria. It was the moment of a lifetime I looked at her. She was holding a large bouquet of flowers in one hand and a jar of preserves in the other — there were tears streaming down her face.

"It all seems so sad," she said.

The sight of nine little boats come to wave us off added a sombre, quietening note to the occasion. They were friends we might not see again.

With a full press of working canvas up our warps were slipped and Powindah moved out into the stream. Horns from afloat and ashore blasted a final salute and suddenly the vessel was homeward bound. British Columbia seemed an eternity away.

At the mouth of the river a squall jumped us, snarling down out of ambush like some wild thing and tumbling unstowed gear about below decks. A quick glace revealed broken glass and preserves strewn over the galley floor. Rain obliterated the channel marks but Powindah took no heed: she tucked her lee rail under and charged forward.

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,000-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the third in a series of articles on their adventures.

A story someone had told us the night before came to mind. It was about four people who had bought a boat in this very river, with the intention of sailing around the world. After months of fitting the craft out they loaded her with stores and cast off, hoping to make the coast of Spain their first landfall.

Instead, they struck a squall at the mouth of the Hamble, their boat ran aground and within a few hours it broke up under pounding seas.

Powindah sailed on, out into the Solent, kicking herself free of the rain, and passed into the midst of some ocean racers returning from Cowes. Their crews gazed curiously at the boat for she looked like something out of the past: a miniature pirate vessel, so heavily laden with booty that her waterline was no longer visible.

On board were engine spares, a hundred fathoms of extra warps, four anchors, charts covering the two major oceans of the world, lockers bulging with tinned food, 100-pound sack of potatoes, salted down bacon, two barrels: one for rum, the other for wine, a stuffed black cat with a bell around its neck and a four-foot high totem pole from British Columbia.

On clearing Portsmouth we gained the open reaches of the English Channel and there found the wind putting more enthusiasm into its efforts than the weather forecast had anticipated. We took in the tops'l and put a reef in the main sail, lessening its area. Still the wind gained. Being on course for Le Havre the seas took the boat broadside, as though determined to shake every vestige of romance out of our first night at sea.

I wondered how the captain and crew of Discovery had felt on their first night at sea.

The English Channel played no favors, even to such seamen as Vancouver, for before they were beyond its grasp one of their men, John Brown, the carpenter's mate, had been lost overboard.

For us, it felt as though we had left the rest of the world behind. Before dark we took down the main sail and hoisted in its place the tough, pie-shaped trysail, for the wind was on the verge of becoming a whole gale. Powindah steadied herself and the mate went below to cook dinner.

"You're not sea sick, are you?" she called, grinning for the first time since we had left port.

"I've felt better."

"Do you want your supper?"

"Later."

Her laughter signalled a change of spirit and when a full moon stabbed through the cloud cover all malaise disappeared for good. We began to enjoy the sail.

Ten hours later, in brilliant sunshine, we sailed into the great steamer port of Le Havre. A police launch ran up alongside, her captain aiming cannon-sized binoculars at our ensign.

"Ahhh . . . Canada!" he shouted. "Welcome to France!"

With great courtesy he escorted us into the yacht basin, his crew tending our lines, then stepped aboard and asked us if we had heard the news.

"No. What has happened?"

"Last night in the storm," he said, "An English pleasure boat sank. There were 31 people aboard and none survived."

It gave us all the more reason to be grateful for a safe crossing.

ACTRESS Harriet Harper emerges from the icy waters of the English Channel at Weymouth after morning swim but she isn't doing it to publicize the seaside's "fall season" or a picture. She just likes a dip every morning while vacationing at the resort centre regardless of the weather or time of year.

Montreal-Paris Service Hiked

Air France has programmed important additions to its Montreal-Paris flights for the 1967 summer season.

The world's two foremost French cities will be connected by 12 regular scheduled flights weekly. In addition, the charter program will be doubled to carry the many visitors expected to come to Expo in Montreal.

Air France is also making provision for supplementary sections to its 12 regular flights. Indications are that the extra sections will be needed because of the many reservations already needed to accommodate Europeans coming to Canada and also by the number of Canadians intending to go to Europe.

Airlines Ask Fare Reductions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air Canada has announced a series of fare reductions on transatlantic flights that will cut return fares in 1967 as much as $382.

An Air Canada spokesman said the reductions apply to group-travel economy class excursions and to first-class fares, but not to individual economy-class passengers.

He said they will be effective Jan. 1, provided approval is obtained from the governments concerned — Britain, Denmark, Germany, Russia, France, Austria and Switzerland.

The new economy fares will apply to any group of 10 or more passengers travelling together on 17 to 21-day excursions, provided they have purchased a European tour with a minimum value of $76.

The new Montreal-London return fare, group economy, will be $234, down $65 from $299, but Victoria-London is reduced $200 to $339 from $539. Edmonton-Paris drops to $318 from $535 and Victoria-Moscow is down to $428 from $810.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines this week proposed major group fare reductions on flights between Canada and Europe and the Orient.

The bulk of the passenger fare reductions would be for large groups. CPA said the reductions would range from 48 per cent to 25 per cent.

CPA gave as an example a reduction in first-class passenger fare one-way between Amsterdam and Vancouver to $526 from the present $579. The Vancouver - Tokyo excursion round-trip fare would be $486 instead of present rates which vary between $822 and $760 depending on the season.

Trip to Land of Sun, Fun

PORTLAND, Ore. — Spring will be "bursting out all over" in Arizona's desert country when Trailways' "Painted Desert Holiday" tour takes off from here on its annual 17-day "trek" that takes its participants to the land of sun — and points that offer plenty of fun.

This annual "pilgrimage" to the land of cacti, sand and petrified woods is a Trailways "Green Carpet" special, which annually becomes ever more popular.

There are five such tours scheduled this year. One in late March, four in April. All are meticulously chosen so as to reach the desert when its cacti and wild flowers are in full bloom and their most radiant colors.

'FAR-OUT' TOUR

Some say that is probably the "most far out" tour ever offered under the name, "Painted Desert Holiday," and it is. But look at all the action you get out of these fun-packed 17 days!

The idea, its operators explain, is to get to the southwest desert not the quickest way but over the most interesting and attractive route from Portland.

To accomplish this Trailways has scheduled its tour to move straight down the Oregon and California coasts, through the redwood empire, and on to gay and sophisticated San Francisco, with the entire 17-day trip to be made by daylight so everything of interest may be seen.

After two nights in San Francisco, the tour will continue past Monterey Bay and on to picturesque Carmel-by-the-Sea by way of the fabulously scenic 17-mile drive in the Del Monte Forest.

This escorted tour will visit Hearst's castle-like San Simeon Estate and after an escorted tour of the establishment, it will go on to Santa Barbara for an overnight stay. Then will come a visit to Hollywood, Los Angeles, Marineland, Disneyland, and Knott's Berry Farm.

The following two full days will be spent in Palm Springs, with one day to be devoted entirely to relaxation and rest in the sun.

After this will come Phoenix, and finally the climax of the tour will be experienced when the "express" reaches its destination — a two-day never-to-be-forgotten visit in the desert.

These two days will be spent visiting the Painted Desert, not far from Petrified Forest National Monument, with its fantastic region of banded rocks of many hues, carved by wind and rain into scores of shapes and forms. Another point of interest on this itinerary is the world-renowned Grand Canyon.

Tourist Trade Eyes $1 Billion Year

Canada's tourist trade goal of one billion export dollars on 1967 is a realistic estimate, judging by the 1966 returns that have been submitted by provinces and territories, according to Dan Wallace, director of the Canadian government travel bureau.

"Present estimates are that this year's tourist income will be of the order of $800 million, the highest in Canadian history," the director pointed out, 'and that figure doesn't take into account the amount of money generated by Canadians travelling in their own country. During the first six months of 1966, 10,592,016 Americans crossed the border into Canada, compared to 9,604,684 during the same period in 1965.

"But the most surprising revelation is the sharp increase in the number of visitors from countries other than the United States. This year, for the first time, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has provided figures on the number of these visitors who enter Canada via the United States, and it has been found that 62 per cent enter this way. The number of direct entries is also up by 14.8 per cent, bringing the grand total of visitors from countries other than the United States to 295,006 for the first eight months of 1966."

CHRISTMAS AT SEA

Spend New Years In New Zealand

Two P & O ships, the superliner Oriana and the Orsova, will sail from west coast ports for Australia and summer "Down Under" in mid-December.

The Oriana leaves from Vancouver on Monday, Dec. 12 for San Francisco where she will meet the Orsova. Both ships depart San Francisco on Dec. 15.

Heavy last minute bookings are anticipated for both ships due to the Qantas Airways strike which began Nov. 24.

Oriana will arrive in Sydney at 8 a.m. on New Year's Eve, after calling at Los Angeles, Honolulu, Suva and Auckland. The Orsova, inbound from the UK via the Panama Canal, sails directly for Honolulu missing Vancouver. She arrives in Australia at 8 a.m. Jan. 2. Canadians can join the ship in either U.S. port.

Kenneth L. Chamberlain, Canadian manager for P & O, said that both sailings are expected to be attractive in view of the fact that, with holidays and weekends, only 10 working days are needed to make the voyage to Australia. Passengers will also have an opportunity to celebrate a traditional British Christmas at sea.

Bookings on either ship can be made through P & O offices in Vancouver or through travel agents.

Bell Phone Hour Profiles Orchestra On Sunday Telecast

The Cleveland Orchestra and its renowned conductor, George Szell, will be profiled in a new Bell Telephone Hour color special Sunday at 6:30 p.m., on Channel 5.

Titled: "The Cleveland Orchestra: One Man's Triumph," the program will explore this musical organization which — within two decades — has won the acclaim of music-lovers and critics both here and abroad for the magnificent music they consistently perform. Irving Kolodin, music editor of the Saturday Review and noted author, will act as narrator for the program.

"We start rehearsing where the vast majority of orchestras finish performing," Szell has said. With this statement as a working premise, the camera scans the rehearsal studios and auditorium of Severance Hall in Wade Park. Unrehearsed sequences show Szell, seated at the piano, and concertmaster Rafael Druian as they prepare Alban Berg's "Violin Concerto" and Szell and associate conductor Louis Lane as they discuss a planned recording. Settling for nothing less than perfection, Szell is often a fire-eating taskmaster. An informal scene shows him with young conductors Stephen Foreman, James Levine and Michael Charry as they go through their paces.

Ed Sullivan Show

The Supremes, Red Buttons, Gary Lewis and the Playboys, Lainie Kazan, the Harlem Globetrotters and special guest stars Robert Merrill and Jan Peerce will perform on "The Ed Sullivan Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

The Brothers Tonito and Miss Mara, tightrope and trapeze acts, respectively, round out the program. The Supremes, singing trio who have done concerts at New York's Philharmonic Hall, will present their current record hit, "You Keep Me Hangin' On."

Red Buttons, comedy and acting star, will deliver a humorous monologue.

Gary Lewis, in his last television appearance before entering the army, will present his latest record hit, "Paint Me a Picture," along with the Playboys.

Lainie Kazan, night-club and television singer, will offer a medley of popular tunes.

The Harlem Globetrotters will give a humorous demonstration of their basketball skills.

Youth Today

Barbara Ward, author, economist and social critic, discusses youth in today's society on "Lamp Unto My Feet" Sunday at 8 a.m. on Channel 7.

The broadcast, entitled "Challenge and Change: The World of Modern Youth," was taped in Detroit.

Subjects to be discussed include neighborhood problems of youth in an urban society, the political convictions of young people, their motivations and actions in an international society, and their problems of finding meaning and values in faith in a technological society.

FELONY SQUAD

High-Rated Show Reads From Life

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This week Felony Squad featured a story about a vigilante group that maintained an arsenal of arms for use against "left-wing" organizations.

Another segment of the ABC television series deals with a psychotic who launches a sniping attack from atop a tower.

Does this sound as if Felony Squad is stealing its plots from the headlines? Executive producer Walter Grauman claims innocence.

In both cases, he testifies, the shows were filmed before the news events they parallelled.

This sort of thing worries Grauman, a dark, well-dressed veteran of the TV and movie wars. He directed chapters of The Untouchables and Naked City as well as the film Lady in a Cage. He wonders how many other Felony Squad plots will achieve reality.

Felony Squad, original title: Men Against Evil, appears to be a success in a virtually hitless new season. At least the show has managed a respectable rating. It is one of the three newcomers to land in the top 40. Others: Rat Patrol, Family Affair.

HAS A DIFFERENCE

Credit for the achievement goes to Grauman. His original concept:

"It's a cops-and-robbers show, but with a difference. The police have an emotional relationship to each other and to the case that they're on. I wanted the contrast between a mature detective, Howard Duff, who operates by instinct, and a younger one, Dennis Cole, who goes by the book. He has been taught to do so by his father, played by Ben Alexander, who is an old-time cop.

"The show is given a style of harsh realism by using real locations as much as possible. I think of it as an action show, and I like to keep 50 per cent of it in movement. I hammer at the writers: Let us learn about the characters in action."

The success of Felony Squad may have influenced NBC's decision to bring back Dragnet in January. The show will have Jack Webb back as Sgt. Friday, of course, but he'll have a new sidekick, Harry Morgan, since Ben Alexander is now employed in another show-biz arm of the Los Angeles police department.

'Lion and the Eagle'

European Television Brings Fresh Report On U.K.-U.S. Alliance

A study of today's Anglo-American alliance is the subject of a Rediffusion Television documentary for Intertel entitled "The Lion and the Eagle," to be presented Wednesday at 10 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

Although naturalists might dispute the claim that the lion and the eagle could establish a congenial relationship, historians looking at the past quarter-century would not.

For during the period from 1941 to the present the alliance between the British Lion and the American Eagle—although strained somewhat at certain intervals — has been a signal even in the history of international relations.

The film porgram is written and narrated by Alistair Cooke, moted interpreter of the American scene for the British and vice versa. Executive producer is Lord Windlesham and director is Randal Beattie.

"Pearl Harbor," says Cooke, "was not a beginning (of the 'special relationship') . . . but marked a new and dramatic simplification of a relationship that has been maintained down three centuries . . . Most Britons divide the rest of the world into foreigners and Americans. When Americans are thought to be in the wrong, they are all the more to blame because they are felt to be still in the family."

Crucial Times

The program covers such crucial moments during the 1941-1966 era as the first Churchill-Roosevelt conference, the Allied invasion of Europe, V-E and V-J Days, the Korean war, the Cuban missile crisis and the Viet Nam war. It also focuses on events that strained the alliance at times: the McMahon act, involving sharing of nuclear data by the U.S.; the Suez crisis; and differences of opinion about mainland China.

Among the major figures seen against this historical backdrop are such men as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Clement Atlee, Harry S. Truman, Anthony Eden, Harold Macmillan, John F. Kennedy, Harold Wilson and Lyndon B. Johnson.

"We hope that this program will make people take a new look at an old theme," says Cooke, "and make them appreciate that, whether for good or ill, the relations between the Lion and the Eagle have been, and remain, a very special relationship."

Special Week

A truly special week of broadcasts will be the pre-holiday gift offering of the CBS Television Network to viewers when four distinguished, completely contrasting specials in color, performed by the most acclaimed names in their respective theatrical milieus, are presented on consecutive nights this week.

The first of the programs which will make these four evenings something special on both senses of the word is "S. Hurok Presents," a 90-minute musical tribute to impresario Sol Hurok, Tuesday (9:30 p.m. on Channel 7 and 10:30 p.m. on Channel 12).

Honoring Hurok and his role in advancing cultural relations between the United States and foreign countries will be pianist Van Cliburn, violinist Isaac Stern, guitarist Andres Segovia, prima ballerina Maya Plisetskaya and the members of the Bolshoi Ballet, Antonio and the Ballets de Madrid and singer Marian Anderson in her television debut as a narrator, narrating Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait." Music director is Alfred Wallenstein.

The following night, Wednesday (9 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12), the network will present a full hour by the master of song, "Frank Sinatra: a Man and His Music— Part 2."

The broadcast produced by Emmy Award winner Dwight Hemion, will focus on an all-new program of songs by the performer who is a legend in his own time. Appearing as a special guest with her father will be Nancy Sinatra, whose singing star is shining increasingly brighter.

On Thursday, 9 p.m. on Channel 7 and 12, the network will offer a two-hour broadcast of Tennessee William's drama "The Glass Menagerie." The playwright adapted his own work for this television performance, which stars Shirly Booth as Amanda Wingfield, Hal Holbrook as her son Tom, Barbara Loden as her daughter Laura and Pat Hingle as the Gentleman Caller.

The quartet of very special specials to be performed by the network concludes with a re-broadcast of a program particularly germane to the Christmas season — "The Nutcracker," with the music by Tchaikovsky that has made it one of the most popular of all ballets. The fairy tale by E. T. A. Hoffmann, to be presented Friday at 7:30 p.m. on channels 7 and 12, is performed under the musical direction of Franz Allers by an international cast of dancers, with Edward Villella, Melissa Hayden and Patricia McBride of the New York City Ballet in the leading roles.

Sunday Sports

Pro Football: 10 a.m. (5) Chargers vs. Oilers or Bills vs. Patriots; 10:15 a.m. (7, 12) 49-ers vs. Packers; 11 a.m. (2, 6) Bears vs. Colts; 12:45 p.m. (7, 12) Cardinals vs. Cowboys.

ASK RITHET'S

Q. How should I be sure that my insurance coverage is adequate.

A. We cannot do better than to quote the current Canada Trust Bulletin put out for the information of its senior officers and friends.

FIRE ALARM

Experience in examining fire insurance programs on estate properties coming under our administration causes us to view with alarm the inadequate coverage carried by many property owners. No one can deny that the cost of building has advanced steadily since World War II, but often this is not considered by the owner when reviewing his insurance plan.

Examine your own present coverage and ask yourself these questions.

Does the policy cover simply the value of the building after deducting an allowance for depreciation, or would it provide sufficient funds to replace the destroyed building with one of similar size and appointments? Unless specifically provided, the insurance company would settle on the depreciated value which in an old building could be as little as 30% of replacement value.

In case of loss, is there readily available a comparatively up-to-date appraisal of the insured building? Such an appraisal is almost invaluable as evidence in support of a claim.

If the contract includes a co-insurance clause, is there evidence that your part of the contract has been fulfilled so that you do not become liable as a co-insurer? Here again an up-to-date appraisal is of value.

If the property is rented, is there rent insurance to cover the period of rebuilding during which there is no income return?

In conjunction with this, does the lease clearly define the respective positions of both the owner and the tenant in case of fire?

Has a recent inventory of furnishings and equipment been made? The preparation of such a list after loss occurs is difficult and the result inaccurate. Home owners in particular should have such an inventory.

Fire departments, by constant checking of hazards, have materially reduced the number of disastrous conflagrations, but the danger can never be fully eliminated. Losses, even in premises described as "fireproof", can run into astronomical figures.

Time spent in checking the different aspects of one's fire insurance and in seeking expert advice on the subject can prove to be of incalculable benefit.

We at Rithets will be happy to give the advice to which Canada Trust refers without obligation to you.

Ask Rithet's for real satisfaction.

HOME BUILDING

Plants Soften Foundations

By JACK BEASTALL

There is no disputing the fact that plants are essential around the foundation of a building to soften the severe lines and make a transition from building to garden.

Jack

This is called a foundation planting, a form of garden design that has been stressed by horticultural writers to a point where the average gardener is afraid to ignore it.

Because of this we see all kinds of suitable and unsuitable plants in a narrow strip of soil struggling for light, air, and moisture.

To survive, they have to stretch out from the walls, and their long growths soon become troublesome as they reach over paths or lawns.

On the average single city lot there is not enough room between the sidewalls of a building and the property fence for shrubs and a path.

The only plants that can be used to decorate the bare walls are those which can be attached or are able to cling.

Even when these are used there will always be some growths which tend to reach straight out for light and air, and at the same time obstruct free passageway along the adjacent path.

INTERFERENCE

Success with these true climbers and plants which have to be artificially attached to walls can only be achieved by constant interference.

The gardener must continually remove all those shoots which grow in an unwanted direction.

If this is done right from the start we have that pleasing effect we all enjoy. If it is not done we soon have a plant which is a source of annoyance.

This is especially true of some roses, all peach trees, and many of the so-called wall shrubs.

BLANK SPACES

Outward reaching growths that are needed for filling blank spaces or replacing old growths which have passed their period of usefulness should be trained while they are young and pliable, that is from the time the shoot appears on the main stem.

If the shoot is not needed for covering or replacement, it should be cut off before it reaches a size that will be a nuisance. Nothing is gained, and often a lot is lost, when we allow an unnecessary, unwanted shoot to develop.

In the early stages of growth the young shoot can be nipped out with the thumbnail and no unsightly scar will be left. This is something that can be done whenever we happen to be passing.

FOUNDATION

Many gardeners look upon the Lawson's Cypress in its many forms as being plants to use near a foundation.

These are botanically Chamaecyparis lawsoniana, with such varietal names as Ellwoodi, Fletcheri, Alumi and others.

Usually sold as compact little conical plants, they have eye appeal which the home gardener finds difficult to resist.

The point one has to remember is that these are not shrubs. They are trees grown from cuttings of juvenile foliage which gives them their characteristic texture and color.

They always will be trees which continue to grow until they reach an ultimate height of 30 to 75 feet according to type.

This means that given satisfactory conditions they will be up to the eaves of the average one-storey house (approximately 15 feet) in about 10 years, with a spread of from five to six feet at the base.

NATURAL SHAPE

The beauty of these conifers (for they are cone-bearing trees) lies in their natural shape, and while they can be clipped twice a year from infancy to improve the density of growth, it is not possible to prune off sections, or stop their upward growth by removing the tops, without completely spoiling their character.

When used for foundation planting they must be given space to develop naturally. Planting should be six feet from the foundation and four to six feet from any window, doorway, or footpath.

If a tree higher than 10 feet would be unsuitable for the position, the gardener will have to remove a Lawson Cypress after eight to 10 years.

CONICAL SHRUB

This is a major undertaking as many have already discovered, and the cute little conical "shrub," which cost 98 cents at planting time, could in 10 years require $30 to $50 for removal by day labor.

In addition to this expense, there is the unsightly gap which has to be filled with something large and costly to match the rest of the planting, and the disturbance of other plants and the lawn to get out the extensive root system.

The moral is to use the right kind of plants in the first place, plants that will naturally stay in proportion to the building they are to embrace, or can be kept within bounds by regular pruning and training.

BOOK STAND that doubles as a lamp holder makes attractive Christmas present. Books and other small goods may be stored in shelves behind tiny doors of the eight-sided table.

FURNITURE GIFT ALWAYS WELCOME

For all occasions, but expecially at Christmas, a piece of furniture makes an entirely appropiate gift.

It's well, however, to choose a gift of furniture in awareness of the prospective owner's needs, and with a thought for where it may be placed in an existing interior.

It's a wise precaution, if shopping for a furniture gift to fill some particular corner of the house, to be sure of the size of the area for which the new piece is intended. Shippers will find they can purchase occasional furniture in an enormous variety of shapes and sizes; having an idea of the needed dimensions beforehand makes the job of finding the "perfect" piece even easier.

There's a wide choice of finishes, too. The Fontiane group, a collection from Henredon Furniture Industries, contains something like thirty occasional pieces, most of which can be bought in either of two wood finishes as well as a charming painted finish, Antique Green and White.

One of the prettiest pieces from this group — a 16-inch high cocktail table that would be an ideal present — comes seven different ways, from a practical weathered mahogany finish that would suit an informal family interior to an utterly elegant version with a top of dusky marble and base of gilt-embellished amber mahogany. Its price is as pleasing as its appearance — starting at an approximate retail of $75 in one of the wood-finished versions.

NARROW SPACE

An attractive item that any woman would welcome as a present is a console, especially designed to fill an narrow space in foyer or living room. Though only 11 inches in depth, it's so well scaled at 20 inches wide and 30 inches high that it makes an important-looking accent piece — especially in the Antique White and Green paint finish.

A good gift for the busy committee woman with lots of letters to write would be a desk. If designed to look beautiful both back and front, like the exquisite example in Antique Walnut finish from the Beauvais collection, she will find it particularly useful in her living room, as it can be placed in a bay, or stand away from the wall as a divider.

ARMCHAIR POPULAR

Many people think that the nicest gift of all is a comfortable armchair. To celebrate a memorable occasion, it's a good thought for members of a family to pool their resources and buy a really handsome upholstered chair for the head of the house; if a matching ottoman is included the purchase will repay in comfort and ease every dollar that was spent on it.

Another good gift idea is a pair of chairs of the pull-up type; these are coming increasingly into use in the home, as they are easier to move around than the conventional, big armchair, and so are particularly appreciated by older people.

MOTHER'S DAY

A single chair, set on casters for mobility, would be a marvellous Mother's Day gift — there isn't a woman alive who would not be charmed by the gift of such seating in her bedroom, so that she can occasionally retreat from the demands of her loving family and sit down by herself in comfort and privacy!

There's no better gift for a bride, or a pair of newly-weds whose first home may be furnished with only the bare essentials for living, than a mobile server. Without taking up a great deal of space, such a server handily stores crystal, china, table mats and trays and often, table silver; the heat-proof serving area means that it can perform as the bride's first buffet.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Such planting as is possible should be continued; be sure soil is firm, around roots; stake and tie wherever necessary.

Ventilate coldframes and greenhouse freely whenever possible. In dull weather water sparingly and be careful not to have temperature too high or growth will be soft and weak.

Potted bulbs for Christmas need more warmth now to bring them along into bud.

Plant hardy ferns in shaded or partially shaded places. The large kinds look well against patio walls in shade.

Pot up lily bulbs into deep pots of rich humusy soil, and root them in cool part of the greenhouse. Water sparingly until top growth begins.

Winter cabbage and brussels sprouts can be given a liquid feeding if weather is mild. See that these plants are still firm in the soil.

Decorated Ceilings Are In Once More

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ceiling fashions have come full cycle again, according to a housing historian.

Decorative ceilings, which reached their zenith during the Renaissance and have been "in" and "out" at various periods since, are "in" again, says Ted Seidel, of Allied Chemical Corporation's Barrett Division.

But with one big difference, says Seidel. Today's decorative ceilings are functional as well as pleasing to the eye.

"The plain plaster or simply painted ceiling is once more giving way to decorative treatment, but this time the beautifying material — fiberboard tiles — serves a practical as well as decorative purpose," he says.

"Today's ceiling tiles not only enhance the appearance of a room, but are also designed to add to the serenity of the surroundings by absorbing unpleasant noises. The tiles do this by trapping sound waves in thousands of tiny perforations."

TODAY'S TIPS

Installing today's ceiling tiles is a simple task for the home-owner, according to Seidel, who offers these tips on procedure:

—To determine the number of tiles needed, multiply the length of the ceiling by its width. For example, a ceiling measuring 12 by 15 feet will require 180 one-foot-square tiles. The tiles can be trimmed to fit areas less than one square foot and to go around protrusions such as lighting fixtures.

—If the ceiling is level and its surface smooth, the tiles can be cemented directly to it.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. I have tried to grow lavender from seed, but without success. How can I now grow some new plants for next year? — Mrs. J. N. V., Victoria.

A. Lavender seed is usually easy to germinate, since it remains viable for three to four years. However, cuttings about three inches long of current year's growth are taken in September, or try a few now. Insert them in a pot of damp sand and keep in greenhouse or sunroom over winter.

When rooted, pot up singly and the little plants will be ready to put out into the garden during May.

Cuttings taken in April will root more readily, usually in about three weeks in a warm place, but gardeners are more busy at that time and those rooted during winter will be out in the coldframe by the busy spring weeks.

Clean House Safer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Litterbugs are responsible for more than 40,000 fires in homes across the country each year, reports Keep America Beautiful, Inc. KAB notes that the litterbug, in addition to marring the beauty of the country, is a potential firebug in the home.

Fires started or fed by litter, says KAB, destroy or damage a home in the United States every 12 minutes. According to the National Fire Protection Association, one out every 12 fires starts in rubbish.

Sculptured Walls

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walls now have a new dimension — depth — says the Tile Council of America. U.S.-made ceramic tile with concave and convex surfaces are used to achieve a "sculptured wall" effect.

FLUORIDATION

STATEMENT OF POLICY

"In the Interests of Public Welfare"

and by reason of the continuing attempts by groups and individuals to promote a program of fluoridation of public water supplies, the Chiropractors' Association of British Columbia feels obliged to issue the following statement:

We are unalterably opposed to the fluoridation of public water supplies.

The major point in issue is not the beneficial versus the harmful effects of fluoridation. It is whether or not we are to permit our water supply to become a vehicle for products, used in the treatment or prevention of disease, other than for purification. If the addition of fluoride is permitted for dental caries, can we refuse medications for other diseases?

Fluoridation of public water supplies amounts to compulsory mass medication, without diagnosis, for a disease, dental caries, which authorities agree is not due to a deficiency of fluorine. The right of individuals to select or reject for themselves the type of health care they receive would be eliminated. The large percentage of voters who have rejected fluoridation would be compelled to use floridated water against their wishes.

Fluoridation of public water supplies is a most inaccurate and indiscriminate means of attempting to provide protection against dental caries. Proponents of fluoridation recommend a daily dosage of 1.0 milligrams of fluoride. Administration of this accurate dosage would be impossible through fluoridation of water supplies.

Fluoridation of public water supplies would be economically wasteful. All water being fluoridated, approximately 99% would be lost through industrial use, sprinkling lawns, washing streets, etc., only 1% would be used for drinking purposes, and not more than ¼th of this portion would be consumed by children who may benefit.

It has been suggested that the addition of fluorine in water is no different than the addition of chlorine in water or iodine in salt—this is not so—chlorine is for purification and non-iodized salt is available, but where could one buy non-fluoridated water?

There are alternative methods whereby those who wish may provide fluoride for their children. These alternatives maintain the principles of freedom of choice, freedom from waste and accuracy of dosage, none of which can be said for fluoridation. Fluoride tablets, containing the recommended 1 mg. daily dosage are available at a cost of approximately 21 cents per child per year (as in Saskatchewan). Fluoride could be added to selected quantities of milk, which procedure would compare with the existing practice of fortifying milk with Vitamin D.

We urge you to consider this matter seriously, and in view of alternate methods available, strongly reject all attempts to fluoridate public water supplies.

The Chiropractors' Association of British Columbia.

Arthur Mayse

The other evening we finally got to Dr. Zhivago, a feat which should have earned us a bumper sticker of the sort bestowed on those who have viewed the Peace River dam and other man-made monoliths.

If you have already seen this Hollywood super-epic you'll know what I mean. If you haven't, better catch up on your sleep before you undertake it. Me, I didn't, and in consequence napped three times (once audibly, I'm told) before the ever-loving doctor's long, long trail had finished winding.

Unless you're the sort who can carry a dozen equations or a grocery shopping list in your head, I suggest you also go armed with notepad and pencil. It will help you keep the dramatis personae of Soviet writer Boris Pasternak's tale sorted out.

First, there is Yuri Zhivago, a GP whose medical practice gets almost totally neglected throughout the film. Then there is Lara, a girl who can't say no. Young Doc Zhivago isn't very good at saying no either, and these related circumstances give the story its pliant backbone.

There is a heavy called Victor, whom Lara couldn't say no to either, but shoots non-lethally in revenge for her mother, a redhead who, like her daughter, was apparently slow with a "Nyet."

Give Zhivago a wife — this is Tanya — wed Lara to Trotskyite revolutionary Strelnikov — toss in a few diminutives longer than the characters' given names — and you begin to yearn for the relative simplicity of War and Peace.

But we aren't done yet.

Now, add Lara's daughter by Victor, open and close with Lara's other daughter whom Zhivago fathered, season with priests, peasants, partisans and police, and we have such a mixup as can be achieved only by a writer with a long Siberian winter to fill.

To get you in the right mood, the story opens with a funeral, and a worm's-eye view of Zhivago's mother in her coffin under the earth, a sequence which strengthened my already firm conviction that cremation's the only way.

I don't recall any comedy scenes. If there were such, they must have lightened the Slavic gloom while I was dozing in my scandalously over-priced seat.

There are, however, certain touches of unintended humor.

For one plagued by a tendency to laugh at the wrong times, the indefatigable doctor's dashes from wife to mistress proved a sore trial.

We see Zhivago, now reduced to a peasant-type life in a community with a tongue-twister name, sorting potatoes by the hearth he shares with his wife, child and father-in-law.

He gets up. He paces. He makes some silly little excuse, then hurries outside to where a remarkably fine horse has apparently been waiting, pre-saddled, for this moment.

Then he's off at a wild gallop down the road, and when we pick him up next, he and Lara are snuggled in their adulterous nest asking each other tragically what they should do.

To any but the tender-hearted viewer sniffling on my non-wife side this question might seem superfluous, since it is obvious that they've already done it.

This sort of hanky-panky continues through several such mad coursings from farm to town. Then the partisans catch him, and we are shown Dr. Zhivago, for the first time in what seems... hours and hours, actually practising his medical profession.

The scenery, which isn't Russian but a montage of Finland, Spain and I believe some bleaker reaches of Canada, is wonderful.

But I could wish those who translated the book to film had taken time to answer a couple of questions.

How, in the midst of a revolution, did the doc and his girl acquire those splendid furs? Also, is it really possible to ride all those nights and days in a crowded cattle-car and step out fresh as a daisy?

TAKING THE LID OFF "police injustices" today was aldermanic candidate Bill Scott. The city's "lighthouse philosopher" stood atop a black coffin outside city hall and proclaimed to a handful of listeners: "Inside this coffin are locked the many police injustices." Mr. Scott, who was fined $10 this week for an infraction of the Pawnbrokers' Act, declared: "A curse shall light upon the limbs of all stool pigeon policemen."

More Unions Demand O'Neal Resign Post

Up-Island Council Protests Bug Use

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Fresh demands were made today for E. P. O'Neal to resign from the executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The new moves come on the eve of a royal commission inquiring into the union bugging affair early last month in Vancouver.

Hearings by the commission will begin in Vancouver Monday.

'QUITE A FUROR'

The Duncan - Nanaimo Labour Council passed a motion at its meeting Friday night demanding Mr. O'Neal's resignation.

Council president Fernie Viala of Duncan announced the decision today.

"There was quite a furor," he said. "We feel labor should clean up its own house."

In Victoria, the 700-member Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters also passed a motion calling for Mr. O'Neal's resignation.

MEETING WEDNESDAY

The local is writing to the Victoria Labor Council with the motion and it will come before the council's meeting Wednesday night, along with similar correspondence from other groups.

In Duncan, the executive of the 4,000-member Local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America will hold an executive meeting Monday night on the subject.

In a personal opinion, local president Weldon Jubenville said he wants to "dissociate myself from O'Neal or any other union official who would . . . hire private detectives to spy on their fellow workers."

NO REPLY

Syd Thompson, president of 7,000-member Vancouver local of the IWA, has written the B.C. Federation of Labor saying he has received no reply to his first communication.

In his first letter, he suggested the federation request Mr. O'Neal's resignation and "publicly condemn" him.

The federation issued a press statement saying it will not comment "on the guilt or innocence of any member of the labor movement" until all the evidence is heard."

Mr. Thompson said Mr. O'Neal's admitted hiring of a detective alone warrants his "isolation" from the labor movement and he "strongly" suggested the federation "get off the fence."

Earlier, Mr. O'Neal advised his critics to await the evidence before the royal commission.

A private detective admitted last month that he placed electronic bugs in convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

He said Mr. O'Neal, the former secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, paid him $250.

Mr. O'Neal, regional organizer of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, admitted hiring the detective.

But he denied knowledge that electronic bugs would be used.

NO TRACE OF MISSING HOTEL CLERK

City police have been asked to trace a man who went missing after he left work at the Churchill Hotel last Sunday morning.

Missing without a trace is Wilbert Maier, 45, of 835 Craigflower, a night clerk.

Mr. Maier left work last Sunday at 7:15 a.m. He had no money and wore only his working clothes. His car, a black Oldsmobile, licence No. 10-249, was parked outside the hotel.

He was expected to return home but never arrived. His car has not been spotted either.

Mr. Maier is 5 feet 6 inches tall, 115 pounds and dark complexioned. He has black hair and wears glasses.

BED FIRE CLAIMS PENSIONER

A 77-year-old pensioner found lying on his smouldering mattress Thursday afternoon was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

City police are still trying to locate any next of kin of Charles Dundas, lone occupant of apartment 10 at 1216 Fort St.

Investigation officers reported the man was known to consistently smoke in bed.

Discovery of the smoke-shrouded body came after a neighboring tenant, Clarence Tricker, spotted smoke. He and caretaker Tom Craddock forced open the door of Dundas' room and found him lying motionless on his bed, the mattress aflame.

He was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by city ambulance where a doctor pronounced him dead. The firemen said they believed him dead before they reached the scene.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre has ordered a post mortem examination. No word on whether an inquest will be held was immediately available.

Times Man Wins Double Award

Peter Loudon of the Victoria Daily Times was named winner Friday night of a $250 journalism award made by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

He received the award for a series of articles on financial difficulties faced by hospitals.

He also won honorable mention and $100 for a series on property taxes.

In 1964 Mr. Loudon won the firm's top award of $500 for his articles on the B.C. forest industry.

POLLUTION SERIES

This year's main award went to Arnie Myers of the Vancouver Sun for a series on air and water pollution problems. Paul St. Pierre of the Vancouver Sun won honorable mention for a feature on the economics of B.C. cattle ranching.

The awards are presented annually for outstanding articles, columns, news stories or editorials on business and industry.

QUALITY WRITING

Element considered by the judges in deciding merit are promotion of public understanding or enlightenment on questions relating to business and industry, public service, outstanding resourcefulness and quality of writing.

The 1966 awards were presented by MacMillan Bloedel at a ceremony in Vancouver given by the Newsmen's Club of B.C. and attended by former lieutenant-governor Frank Ross.

Funeral Monday

Mrs. Nellie Whitney-Griffiths, a former teacher at St. Margaret's School, died Thursday at the age of 79.

Mrs. Whitney-Griffiths, of 3981 Metchosin Road, is survived by her husband William, one son and three grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at St. Mary's Church in Metchosin.

Sentiment Over Lagoon Called Plain Nonsense

Reeve Hugh Curtis today flayed the "sentimental nonsense" being talked about expropriation of 40 acres of land in Metchosin owned by the Witty brothers.

He said it is "cold cash" and not "warm sentiment" that prevents the Wittys from reaching agreement with the Capital District Regional Board.

He said that from the way some persons have been talking "you would think the board is expropriating the old homestead."

In fact, he pointed out, no one has lived on the land in living memory until Stanley Witty moved there a year ago.

And he only lives on it in a trailer.

Reeve Curtis, chairman of the regional board, said the Wittys have tried to sell the property in the past.

"The question is not whether or not they want to sell but the price they want for their property.

FAIR PRICE

"I'm sure we would have no difficulty in getting the land if we offered $300,000. But a professional appraisal decided that $100,000 is a fair price. We can't possibly offer two or three times that figure when we are dealing with public funds."

Negotiations have been going on for 15 years without success and the board finally, this week, resorted to expropriation. The board wants the property for parkland. It has offered $100,000.

Stanley and Leslie Witty, members of the pioneer family that has owned the property for 100 years, have refused the offer, saying they already have been offered $175,000 for the land.

Some Metchosin residents have criticized the expropriation and, in particular, the action of Geoffrey Mitchell, the Metchosin representative on the board, who voted for the expropriation.

Mr. Mitchell said today that his only criticism of the expropriation is that the price offered is too high.

"I doubt if any developer would offer $100,000 for that property."

He said that if the Wittys really want to live on the land they could negotiate with the board to hold on to some acreage on which to build homes.

He pointed out that the old Witty homestead is on another parcel of land unaffected by the expropriation. Leslie Witty has lived in Port Angeles for the past 20 years. Stanley Witty lived for many years at Terrace and now says he wants to live on the family property.

In any event, added Reeve Curtis, expropriation only ensures that the board becomes owner of the property. The price tag for the land will eventually be decided, not by the board's offer, but by an independent arbitration.

Reeve Curtis summed up: "All the sentimental nonsense that is being talked is a smokescreen to obscure the real issue. It's purely a question of price."

Q. What is the Canadian Government Travel Bureau and what does it do? C. J. M.

A. The Canadian Government Travel Bureau is a federal agency charged with broad powers over tourist promotion. She's Plucked Her Last Ship From Jaws of a Killer Sea

By AB KENT

One of the coast's most famous ships makes its last and shortest voyage next week — across Victoria Harbor to the shipwrecker's yard.

Ss. Sudbury — a legend in marine salvage work during her 12 years, seven months under the flag of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. — will be broken up by Capital Iron and Metals Ltd. for her scrap content.

Costly boiler work would have been required to keep the 2,700-horsepower vessel in service. Another factor which sealed Sudbury's fate is a modernization and replacement program undertaken by ITB.

Island Tug was stripping some of the useable gear and machinery from Sudbury this week.

Next week a couple of harbor tugs will nose her alongside Capital Iron's dock, joining another hull with markings once shared by both ships.

The ex-naval escort there now is a later version of what Sudbury started out to be, a Second World War corvette.

"She had a wonderful war record and she's always been a comfortable ship," said ITB founder H. B. Elworthy, a trace of sentiment in his voice.

It was Sudbury, in her role as a fully equipped marine salvage vessel, one of the most powerful on the coast, that clinched Island's reputation as a rescuer.

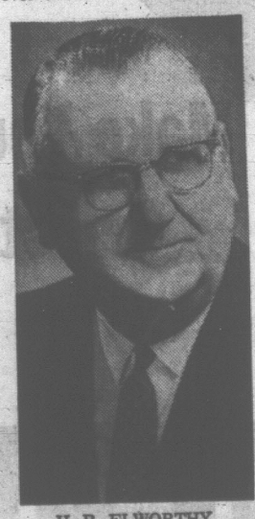
In more than a decade of winter storms that frequently trapped North Pacific shipping, Sudbury consistently plucked broken ships from the jaws of the tempest.

Her most epic accomplishment in some 40 days of turbulence was the salvage of Ss. Makedonia, which Sudbury brought to harbor after 3,000 miles of towing.

That was in November, 1955, just 19 months after ITB got her in a trade for a derrick barge and half a dozen sailing ship hulks that were to be used for barges.

Between dramatic salvage trips reaching deep into the Pacific, Sudbury took part in some record-breaking tows — across the Pacific to Japan, into the Caribbean and back up and down the seaboard.

When she and Island Sovereign brought four old freighters up from Lake Maracaibo in line astern, the tow measured 1½ miles as the procession passed the Golden Gate, then the longest ever tried.



H. B. ELWORTHY
. . . 'who gambled?'

The Japanese voyages, towing scrap-filled hulls to be broken up for the steel industry, came to some 9,000 miles per round trip.

Island Tug obtained the ship in April, 1954. It had already been converted to a towing vessel and was so registered in 1949.

Badwater Towing Co., a subsidiary of Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd., bought her after the war with three other corvettes which were sold in Belgium.

C-Z used her to tow Davis rafts from up-coast, and she set a record doing that, too.

The logging company spent $200,000 fitting her out, the changes made with a view to her becoming a salvage vessel.

One of the handicaps under which Sudbury worked on long voyages was lack of fuel. She could make up to 21 days without refueling, compared with 56 days for her "sister" ship Sudbury II.

Sudbury is a triple expansion steam-powered vessel, while Sudbury II has four main diesels that turn up 4,000 horsepower.

ITB is careful to point out that selling Sudbury doesn't mean the firm is abdicating the salvage business. Her Sudbury II is capable of far more than the pioneering Sudbury, which set a hard-to-match pattern.

"I wasn't gambling," the senior Elworthy said. "Everybody else thought I was, but I had confidence in the ship and the crew."

His link with Sudbury will remain tangible. As the wrecker's torch cuts into her innards, Sudbury's former owner will be able to stroll along his porch overlooking the sea on Beach Drive where the ship's wheel, compass, telegraph, binoculars and other bridge gear will be mounted.

And the public will be able to see another souvenir to be rescued from the ship. Her twin whistle is going to B.C.Maritime Museum as the first of what is hoped to be a collection of whistles from B.C. shipping.

Capt. Roy Blake, who shipped in Sudbury as both mate and master, and shares with Capt. Harley Blagborne the longest time in command, reckons Sudbury steamed nearly 200,000 miles in ITB service.

"It doesn't matter if it is the old Sudbury or an old car. If you work with them so long you become attached to them and there is a sort of sentiment," Capt. Blake said.

"You do become quite close in some of those trips. After you're ashore and look back at what you've done and what risks have been taken, you realize how close it has been," he added.

LOOK FOR ANOTHER MASSIVE CHECK SOON

Safety Crackdown Catches 615

City police conducted a massive three-pronged road safety check Friday night and found one car in three on Victoria's streets defective.

In the biggest on-the-spot inspection on record 33 policemen checked a total of 1,777 cars between 7 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. today.

Thirty-three drivers received summonses requiring court appearances. Another 582 got warning tickets which require car repairs within 48 hours in most cases.

Three police teams operated check points at Esquimalt and Tyee Roads, Government and Pembroke Streets, Douglas and Francis Streets and Yates and Ormond Streets.

Eight drivers will receive summonses because their cars were found to be without emergency brakes.

Another seven will be summonsed for not having driving licences. Four young drivers are charged with being minors without car insurance and two others with being minors in possession of liquor.

Three drivers will appear in court to face charges of violating their driving licence restrictions. Other summons charges include not having headlights being a student driver unaccompanied and reversing into an intersection.

A total of 170 drivers were given warning tickets when their cars were found to be missing licence plate illumination lights.

There were 68 drivers unable to produce their registration slips and 63 without their driver's licences. Defective brake lights were found on 64 vehicles and faulty headlights on 44.

Police found 33 cars without horns and 10 with windshield wipers which didn't work.

Traffic officers sounded a note of warning for both Christmas drivers and pedestrians today. Another major road check may be held this month they said and officers will be particularly vigilant for the drinking driver.

About 135 impaired drivers appeared in court last year said Sgt. Ron Bentley and to mid-November this year there have been 132.

"Unless people make that last one for the road coffee it's quite apparent this year's statistics will exceed last year's by far" said the sergeant.

Police also intend to crack down on downtown jaywalkers. A city bylaw bars mid-block street crossing in the area bounded by Douglas, Fort, Government and Herald and provides for fines up to $250.

Infractions have been particularly flagrant in the Broad-View area Sgt. Bentley said. For their own safety Christmas shoppers are urged to take those few extra steps to a crosswalk.

Not even sun dances will counteract his "spell", but I found charm in one shop that will protect you from his wizardry.

Black magic trims one clear, see-through plastic hat. These rain caps have brims that extend around the crown. The charmers are designed to complement your coiffure. Price is $4.95.

A dark blue vinyl cap looks and feels just like patent leather. Style is similar to the "window" type, made to keep you dry, for $7.95.

On sunny days, don a perky little tam of suede. These come in shades of brown and tan. They're made of triangles of leather sewn together to meet at the top, under a roll of leather. Pick one up today for $7.95.

Wooden jewelry is a big hit in this store. Wide bands of polished wood are priced at $1.75. These are ideal stocking stuffers for the teenager in your household.

Debutantes Turn Back the Clock

In this year of our province's centennial, British Columbians have developed a sense of history, shared by young and old alike. This enthusiasm for the traditions of the past is obvious in the way in which British Columbia cherishes its debutante balls when the rest of the Commonwealth, including Great Britain, has set them aside in favor of less formal and colorful affairs. Each year, two debutante balls are held in Vancouver, one at Nanaimo and one in Victoria.

Twelve young women will make their social debut at this city's ball, to be held next Wednesday evening in the Empress Hotel under the sponsorship of the United Services Institution of Vancouver Island. Eager to do their part in savoring the centennial spirit, this year's debutantes happily forsook the usual pre-ball picture to give you this delightful interpretation of life in a past era. Swinging back the hands of the clock from the present space age to the time when young women gathered in the drawing room to enjoy a chat over the teacups and their embroidery hoops, the picture would not be complete without the friendly large dogs that always rounded out an informal gathering or the music that helped the hours to pass before the great moment arrived.

In this vignette the industrious trio at the left, which seems determined not to waste a moment at their stitching are, left to right, Miss Gillian Gregory, daughter of Chief Constable J. F. Gregory and Mrs. Gregory; Miss Catherine Bell, daughter of Mrs. C. S. Bell and the late Mr. Bell, and Miss Cairine Ash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ash of Reno, Nev. Miss Heather Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Henderson, plays the Hammond spinet organ while Miss Jacqueline Burling, daughter of Major H. G. Burling and Mrs. Burling, stands at her side, ready to turn the page. Behind them, Miss Cecily Mosedale, daughter of Lt.-Col. W. J. Mosedale and Mrs. Mosedale, prepares to sing a light melody.

Miss Maureen Fanthorpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. L. Fanthorpe, laughingly pretends to turn back the hands of the clock on the mantelpiece but inwardly, like the remainder of the debutantes, she's actually longing for Wednesday to come! Her sister, Miss Lynne Fanthorpe, standing next to her, waits for Miss Barbara Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wade, to pour her a cup of tea. Also with Miss Wade at the tea table is Miss Katherine Smith, daughter of Col. Norman Smith and Mrs. Smith.

The Great Dane, Thunder, seems anxious to persuade his friend, Miss Kirsty Gladwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gladwell, to 'play hooky' and run outside for a scamper over the lawns. In contrast, the Newfoundland, Dusky, is quite content to enjoy the debutantes' attentions, especially the petting of Miss Diana Crabtree, daughter of Major Kenneth S. Crabtree and Mrs. Crabtree.

It has become traditional that debutantes be presented in gowns of white but searching the records in the provincial archives, it appears that this was not always the case. Proof of this is seen in an account of a ball by Mrs. Curtis Sampson, who writes that her facts were given her by the debutante concerned. The occasion was a ball, given to mark the visit of the Marquis of Lansdowne, then governor-general of Canada, on Oct. 7, 1885.

Mrs. Sampson relates, "Lord Lansdowne was accompanied by his military aide-de-camp, Lord Melgund, afterwards Earl of Minto, a very striking figure in scarlet and gold braid. He was presented by Capt. Tatlow, the private secretary, to a charming young debutante. Immediately a Strauss waltz struck up and off they went. Only at the end of the evening did she ascertain that Lord Melgund obtained a special concession for this one dance from Lord Lansdowne so that he could have the young debutante as a partner. 'I was glad I was in white,' she recalled."

When His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes receive the young debutantes on Wednesday evening, it's possible that a ghost may be peeping over His Honor's shoulder. Back in the spring of 1866, the last colonial governor of Vancouver Island, His Excellency Arthur Edward Kennedy, gave a ball at Carey Castle, which stood where Government House rises today. A certain prominent young lawyer and man-about-town was present for the festivities. His name, too, was George Pearkes. Who knows, our lieutenant-governor may well be a descendant of the socialite of a hundred years ago.

It appears that balls, even at Carey Castle, were very much a family affair in those days. At this affair, the Kennedys' two daughters, Elizabeth and Georgina, did much more than add their presence. It's reported that, during intermission, they "provided music while the orchestra supped."

Balls were not the prerogative of the larger centres. Our pioneers seemed to spend their days working and arguing, while the nights were taken over by balls, dances and social gatherings.

It appears that the bachelor farmers of the Cowichan area were just as agile on the ballroom floor as in the woods and fields. One account of the annual bachelor ball, held in 1873, reports:

"Gay was everyone, as fairies spiriting 'neath a moonlit sky, and, all unheeded by the festive throng, the hours sped away until daylight broke above the eastern horizon, when the light fantastic ceased to wag. Then, while Old Sol still lingered behind the hills, steeds were mounted and helter-skelter through the woods, the lads and lasses dashed away, as full of life as if they had just risen from a long night's peaceful rest."

Quite often, it appears, balls were of even longer duration. Balls seemed to enjoy an unprecedented longevity in the tiny Cariboo centre of Clinton. The ones that were hosted by Messrs. Smith and Smith, proprietors of the Clinton Hotel, are said to have lasted several days. James B. Leighton writes: "They were open to the public. All meals and horse feed were absolutely free and first class at that. The dance went on for three or four days and sometimes a week at a time in those early days. There was dancing every night and sleighing during the afternoon."

One such ball, held on Feb. 22, 1871, survived six days and nights of merry-making . . . this in a town that boasted an exclusive population of 12 males during the winter season!

The fortitude and zest for living which gave backbone to our pioneers seems to have been refined and mellowed through the years between. Wednesday's ball will ring to a close at a respectable 2 a.m. But, for the 12 young debutantes, its shortened hours will be just as precious as those enjoyed by debutantes of another age who twirled through their social debuts in a series of polkas, waltzes and schottisches.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Gifts dear to every woman's heart . . .

All we hope is that our husband heeds our none-too-subtle hints and heads for Miss Frith's when he's in the mood for Christmas shopping! . . . We did some scouting there ourselves this past week . . . and were positively dazzled by the variety of feminine fripperies of all kinds . . . any one of which would be mighty nice to find under the tree! . . . Leaving aside the matter of dresses and larger wardrobe items (which, of course make super gifts) . . . there are exciting things without number . . . Marvellous blouses . . . sweaters of all kinds, ranging from novelty knits to basic Lanseas and imported Norwegian after-ski knits . . . Gloves . . . hosiery . . . scarves . . . wigs and wiglets . . . matching glove and bag sets, for both day and evening wear . . . A big selection of purses . . . frivolous boudoir caps to hide the curlers . . . The most feminine of umbrellas . . . and very new indeed . . . gay printed umbrellas and matching scarves boxed together . . . A wonderful array of co-ordinates from skirts to tops to jackets to slacks . . . Beautiful imported beaded or sequined sweaters and shells . . . filmy negligees and nighties . . . Goodness, just writing about them makes our heart skip a beat . . . Hurry up, Santa! . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

A Toronto department store is selling dresses in cans. Called Le Canned Dress, they're printed nylon in various colors; cannot be wrinkled.

Gifts for the carriage set . . .

Doting grandmas, fond aunts . . . or anyone else who has a very special child on her Christmas list . . . take our advice and visit Wilson's Junior Shop . . . where we swear you'll lose your heart, just as we did the other day! . . . They have the most adorable little dresses for infants and moppets . . . Sweet little knitted frocks from Denmark . . . gathered with a cord around neck and wrists . . . Perf velveteens with white collars and cuffs edged with tatting . . . not sissy colors but good rich shades of red, green and blue to put a little girl in tune with the season . . . Swiss velveteen tops with typical Swiss embroidery . . . all these velvets are washable . . . There are pink, pale green or white hand-made terylene dresses with smocked yokes, matching lace-trimmed panties (and hems a good eight inches wide so they can be gradually let down) . . . Cotton knit vest and panty sets with dainty pink trimming, for little girls from 2 to 12 . . . Danish knit rompers for boy babies . . . And just wait till you see the stuffed toys! . . . Positively enchanting! . . . There are monkeys and rabbits and parakeets and crocodiles . . . Teddy bears and pussy cats and kangaroos and golliwogs (remember those?) . . . Jerry Mouse and Humpty Dumpty . . . Owl, dog and crocodile hand puppets, too! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

How many pairs of stockings do you buy a year? The 1966 average in the U.S. is 15.7 pairs of nylons for every woman of 15 or over.

Want to be away for Christmas? . . .

Musing about how someone very dear to us used to take sudden urges to hop a plane or ship for far-away places at almost a moment's notice . . . and how Paulin's always managed to secure the necessary bookings when the odds seemed all against it . . . we asked one of their agents the other day "What about the people who suddenly feel they'd like to spend Christmas with family and friends in Britain . . . can you get them there at this late date?" . . . We're happy to report the answer is "yes" . . . Naturally you'd have to go by air . . . and be the possessor of an unexpired passport . . . but even if you haven't one, there's a chance that Paulin's can remedy the situation . . . in fact they've even been known to arrange for people to travel without a passport in the case of real emergency! . . . So despite all we've been preaching about making your travel arrangements well ahead of time . . . and this still goes, mind you . . . if you feel you simply must get away somewhere for Christmas, contact Paulin's first thing Monday . . . They'll move heaven and earth to get you bookings and reservations and anything else you need for a memorable Yuletide holiday . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Hardy Amies on men's fashions: "A man's suit should be like a second skin . . . it should be the same shape as he is . . . should move with him . . . Only then will it fit instead of flap."

Spanish ponchos to brighten the winter scene . . .

Glancing in the window at Madam and Eve the other day we caught sight of something which had us inside fast . . . It turned out to be a poncho just arrived from Spain . . . hand woven wool strined in positively lyrical colors . . . bordered with a heavy black fringe . . . There are several of these, each in a different color combination . . . all one size, so whether you're big or little, tall or short, young or not-so-young, no matter . . . one of these short poncho tops will fit, and look wonderful on you! . . . Best worn, we'd guess, with slacks for after-ski or lounge wear . . . Price is $25 . . . One of these would make a great Christmas gift, and if you're interested we'd suggest an early visit to M & E . . . Such attractive and unusual garments can't possibly remain in the store long! . . . Something else we like . . . Tom Jones white crepe blouses lavishly trimmed with lace . . . Frilly, feminine, and very dressy . . . teamed up with a long black velvet skirt you could go practically anywhere in short of a formal ball . . . (You'll find the velvet skirts here too . . . treated so they won't crease . . . very reasonably priced) . . . Noticed a new lot of Bente Rehn beads in attractive colors . . . and long strings of seed beads from Haiti which you can wrap two or three times around your neck . . . brilliant Caribbean hues . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Always buy perfume in small quantities. Perfume, like wine, changes once the bottle is open.

The sweet scents of Christmas . . .

We've always felt a gift of perfume is the supreme compliment any woman can receive . . . and of course this includes perfume's sweet-smelling concomitants like cologne, toilet water, bath preparations and dusting powders . . . And believe us when we tell you there isn't anywhere in town that has so complete a selection of imported perfumes as Douglas Pharmacy . . . nor is there a more pleasant spot to browse and sniff and make your choice . . . All the famous names, it goes without saying . . . and quite a few that are exclusive to Douglas, as well as others that are hard to find elsewhere . . . Newly arrived are Goya perfumes, bath salts, cologne and dusting powder . . . Lovely stuff, and there are little sets of bubble baths or talc or cologne in this that are very inexpensive . . . Nina Ricci natural spray toilet water is none too plentiful, but Douglas has it . . . as well as "Sortilege" and the new "Snob" by Le Galion . . . Men love luxurious toiletries too, and to name just a few of the more exclusive lines, there's English Leather, Russian Leather, Guerlain's new Habit Rouge, and the British Caribbean line from England . . . made from real lime, bottled in wicker covered flasks . . . Aftershave and cologne with a real masculine scent . . . exclusive to . . . Douglas Pharmacy, 1672 Douglas St., 385-1541.

A new hairsetter consisting of pre-warmed rollers is claimed to do its work in 7 minutes from roll-up to comb-out!

Give a gift of beauty . . .

Now here's something we'd really love to find in our stocking on Christmas morning . . . and we bet you would too . . . a Gift Certificate from the House of Glamour . . . Such a gift of beauty is a pretty compliment to a friend or relative . . . and we can't think of a single female from 16 to 100 who wouldn't be thrilled! . . . Even the certificates themselves are attractive and festive-looking . . . They come in denominations of $10 to $25 . . . are usable for any service in the salon . . . at any time . . . for any of the things that H of G sells, like cosmetics, perfume, hairbrushes, etc. . . . or can be used as a down payment on a wig or hairpiece . . . We know a couple of women whose husbands gave them H of G certificates last Christmas and they're still talking about how much they enjoyed spending them! . . . One more thing we want to stress: if you haven't made your Christmas and New Year's bookings at H of G, you'd better hurry . . . and if you're thinking of a new permanent or color before the end of the year, have it done soon . . . don't wait till the last minute when everyone's frantically busy and may not be able to devote time to those longer jobs . . . Play it smart and phone first thing Monday for an early appointment . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

Never put fur coats in plastic bags. They will pull the coat down and flatten the hairs, prevent the skin from "breathing."

Fun foods for the festive season . . .

"Tis the season to be jolly . . . or at any rate, it soon will be . . . with friends dropping in for a convivial libation . . . good talk . . . Christmas cheer . . . With, naturally enough, good things to eat . . . And so many of the "makings" of these good things can be delivered fresh right to your door by your Northwestern Creamery milkman . . . You'll certainly want Northwestern's sour cream which is the finest base of all for your own special recipe of chip dip (and if you haven't a favorite recipe, ask your milkman!) Then, there's whipping cream to dress up desserts . . . put ordinary everyday foods like pie and bread pudding into the gourmet category . . . not to mention what it will do for your really festive desserts! . . . And that wonderful Egg Nog from Northwestern . . . Mmmm! . . . Lace it generously with your favorite fortifier and you've got a drink fit for the gods . . . Mixed with milk, it's a grand drink for the youngsters . . . so they won't feel left out of things! . . . Now that December's here, get plenty of these fun foods delivered to your door along with your fresh Northwestern milk . . . And enjoy the not just one but two December feature flavors of Velvet Ice Cream . . . Peppermint Candy, and a really new favorite, Egg Nog Ice Cream . . . both so delicious we really wouldn't know which one to recommend most! . . . Northwestern Creamery Ltd., 1015 Yates St., 386-7147.

IN STEP WITH STYLE — By NONA DAMASKE

A Gift to Treasure—Yourself in Pictures

Damaske

Have you ever looked at photographs in a friend's home and wondered who they were and then been most embarrassed to find they were of your friend and taken only a few years ago.

No gift is more welcome to family or close friends at holiday time than a portrait of yourself . . . but be sure it is you, as you are now, and will be in a few years to come.

We have consulted a professional photographer for hints on how to have a likeness you will be proud of, and one your friends will recognize as you for many years to come.

First, choose an experienced photographer. Next, arrive at the studio made up and carefully groomed and then relax . . . the lighting and other technical details should be left to the photographer . . . he is the expert in this field.

You want your portrait to look like you, not your younger sister or the glamorous girl spy on Girl from U.N.C.L.E.

If you normally wear glasses full-time, wear them for the picture. Portraits in color are the coming thing and this means more consideration of makeup and dress than a picture in black and white.

In making up for the camera, heavy foundation coverup is not desirable. A light makeup with a mere dusting of powder for nose and chin is enough. A slight shine, the dewey look, is all to the good. Do use a cover-up cream for dark circles under the eye. Avoid rouge and heavy eyeshadow, which may photograph darker than you would like. Use a medium-toned lipstick, not a pale one, and not one that is too shiny. Accentuate your eyes with a touch of mascara and eye liner.

The greatest hazard in dating a photograph is the hair style. Avoid an exotic or extreme hairdo, choose a simple, soft style. A super-teased and lacquered bouffant or an extremely short Vidal Sassoon look may look 'old hat' a few years from now. For a truly natural look, it's best not to come directly from the hairdresser.

Do not wear a hat (and I seldom make that statement), remember a picture for business or some function is a different story. Choose a dress with a simple neckline and avoid distracting prints or heavy jewelry. Small button earrings and classic pearls won't date your picture the way gimmicky costume jewelry can. Posture is important too . . . sit up straight, lifting the chest slightly and holding the shoulders back. Keep your chin up, your head tilted back a little.

It's good if the cameraman and subject can work together . . . he can watch for wrinkles or folds in your dress and mention if there are stray loose hairs where there shouldn't be. The great advantage of a horizontal portrait over a vertical is that a skirt also can date a picture. The present short narrow skirts are difficult to sit in and 'cheese cake' is not usually desired by the average woman. The horizontal, which eliminates the skirt portion, also allows for a more interesting background.

Don't smile too broadly. Strive for a pleasant look, but avoid deep smile lines and flashing teeth. It's better for the emphasis to be on your eyes than your mouth . . . more character.

The photographer will advise you where to focus your eyes . . . take his advice . . . he has had lots of experience.

If you suffer from stage-fright don't worry . . . a good photographer knows how to put his subject at ease. He will take a number of poses and you will be able to ponder over the proofs to choose your favorite.

You will probably end up enjoying yourself and there are few better returns for a modest investment than the warm response to a personal photograph.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Poor Candidate For Motherhood

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear friend who after nine years of childless marriage has given up all hope of ever bearing a child. She's arranged to adopt a baby next February when the expectant mother (who is now in a home for unwed mothers) delivers. Well, my friend doesn't intend to tell anyone she's adopting a child. She's going to say she gave birth to it herself!

Only her husband and I know of her scheme. Her own mother doesn't even know. She's confided that she is going to "pad" herself in front with pillows so she'll look like she's carrying a child. She's even planning on checking into a hospital when the baby is due! I told her she'd never get away with it.

Last night she wore a maternity dress and a small pillow and she really looked pregnant. She says she has pillows of all sizes. What do you make of this?

HER FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: I think she's shockingly obsessed with bearing a child. If she were my friend, I'd suggest that she "confide" her scheme to her doctor. Anyone who is so far out of touch with reality strikes me as a very poor candidate for motherhood. Any kind.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree over this matter and we'd like you to settle it for us. After 20 years, I have finally succeeded in locating my father. He and my mother were divorced in 1940. I was only six then, but I remember him well.

My husband is very much upset because I took such pains to locate my father and then wrote to him telling him all about my life since he last saw me. My husband said that as long as my father didn't bother about me in the last 25 years I should have left it that way. I think my children should know him as their grandfather. What are your views on this?

TWENTY YEARS LATER.

DEAR TWENTY: So much depends upon why your parents were divorced and what kind of man your father is. If he made another life for himself and was content to exclude you from it then you would have been wiser to have left it that way.

If your father had wanted to locate you, it's difficult to believe that he couldn't have done so. Wait. You may be in for another 25 years of silence.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader that a host never should accept money from a house guest in return for hospitality. How about this?

Five months ago my husband and I moved to Florida from the north. Suddenly everyone who knew us up north became our best pals just so they could come to Florida for a cheap vacation — at our expense.

So far we have had four sets of house guests. Each set consisted of a family of four, and they all stayed a week or longer. We had to feed them three meals a day, and I did all the housework and laundry without help. One couple did offer to "help" with the grocery expenses, so we let them.

My husband is a police officer and brings home the grand total of $85 a week. Now will you retract your statement?

FLORIDA RESIDENTS.

DEAR RESIDENTS: I had reference to "house guests" — people who visit by invitation. Your visitors appear to be self-invited freeloaders, in which case not only were you justified in "accepting" their money, you should have requested it — in advance.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Grease paint and goulash may not seem the most likely of combinations at first glance but a little cook book that came off the presses of a local firm this week is strong evidence that people who strut the boards are much concerned with the titivating of their taste-buds.

The book, "Theatre in the Kitchen," is the work of the Actor's Committee of the Bastion Theatre and contains recipes from stage, radio and television personalities across our country. It's been well printed and attractively covered as the donation of Morriss Printing Company Limited.

I'd have to live to be 200 to sample all the recipes in the many books that crowd my kitchen cupboards. I've always had a willpower deficiency when it comes to this brand of reading. I anticipated a certain amount of opposition when I waltzed home this week with the latest culinary blue-print under my arm. On the contrary, I find that the male side of the family gets as much fun out of it as I do.

So much so, in fact, that deep-bellied chuckles punctuated the turning of several pages! Curious, I looked over a heaving shoulder in time to read Eric Nicol's donation to the culinary crusade. It reads this way:

"MISSING — ONE COOKED GOOSE

I hate to be a gastronomic dropout, especially in a good cause, but I'm darned if I have a recipe I can send. I'm a plain fooder. All I've ever cooked is my own goose, and the recipe for that is not suitable for publication in a family-type book. Best of luck with your venture. — Eric Nicol."

A mite more specific, singer Gisele MacKenzie's recipe for chicken champagne is just as individualistic as the tongue-in-the-cheek columnist's. It goes this way:

"Brown floured chicken pieces in butter for approximately 10 minutes until golden. Then add two heaping tablespoons of fresh chopped frozen or cut-up chives and two heaping tablespoons of minced fresh parsley (these must be fresh). Add three cups of chicken broth over the whole mess. Before you slap the lid on, add one small spit of domestic champagne (about one cup) and bake covered in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes. Gravy is WILD!"

The Proof's on These Pages

If one's ever suspected that actor Sebastian Cabot achieved his portly stance merely through a contented mind, the several recipes which he's given to this publication prove otherwise. They're as substantial in ingredients and obvious loving explanation as his round figure!

Pierre Berton has added his own special touch with a recipe for corned beef hash, so eloquently written that it would take a column in itself to reproduce directions for what he terms "a plebian dish."

If things wax hot at the odd Saanich council meeting it may be because the versatile reeve has been sampling a little of the recipe that he's added to the book. Hugh Curtis has come up with a recipe for curried chicken and rice which he calls an authentic Indian version.

From soup to Christmas dishes, everything you'd ever want to cook — or dare to — is in this gem of a book, including a turkey dressing that the television star Juliette has immodestly named, "Turkey Dressing a La Juliette."

If you would like to be amused and cook, both at the same time, you should take a look at this book which is now on sale at the Book Nook and Ivy's Book Shop or can be obtained by phoning the Bastion Theatre at 382-4112.

The only contribution in this book which doesn't identify its author is tucked onto the final page. I love it! It says:

"The codfish lays ten thousand eggs,
The homely hen lays one.
The codfish never cackles
To tell you what she's done.
And so we scorn the codfish,
While the humble hen we prize,
Which only goes to show you
That it pays to advertise."

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

For Retiring Official

Several parties have been held recently to honor Mr. A. W. J. Smith, who is retiring after 37 years with the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority. Senior officials of B.C. Hydro and associates of Mr. Smith hosted a farewell dinner, Wednesday evening, in the Union Club. Those attending, many of whom came from Vancouver for the affair, presented the honor guest with a silver cigar box. His co-workers presented Mr. Smith with a camera at a coffee party, held in the Hydro Building. Mrs. N. F. Graham, of Newton Gardens, entertained at the cocktail hour for Mr. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Halls gave a dinner for him in their Ripon Road home.

An Exquisite Cathedral Train Enhances Crystal Charm Gown

A full cathedral train swept back from the shoulders of the crystal charm gown worn by Marian Elizabeth (Betty) Frampton, this afternoon, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with David James Gawley.

Dainty appliques of Guipure lace enhanced the empire-line bodice and sleeves of the gown. A floral headpiece, starred with rhinestone accents, held her four-tier veil which misted softly to her shoulders. As "something old," the bride wore a small heirloom pearl brooch belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. A. Frampton. Feathered chrysanthemums, pink sweetheart roses and ivy were in her bouquet.

Dean Brian Whitlow officiated at the service in Christ Church Cathedral which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy J. Frampton, 112 Montreal Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gawley, 1709 Kings Road. Mr. Frampton gave his daughter in marriage.

During the signing of the register, the boys' choir sang "The Twenty-Third Psalm." Matron of honor Mrs. J. Bunce and bridesmaid Miss Marilyn Wallace were in floor-length gowns of blue velvet, accented with matching rose headpieces edged with blue veils. They carried blue and white carnations, chrysanthemums and tulle in their bouquets.

Dennis Tusar was best man and Rick Howard and Don Frampton ushered the guests.

The three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception in the Carlton Club was decorated in blue and white tones. Will Deacon proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will be making their home at 2862 Park View Drive, following a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs. For travelling, the new Mrs. Gawley donned a suit of Kelly green, accented with a toning feathered hat, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Christmas party and meeting, Victoria Rebekah Past Noble Grands' club, Thursday at 7:30 p.m., Odd Fellows Hall.

Bride's Veil Is "Something Old" Token

SKILLINGS-GUTHRIE VOWS TODAY

A dainty floor-length veil, worn by her great-grandmother for her wedding, fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Margaret Elizabeth Guthrie, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Hugh McTavish Skillings. The veil, worn in mantilla fashion, was edged with Brussels lace from the wedding gown of the groom's grandmother.

Antique white peau de soie formed the exquisite floor-length gown worn by the bride. Delicate bands of lace trimmed the elbow-length sleeves and scoop neckline of the bodice, which was given added back interest by a panel extending from the empire waistline.

Her only jewelry accent was an heirloom gold locket which belonged to the groom's great-uncle and she chose white roses and ivy streamers for her bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell C. Guthrie, 2090 Carnarvon Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Waldo M. Skillings, 1721 Rockland Avenue. Mr. Guthrie gave his daughter in marriage.

Christ Church Cathedral was decorated with white floral arrangements for the service at which Dean Brian Whitlow officiated. "The Lord is My Shepherd" was sung by the choir boys as the couple signed the register. Preceding the service of Holy Communion, the congregation sang "Rejoice, the Lord is King," accompanied by organist R. H. Proudman.

Matching gowns of emerald ice crystal charm, styled on A-lines and featuring panels extending from the back waistlines, were worn by the bride's attendants. Their matching wedding ring headpieces were edged with veils and they carried small bouquets of freesia in cascade style. Jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of silver brooches.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. C. Ross Maconachie, and bridesmaids were the Misses Barbara Reilly, Anne Perrins and Dorothy Harris.

Best man was Waldo Skillings Jr. Ushering the guests to their pews were David and Patrick Skillings, Robert Harris and Simon Whitlow.

An arrangement of white roses and freesia and silver candelabra flanked the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Oak Bay Marina. Rev. H. R. Pike proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

A matching coat topped the A-line dress of sky blue wool crepe worn by the new Mrs. Skillings for travelling on honeymoon to Hawaii. She chose an off-white Breton sailor hat and accessories en tone to complement the outfit. An added accent was a corsage of white roses.

The newlyweds will be making their home in Vancouver.

Among the special guests who attended the wedding were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Guthrie of Brandon, Man.; her uncle Rev. F. Paul DeLong, Clinton, Ont., and Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett.

Here from Vancouver were Mr and Mrs. B. Skillings, Mr. and Mrs. A. Leith, Mr. and Mrs. K. McCannel, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gunderson, Mrs. W. B. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. G. Eyton, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Perrins, Pat and Mark; Mr. and Mrs. C. Ross Maconachie, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Langille, the Misses Betty Judd, Maureen Horton, Hilary Whitlow and Judy Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris, M. Sommers, D. Williams, G. Sherriff and S. Whitlow.

Also from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. L. Peaker of North Surrey; Miss June Williams, Seattle, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Skillings of Nanaimo.

FOUR SEATS VACANT

Seven Experienced Saanich Campaigners

Seven men are seeking the four vacant council seats in Saanich in the Dec. 10 municipal elections.

The number is well below the normal for Saanich, reflecting an off-interest year with no reeveship contest and no referendums.

There are 28,376 eligible voters, up 812 on the figure of one year ago.

Four of the seven candidates are incumbents while the other three have run unsuccessfully for council in the past.

Coun. Harold Todd, 1402 Andrews. A letter carrier, he is completing his ninth year as a councillor and is currently chairman of the civil defence committee.

He favors a regional approach to sewer problems, a greater contribution from senior governments towards hospital construction costs, careful budgeting and "full co-operation" with other municipalities.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin. A shipyard storeman, he has served as reeve, councillor, school trustee and police commissioner at various times since 1936. He is chairman of the public works committee.

His platform includes getting more light industry into Saanich to relieve the tax burden on homeowners, completion of the implementation of the capital projects budget and only persons who have sanitary sewers voting on a sewer utility if there is a future referendum.

Coun. Edward Lum, 4879 Patricia Bay Highway. A motel owner, he is completing his first two-year term on council. He is chairman of the parks and recreation committee.

He wants the recreational study to be implemented as soon as possible. On sewers, he says council's next step is to find out the "exact costs and means of implementation."

Coun. Alan Newberry, 4274 Parkside. Principal of an elementary school, he is chairman of the fire committee and completing his one-year term on council.

His program includes expanded recreational facilities, regional leadership on sewers and implementation of the sewerage report, opposition to any rezoning applications leading to an increase in pollution and a training and promotion scheme for the fire department.

Raymond Hayes, 3751 Savannah. An insulator at HMC Dockyard, he ran unsuccessfully for council last year.

His three-plank platform includes pressing for continuation of sewer installations, elimination of pollution where it exists and safeguards against future pollution, and establishment of more secondary industry to aid tax revenues.

Douglas Brown, 3895 Scolton. He is purchasing agent for Oak Bay municipality and was unsuccessful as a candidate one year ago.

He supports an increase in fire department personnel and the concept of building sewer trunks and pumping facilities on a regional basis.

Lionel Speller, 3628 Saanich. A chauffeur at Veterans' Hospital, he is a former Saanich police commissioner and has run unsuccessfully four times for council.

He supports bringing new business to the municipality and opposes the rejection of some commercial projects by council during the past year.

'Shabby Trick' Brings Man Six-Month Term

A Vancouver man, who tried to get a refund on some curtains he said he found, was jailed for six months Friday.

Donald Wayne Dixon, 24, pleaded guilty to false pretences under $50 when he appeared in central court.

Detective Lorne Johnson said Dixon took the $35 drapes to The Bay Thursday, claiming he had bought them for his girl friend and now wanted to return them. He later told police he had found them in a hotel washroom.

Dixon's criminal record includes convictions for theft, possession of stolen goods, false pretences and breaking and entering, court was told.

When the accused said he was employed, Magistrate Ostler asked: "If you were working, why was it necessary to try this shabby trick?"

Beaver Hibernating At HMC Dockyard

Ss. Beaver, the plywood-shelled replica of the ship that first plied west coast waters, is in hibernation.

After 17 summertime visits to B.C. ports the historic vessel has hit the beach at HMC Dockyard where she will stay the winter to await over 50 visits Centennial year.

Apart from a foot-square hole in her siding suffered in docking a few weeks ago, and a boy who dropped over her gangplank ("he wasn't even hurt," said a centennial committee official) the summer passed without incident.

Close to 100,000 trod the vessel's decks over the year.

As many, or more, should pay the old girl a call in her 1967 Pacific Northwest and B.C. tour.

While the Beaver is a B.C. Centennial Committee project, her crew are navy men and will pass the winter in other duties.

Other persons elected for the coming year are Dr. W. J. Bell, first vice-president; Dr. Paul Gareau, second vice-president; Dr. J. F. Higgins, honorary secretary, and Dr. J. R. Le Huquet, honorary treasurer.

U.S. May Lift Ban on Mandarins

SEATTLE (AP) — Mandarin oranges in 1967 Christmas stockings loomed as a possibility Friday.

Homer Bryan, inspector in charge of the U.S. agriculture department quarantine division here, said a proposal is under study which would permit importation of the oranges into Washington, Idaho and Montana.

At present Alaska is the only U.S. state that allows distribution of mandarins. Citrus growers pushed for the ban, fearing further importation of the citrus canker.

Bryan said the government is considering letting the bars down on condition U.S. inspectors make sure all the imports come from disease-free sections of Japan and that U.S. inspectors check them on the grading line overseas.

About 11,000,000 pounds of mandarins have been unloaded here this week for transshipment to Canada where a longshore dispute has closed British Columbia ports.

Living With a $6.4M Problem

Pete Loudon Talks To . . . GEORGE MASTERS

Why is it that British Columbia is rich, but hospitals are poor, we asked George Masters.

And what does he think about the oft-heard lament that we can get our cars repaired immediately in Victoria . . . but we often must wait four months when a human's internal powerplant starts to falter?

Our community can find a bed for every vacationing tourist, but our children's ward at Royal Jubilee no longer can accommodate our sick children. What about that?

George Masters is the administrator at that hospital. We thought questions like these might lead to an explosive interview.

MRS. R. S. PETICK DISCUSSES ROUTINE WITH GEORGE MASTERS

But Mr. Masters didn't flare up. As boss of $13 million hospital with a staff of more than 1,300 and a payroll of $4.6 million, he's developed a leather hide and he knows how to "keep cool."

One of Top 20

First off, he wants you to understand that Royal Jubilee is now ranked as one of the 20 best hospitals in Canada.

Because of the excellent facilities and perhaps because of Victoria's favorable climate, Royal Jubilee's medical staff is rich in top-notch specialists. Victoria residents can count themselver lucky, he says.

"We've got problems. The space situation has been very frustrating. We've experienced a lack of funds necessary to keep us growing apace with the rapid advancements of medical practice."

But the problem is no worse here than in other metropolitan areas across Canada and the United States, Mr. Masters adds. And this is the thing he is afraid many local critics lose sight of occasionally.

Up to Community

Who's to blame for it?

"I believe it's basically a community problem. I believe our government is as generous as any other province in the support they'll give us.

"But a hospital can only be as good as a community desires it to be. All the metro areas are in need of expanded schools, transport and sewers." He could have mentioned social welfare requirements too.

"The metro hospital has to compete with all these other civic needs. You have to get out and sell people and it's harder to do in a large centre. It all comes down to the willingness of the community to recognize and shoulder its responsibilities," said Mr. Masters.

"We're going to get there. But it's going to be slow," he says. He's a member and strong supporter of the Victoria and District Hospitals' Planning Council.

Avoid Duplication

"I firmly believe the development of our hospitals must be under this council to make the most efficient use of any funds available and to avoid the unnecessary duplication of equipment and services."

(This council, with representatives from every district hospital, recently completed a study on hospital bed needs for the capital region. It called for an expenditure of $13.5 million over a five-year period for new hospital facilities.

(It meant a two-mill increase in property taxes for the whole region and local taxpayers turned it down last December. Now a new study is being made by district municipalities.)

Expansion

That seemed to answer our initial questions. But Mr. Masters was wound up now. Turning back to Jubilee specifically, he said that since he came here in 1950 the hospital has rebuilt and expanded.

When he came, the annual budget was $1.8 million. Now it is $6.5 million. Where there were 404 beds then, there are 530 beds now. The outlay for new lab equipment, new X-ray equipment has been remarkable.

"There are still some obsolete areas to be replaced. But I wouldn't want this hospital to grow to more than 600 beds.

"I think it will develop more and more as a specialist hospital for treatment of the very ill. This is why I agree with Mr. (Health Minister) Martin, that this area needs another general hospital."

Mr. Masters offered these other general comments:

On hospital financing: "I think hospitals in their operating costs should be allowed to set money aside for growth and to improve future services.

Special Ward

"If we had the funds now to set up one ward for specialized treatment of cardiac disorders, I believe we could cut the deaths from this cause by 30 per cent."

On rural hospitals. "Rural areas are building good general hospitals throughout B.C. But the idea is prevalent that if specialist care is required, the patient can go to the urban areas for it. The government takes the attitude that inasmuch as it is paying half the cost, the urban specialist hospitals are to serve all the people of the province."

(This makes metro hospitals more costly to build, but has its advantages to the metro areas.)

"It brings a large industry to the city. If you invest $23 million on sewers, the money is spent. But $23 million spent on a hospital plant (as here) means a continuing cash flow of $6 million a year to the community in salaries and supplies purchases."

On the future. "The challenge of the future for Victoria is the provision of extended care facilities for the elderly."

Better Nurses

On nursing: "I have a conviction we can complete the nurses' training in two years instead of three and turn out a better nurse. I don't think a nurse has to make a bed 50,000 times in order to know how to make a bed."

On the new provincial mental hospital to be built adjacent to Royal Jubilee: "Our hospital since 1945 has had a particular interest in mental illness and we have enlarged our wards three times, but we've been unable to keep up with the need.

"The new hospital will enable us to look after short-term acute cases. The larger problems which we are not equipped to handle can be referred to the mental hospital. It should increase the scope of our out-patient service.

Treatment

"The advantage will be that we can avoid duplication of expensive operating rooms and laboratories. Our specialist doctors will be readily available to mental hospital patients who may have other problems requiring treatment.

On children's care: "Another thing we need here is a new children's hospital. Children over nine now cannot be tended in our children's ward. We have had to open a new area for those aged nine to 15. We are treating children in five different areas of the hospital. They should all be together with their own recreation and teaching facilities."

Mr. Masters was almost, but now quite, born in Victoria sixty years ago. His father managed the CPR telegraph office. His mother went to Vancouver while his father was building a new home here and the baby arrived there.

Schooled in Vancouver, Mr. Masters attended University of B.C. then worked at a variety of jobs in the mining and fishing industry but always with an affinity for accounting. This led to a position at Vancouver General Hospital where he stayed for 15 years, gaining experience in every department.

He married in 1931 when his wife Phyllis Davies was working in a California hospital admitting office. They have one son Tom, a Uvic grad who now is studying accountancy.

The Masters are interested in their 26-foot boat, the symphony and the art gallery. But you get the impression from both of them, these things are just minor diversions for George, to pass the time until he can charge back each day to his hospital.

Chief, Prisoner Shot to Death In Wild Gun Battle at Jail

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — The police chief of this Ohio River city of 16,000 and a prisoner were shot and killed Friday during a jailbreak that flashed into a wild gun battle.

A patrolman and another prisoner were wounded.

Only one prisoner escaped after the quarter-of-an-hour melee around the Lawrence County brick jail and courthouse.

The fugitive, 28-year-old Carl E. Halleck, surrendered Friday night about eight hours after the shooting of Police Chief Walter Eugene Markel, 41.

Halleck, who was armed with a deputy's revolver when he fled, had been in jail on a charge of assault with intent to kill. After Friday's shooting, a charge of first-degree murder also was lodged against him.

Halleck and William (Jim) Bailey, also 28, were identified as the men who shot Markel and Patrolman Charles Jiles, 30, at close range when they entered the jail to answer a call for help.

Federation Issues Call For Direct ILWU Talks

Only direct talks between both sides can solve the waterfront shutdown, the B.C. Federation of Labour said today.

"Some equitable arrangement must be found by the two parties to end this stalemate. This can only be done if the parties are brought together to commence talks."

Ports in B.C. have remaind silent since last Tuesday when the B.C. Maritime Employers Association refused to call out any more work gangs.

The association blamed this on a deliberate slowdown by longshoremen in sympathy with 190 dock foremen, on strike for 15 days to gain recognition and bargaining rights.

The International Lonshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said any slowdown was the result of inexperienced substitute foremen.

The B.C. Federation of Labour noted that "not one word" has been spoken between the two sides.

"Experience has taught us that there can be no solution to any impasse at least until the parties commence discussions."

The federation also disputed employers contentions that foremen are part of management and outside the realm of collective bargaining.

"It is obvious that these foremen who are paid by the hour are actually charge-hands or lead-hands similar to the foremen in dozens of other industries," said the federation.

"Obviously they do perform some management functions but so do hundreds of other charge-hands covered by other union agreements.

"The situation is ridiculous whereby the Maritime Employers Association refuses to bargain with their organized foremen yet has negotiated and signed collective agreements with Supercargo Association personnel who perform more management functions than the foremen."

The federation said it intends to "immediately contact" the association requesting co-operation in bringing the matter to an early conclusion.

The 190 striking foremen are members of Local 514 of the ILWU, also known as the Foremen's Union of B.C.

Drink Problem Led to Writing Bad Cheques

An Esquimalt man who pleaded guilty to writing two worthless cheques was fined a total of $125 Friday.

Kenneth Arnold, 1215 Lockley, admitted in central court he had a "drinking problem" which led him to cash a $30 cheque at a downtown furniture store and write a $44 cheque for food and liquor at an Oak Bay Resaurant last month.

Both cheques were subsequently returned marked not sufficient funds.

He was fined $50 on the first conviction and $75 on the second.

Startled Flock Says No Sale

LONDON (CP) — Should a vicar sell the church treasures for repairs to the building?

Rev. Robert McIntyre, 58, vicar of St. Cuthbert's in the Somerset market town of Wells, thought he should. So, when renovation of the church windows required more money than his parishioners could raise, he decided to sell two 300-year-old silver flagons. An art expert had valued them at £4,000 ($12,000).

That raised a storm he never expected. The sale was opposed by the city council and the governors of the local Blue School, founded by one Ezekiel Barkham who presented the flagons to the church before his death in 1641.

The issue became so controversial that the Bishop of Bath and Wells, Rt. Rev. Edward Henderson, stepped in to appoint a consistory court to give a ruling.

Rectors and vicars all over Britain watched to see which way the decision would go. Most had some church plate stored away but little money in their restoration funds.

Just how much treasure the Church of England has is a matter for conjecture. One expert has set its value at £20,000,000 ($60,000,000).

NEVER USED FLAGONS

Father McIntyre's flagons stand about two feet high and look like drinking mugs with hinged lids. They are never used.

"They lie in the bank vault from one end of the year to another," the vicar said.

Selling vessels once used to contain the consecrated elements is opposed on that ground alone by many Anglicans, said Judith Scott, secretary of the Council for the Care of Churches.

"Furthermore," she added, "it is felt by them that these pieces of plate were, as the inscriptions upon them often record, given in trust. If such a trust is violated now to meet current expenses, it is likely to dry up future sources of generosity."

When the consistory court met in Wells for what was expected to be a two-day hearing, 47 objectors turned up. But the court adjourned after only five minutes and gave no decision.

It was announced that the vicar had withdrawn his application to sell the flagons and the hearing was closed. Another way was found to raise the money.

Wreath Sign Of Good News

At the family service in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday, at 9:30 a.m., the rector, Canon Grahame Baker, will tell the children of the importance of the Advent wreath as a preparation for Christ's coming.

At 11 a.m., the rector will preach on the importance of the Bible for the man of today. The senior choir, directed by Donald Woodworth, will sing Into This World of Sorrow O Taste and See and Now My Tongue the Mystery Telling.

Choir Wins Loud Ovation

Victoria's Arion Club Male Choir, founded 75 years ago by the late Herbert Kent, received an ovation from an audience of more than 400 in the Fellowship Hall of First United Church, Monday evening.

And much of the applause was for Arion's conductor, Frank Tupman, who has been directing choirs in Victoria for more than 40 years.

The choir demonstrated its fine tonal balance, spirited expression and good diction in a wide variety of selections.

MAGIC FLUTE

They ranged from You'll Never Walk Alone and Climb Every Mountain to Handel's Praise be to Thee, Mozart's Magic Flute, Wagner's Hail Bright Abode and Sibelius' Dear Land of Home.

The program also included such choral favorites as the Archer's Marching Song, Bless This House, Cowboy Carol, My Bonnie Lassie and the Hippopotamus Song.

Solos by Eleanor Duff, contralto, accompanied at the piano by Helen McVie, were enthusiastically received, and James McVie, as master of ceremonies, kept up a lively commentary on the program.

He referred to Mr. Tupman as "the dean of Victoria's choir leaders."

Proceeds from the concert went to the Student Bursary Fund of First United Church.

United Hymn Advocated

TORONTO (CP)—The Interfaith Conference, a centennial group representing 34 denominations, is asking all churches across Canada to integrate a religious stanza of the French and English versions of O Canada in their services next year.

The announcement was made today by a spokesman of the Centennial Commission, which sponsors the conference.

The recommended stanzas are the second in the French version, written in 1880 by by Judge A. R. Routhier, and the third stanza in the English version, written in 1908 by Sir Stanley Weir.

Both stanzas have religious overtones. They are not identical.

The English stanza:

Ruler Supreme, who hearest
humble prayer,
Hold Canada within thy loving care;
Help us to find, O God, in thee
A lasting, rich reward,
As, waiting for the Better
Day,
We ever stand on guard.
O Canada, glorious and free,
O Canada, we stand on guard
for thee.
O Canada, we stand on guard
for thee.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Bible's Importance Stressed in Services

This Sunday will be observed as Bible Sunday in many Christian churches.

"The work of the Bible Society is to extend to all men everywhere the blessing of the Scriptures in a language they can understand," writes Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral.

"The holy Scriptures are properly called the Word of God because through them He speaks to His church as a whole and to individual, separate souls.

"As they have read and studied the Bible, countless people have found that He speaks to them in the hidden places of their hearts.

"There is a power in its words to comfort, to convict and convert, to wound and to make whole. In our time, modern translations are helping to open its message in a new way to people for whom the stately phrases of the King James version are unfamiliar and unreal."

Let's Not Underestimate the Bible will be the subject of Rev. Albert King in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing Lord I Have Loved the Habitation of Thy House and The Christ Child Smiles.

At the evening worship, Rev. E. Laura Butler will speak on The Gifts of Christmas.

The annual service of White Gifts will be held in St. Luke's Anglican Church, 3821 Cedar Hill Cross Road, Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

The rector, Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff, will honor Bible Sunday by speaking on The Church and the Bible. At Evensong, Rev. Dr. K. M. King will speak on Science and the Bible, with particular attention to young people.

"Dr. King is a former research scientist of considerable eminence," says Archdeacon Wolff, "and his sermon should be of great interest to those who wonder about the alleged conflict between the Bible and science."

The Dynamics of Change, the second of a series of sermons on The Open and Closed Mind, will be given by Marvin Evans at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. meetings of Victoria Unitarian Church Sunday.

The church meets in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street.

Rino Elverhoy will sing The Penitent with the choir at First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

At the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, the choir will present the anthems, Lord for Thy Tender Mercies Sake and Lo My Shepherd Is Divine. Rev. Robert J. D. Morris will speak on Bethlehem: Village of Love.

At the 7:30 p.m. chapel service, Rev. Marvin G. Fowler will take as his subject The Continuing Incarnation.

In Victoria Truth Centre Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on Creative Prophecy. Her evening subject will be You Cannot Stay Young.

On Sunday, Dec. 11, Dr. Smiley takes the unusual topic, Religion 25,000 BC.

"Advent must be more than a date on the calendar," writes Rev. John A. Watson of First Baptist Church.

"We must be prepared for it. We must open our hearts and minds to the truth of the central fact of all history."

At the Sunday morning service in First Baptist, Mr. Watson will speak on the subject God Became Man, with Scripture passages from Isaiah 40:1—5 and John 1:1—14.

His evening subject will be An Overwhelming Joy, with Scriptural passages from Amos 5:18—20 and Acts 1:6—8.

The Prayer for Israel group will meet in Central Baptist Church, 833 Pandora Avenue, Monday at 8 p.m.

During the next few Sundays at Emmanuel Baptist Church, Rev. Norman K. Archer will speak on the Biblical Characters of Christmas.

This Sunday he will speak on Mary at the 11 a.m. service and on Joseph at the 7:30 p.m. Christmas anthems will be presented by the choir and the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the morning service.

A recording of Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol by Sir Ralph Richardson, accompanied by a film strip, will be played in Centennial United Church at the evening service.

The Advent theme will be continued at morning and evening worship.

Pastor Emeritus, Dr. J. B. Rowell, will preach at both services in Central Baptist Church Sunday.

At 11 a.m. his topic will be The Mind of Christ and at 7 p.m. he will answer the question Saved Today — Lost Tomorrow? using the scriptures as his authority.

The Lord's Supper will be observed following the evening service.

Capt. Rupert Protheroe of Vancouver will speak on God-given Posessions at a meeting of the British Israel World Federation (Canada) Sunday at 3 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Dominion Room of the Dominion Hotel.

The choir, directed by Mrs. Vera Barclay, will present the anthems Praise and Deep Harmony. Teachers and officers of the Sunday school will be installed at the evening worship at 7:30 p.m.

Yule Music Featured In Concert

The Don Kyle Singers and the Orpheus Ensemble of Victoria will give a concert of Christmas music in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

It is sponsored by the senior choir of St. Peter's Anglican Church Lake Hill in aid of St. Peter's building fund.

Among 16 selections on the program will be compositions by Bach, Joubert, Eric Thiman and Healey Willan of Toronto.

The Don Kyle Singers is a ladies' ensemble which, at the 1966 Victoria Music Festival, won the CBC award for the highest rating in all adult choir classes.

It's conductor Don Kyle is also director of the Orpheus Ensemble, a mixed voice group of talented singers. He is a teacher at Claremont Senior Secondary School and director of St. Peter's Church senior choir.

Theme of the concert will be Prelude to Christmas.

God Topic For Sermon

"God, the Only Cause and Creator" is the title of this week's Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

Scriptural readings include Matthew's acount of Jesus' healing of the sick boy who fell "ofttimes . . . into the fire, and oft into the water," and Jesus' admonition to his disciples, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

A correlative passage from the denominational textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is this:

"Our master cast out devils (evils) and healed the sick. It should be said of his followers also, that they cast fear and all evil out of themselves and others and heal the sick. God will heal the sick through man, whenever man is governed by God. Truth casts out error now as surely as it did 19 centuries ago."

Dr. James Returning Home

Rev. Dr. F. E. H. (Howey) James — the preacher with the warm Irish brogue—is returning to Victoria in January.

Since leaving here two years ago, Dr. and Mrs. James have conducted a mission in Jamaica for the English Methodist Church.

They plan to spend Christmas with their daughter, Mrs. W. A. Hoag at 203 Elm Street, Winnipeg, 9, and will visit friends and relatives in Montreal and Ottawa before returning to Victoria.

Retirement is contemplated, but Dr. James has already been invited to appear at local churches as guest preacher. He was minister of Metropolitan United, in downtown Victoria, from 1952 to 1964.

STUDENTS TO GIVE RECITAL

Victoria chapter of the Royal Canadian College of Organists will hold a student organ recital in First Baptist Church tonight at 8.

Participating will be Peter Bishop, Mrs. J. Yeats, Mrs. May Errington, Miss Elizabeth Chinnick, Miss Lynn Dougan, Miss Donna Dougan, James O'Reilly, Richard Raglin and William Dyson.

This is an open recital and the public is invited.

Council of Churches Plans Demonstration

Victoria Council of Churches, through its inter-church discussion groups, is sponsoring a demonstration parish communion in the Anglican church of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The order of service is according to the Book of Common Prayer of the church, and will be accompanied with the music of Geoffrey Beaumont's Twentieth Century Folk Mass.

Writes Rev. H. Gordon Walker:

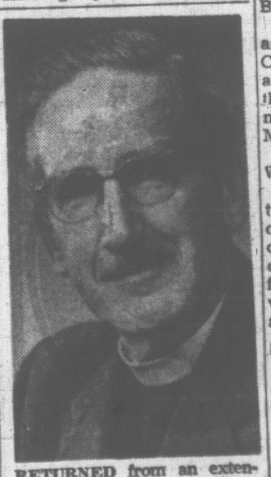
"This particular demonstration is to emphasize the willing offering of ourselves; helpful conditions for those who would communicate; loving concern for others; and personal involvement in this corporate action of the church.

READ LESSONS

"Representatives of the discussion groups will give expression to these values as they read the lessons; present bread, wine and collection at the offertory; and take part in the prayers and responses."

Participating will be Rev. Mr. Walker, Rev. A. Gordon Faraday, Rev. Leslie Wallwork; Betty Illsey, Marjorie Fowler, Hilda Pearce, Beatrice Waler, Win Life, Mabel Sadler and Nancy V. Lee; Al Coomber, Gerald Sadler and Allan Rennett.

Cross bearers and servers are Gregory Randall, Warren Tipper and John Fiske.



RETURNED from an extensive tour of Africa and the far East, Rev. Maynard Booth will speak in Oak Bay United Church Sunday at 11 a.m. and in Fairfield United at 7:30 p.m. Last year he visited Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Thailand, Malaysia, The Phillipines, Borneo, Taiwan, Korea, Japan and Hong Kong. Previously he served the United Church in Rhodesia.

College Bans Psychology Experiment

WINNIPEG (CP) — There was a call for volunteers for an experiment in "psychedelic experiences," but the trip is off.

The warden of St. John's College, the Anglican College of the University of Manitoba, has forbidden an assistant psychology profesor from going ahead with his research plans.

John Botterill, 28, said "This is not intended as a class projeet and has no relationship to any course I am teaching at this college," Mr. Botterill said.

His proposed experiment came to light Tuesday when the Manitoban, the university newspaper, carried an advertisement by the St. John's College Student Association asking for male volunteers over 21 who would be interested in a psychedelic experience.

CROWNED Miss Ziegfeld, 1967, at 29th charity ball in New York Friday night was Angela Lansbury, who is starring in production of "Mame." She received crown from Ginger Rogers, left, star of the Broadway musical "Hello Dolly" and Miss Ziegfeld last year. Ziegfeld Club was originally founded as charity organization of former Ziegfeld girls.

Friday Fish Still Popular Despite Right to Switch

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite some beefs by seafood sellers around the country the first Friday that U.S. Roman Catholics had the church's blessing to begin eating meat regularly, proved pretty much to be fish business as usual.

Msgr. Francis Quinn, a San Francisco archdiocesan official, said: "When you get up the momentum of so many centuries, you don't come to a grinding stop just like that."

In an Associated Press nationwide check, restaurants in the San Francisco area said their luncheon business showed no appreciable change in eating habits.

Eugene Rolari, manager of one of Connecticut's largest wholesale fish business, in Bridgeport, said business was off about 15 or 20 per cent.

The manager of a Bridgeport fish and chips establishment said, "we can definitely notice the difference," but the manager of a seafood restaurant in the same city reported business "terrific, a little better than usual. . . I don't think you change habits right off."

In the Miami, Fla., area, fish business continued to boom. Said one restaurant owner: "Maybe when you take the heat off a thing, people do it willingly."

At Roman Catholic schools around Miami, meat was being served Friday for the first time.

"But a lot of students are eating fish, a lot of them," said a kitchen supervisor at one school.

Buffalo, N.Y., restaurants found fish order down 10 to 40 per cent.

In Boston, always a great seafood city, the owner of one leading restaurant reported, "our business today was ahead of last year's, 25 per cent up at lunch, 20 per cent up at dinner."

In Seattle, an official of a fish and oyster firm said persons he talked to predict "that after housewives see the higher cost of an extra red meat day they will go back to seafood."

In New York, the ancient Order of Hibernians, an Irish Catholic group, had meat on the menu for the first time in 93 years at their annual testimonial luncheon. They had a choice of fried shrimp, filet of sole or roast beef.

About half the assembled Hibernians ate fish.

Canadian Roman Catholics have been permitted to eat meat on Friday since October.

'Degenerate Slobs', Says RCMP Head

VANCOUVER (CP)—The head of the RCMP's Vancouver narcotics squad says most marijuana smokers "are degenerate slobs whose use of pot is just a symptom of character weakness."

Staff Sergeant D. J. Webster said in an interview Friday that marijuana smokers "are a menace to nobody but themselves—except that their generally low morals tend to degrade the neighborhood."

He said the average marijuana user, according to police files, is 21 years old, is unemployed, avoids haircuts, bathtubs and responsibility.

He said the average user is no genius, but is smart enough to be unable to excuse his foolishness by claiming he was tricked into starting.

Staff Sergeant Webster said there is no point in using marijuana other than for perverted self-indulgence and, in some cases, a childish desire to express rebellious feelings.

He likened users to "an infant who doesn't like toilet-training and tries to show it by banging his head against the wall."

FOCUS
By BRAD NUGENT

A flurry of reports that The Beatles were to split up have been vehemently denied by manager Brian Epstein.

"There is nothing happening and no breakup," he said speaking to reporters following the annual meeting of Northern Songs, The Beatles' publishing company.

He also asserted that the rumors had been blown out of proportion.

Widespread press speculation started after a demonstration outside Epstein's London home by fans protesting the lack of a Beatles concert tour this year.

There are still no plans for the act to appear in concerts.

Reporters latched on to the fact that The Beatles were now following individual activities — John Lennon (films), Paul McCartney (film scores), George Harrison (Indian music), and Ringo Starr (you name it) — and calculated that the writing was on the wall.

Fact that The Beatles this year did not have an album ready for the Christmas trade — Capital is issuing an album of "golden old 'uns" instead — was a further indication of the lack of unification in the group.

Epstein insisted, however, that The Beatles would have a new single on the market soon and that they would probably start their third feature film in January.

Centennial Hymn Given Rendition

OTTAWA (CP) — The official Centennial hymn had its first public rendition before a gathering of the press Friday in the studio of its composer, Rex Le Lacheur.

Mr. Le Lacheur sang the melody in a rich baritone and Rev. Kenneth Moyer of Niagara Falls, Ont., who wrote the English words, joined in.

Ronald Dupres, an Ottawa translator and author, drafted the French version of the three original English verses. He was represented at the presentation by his translation-business partner, Paul Patenaude.

The hymn was selected from 50 entries submitted to the Canadian Interfaith Conference, a gathering of 32 religious groups sponsored by the centennial commission.

Conference chairman Lavy Pecker, a Montreal businessman, said about 19,000 copies of the hymn would be sent to every church, synagogue and mosque in Canada before Christmas.

Following are the words of the hymn:

O God our Heavenly Father
We lift our hearts to thee,
In thankfulness and gladness
We sing from sea to sea;
For Thou hast richly blessed us
With Countless gifts of love,
And always Thou hast showered us
With mercies from above.

Our fathers in Thee trusted,
And never were dismayed,
Thy statutes they respected,
Thy Righteous laws obeyed;
Thy goodness came upon them,
Thou wast their strength and stay,
Thy providence sustained them,
And led them on their way.

Our leaders Thou directed
To build in this fair land,
A nation with a purpose,
In thoughtful vision planned;
That all of our endeavors
May be of lasting worth,
That even as in Heav'n above
Thy will may rule on earth.

Tremendous Evening For Area Oldtimers

More than 450 men and women of 65 years and over crowded the floor at Victoria Ballroom Friday night for the Oldtimers' Centennial Ball organized by Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

There was hardly any room as the oldtimers danced through a succession of polkas, minuets, waltzes, two-steps and squares to music provided by the Pioneers' Orchestra led by Geoff Venables.

The hall was colorfully decorated by Ed Chow and the Chinatown Lions Club and a number of spot prizes were presented.

A lively floor show was provided by competitors in the fiddlers' contest to be held in Nanaimo next year. Youngest of the fiddlers was 14-year-old John Rigby, who received an ovation for his Reel de Grandmere, Humming Bird Waltz, and Orange Blossom Special.

Eldest of the competitors was 70-year-old Bert White, who performed on a fiddle manufactured from a chocolate box, a broom handle and a length of discarded fishline.

"It was a really tremendous evening," said Jerry Gosley, co-ordinator of Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

"A lot went into the organization, but what really made the ball was the enthusiasm of the oldtimers themselves.

Several band members as well as R. Hunter, vice-principal, and P. Fawcett, band manager, will be featured in solo spots with the band.

Special guest vocalist will be well known Victoria baritone, Harry Elsdon.

The newly formed band majorette group will give a display of baton twirling.

The concert will take place in the school auditorium, Carey Road.

Youth Had Permission To Drive Car

A youth jailed for six months when he appeared in Sooke court Wednesday was erroniously reported to have taken his friend's car without permission.

Glen Roderick Lampman, 19, of 1909 Billings Road, was sentenced to six months definite and nine months indefinite after he pleaded guilty to public mischief, obstructing justice and driving while under suspension.

The youth had permission to borrow his friend's car but was charged with obstructing justice after he removed the car's keys when it had been impounded.

The public mischief charge arose when Lampman together with the car owner reported the vehicle had been stolen.

Laugh-Seekers Defeating Purpose

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Re-establishment of Bastion's Studio Theatre in an upstairs hall at 1322-A Government Street no doubt fulfills a necessary function for Bastion students and others.

Exploration of off-beat and non-commercial type material, exercise in direction, creativity, characterization are among the advantages represented for the participants.

First dramatic production in the studio had its opening of nine performances Friday night.

The play is Arnold Weinstein's Red Eye of Love. It is directed, with an attempted style that does not quiet come off, by Eugene Gallant, a newcomer to Bastion Theatre from the National Theatre School.

It is described in the program as "an hilarious spoof on North American civilization."

Hilarious it may easily be but the comedy is far too self-conscious to be infectious in this presentation.

The essence of comedy in the avant-garde theatre is that its protagonists are entirely sincere and devoid of clownishness.

Weinstein and other Theatre of the Absurd playwrights essentially are saying that we are all, by circumstance and our own pathetic foolishness, unwitting clowns in a freak circus.

Thertfore to play these plays ad deliberated laugh-seeking clowns, is to defeat their purpose.

There is some interesting young talent among the cast; John Heath and Barbara Waldner came closest to success, the former particularly—and perhaps alone in the cast—having the ability to touch and hold his audience.

Technical details were handled neatly but I found the arena staging in this small area had the reverse effect from what is generally considered its advantage.

Rather than drawing actors and audience together it seemed to create an area of embarrassment, like strangers brought into too close an emotional contact.

However, regarding the production as strictly a studio project and the studio as a place where—to quote the program again—"young directors, writers and students can try out their ideas and talents without financial and critical pressures . . .", etc., perhaps such critical comment is out of line.

Special Peace Appeal

VATICAN (UPI) — Pope Paul Friday made a special appeal for peace between Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land. A message sent to the apostolic delegate in Jerusalem said the pontiff was "praying fervently to Almighty God . . . that all men of good will will be ready to receive the divine message of peace."

Orchestras 'On Show'

Orchestras of Greater Victoria elementary and junior secondary schools will be "on show" at Oak Bay Junior Secondary auditorium next Tuesday evening.

The program includes a Christmas Fantasia for Strings and Choir in which the Oak Bay Junior mixed choir and string class will combine under direction of Mr. Bernard Rain.

Carols by the choir and a variety of Christmas music by the orchestras will be featured, including the Overture to the Messiah played by Victoria Junior Secondary Schools Orchestra.

Thomas Tucker will conduct and Mrs. Agnes Archbould directs the choir.

The concert will begin at 8.

Water Test Ban Reversed By Campbell

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Friday reversed a mystery order that had stopped Campbell River's medical health officer from testing Buttle Lake water for drinking purposes.

Mr. Campbell said he sent an assurance that a continuing testing program would be permitted to Campbell River municipal council.

The testing began last summer by Dr. G. A. Gibson, director of the Upper Island Health Unit, as part of a program to keep watch on the effects of mine tailings that will be dumped into the lake with Pollution Control Board permission.

Buttle Lake empties into the Upper and Lower Campbell Lakes which supply domestic water for 16,000 persons in the area. The water board is battling to have the Pollution Control Board's permit to Western Mines revoked.

Mr. Campbell said the municipal council did not say who ordered Dr. Gibson to stop testing the lake and he had not found out himself.

But wherever it came from it was countermanded by the health department at his request, he said.

NO POLLUTION

"The point is there is no pollution of Buttle Lake right now and his (Dr. Gibson's) tests have shown this," said Mr. Campbell.

He said he intended to see that continuing tests are permitted of the lake waters after Western Mines begins dumping mine tailings.

"What we want is to make sure that all the cards are on the table and that there be continuing tests," he said.

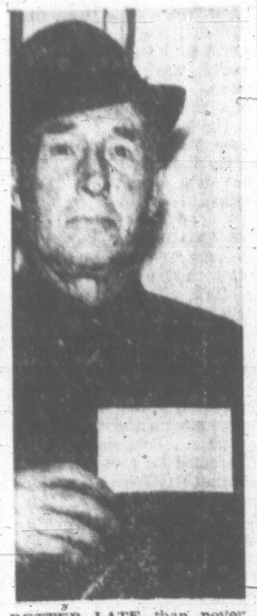
Text of his wire to the municipal council read:

"Following discussions, I received the immediate co-operation of the minister of health to restore the right of the Upper Island Health Unit to test the waters of Buttle Lake on a continuing basis and at any time requested to do so by the Greater Campbell River Water Board."

LBJ Cuts Spending

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson announced Tuesday a $5,300,000,000 cut in federal programs and a $3,000,000,000 slash in actual spending this fiscal year in "another step to protect and preserve our prosperity." There was no decision yet for or against a tax boost, he said.

Summer Camp 100% Effective



BETTER LATE than never. Charlie Crutchley, of Nanaimo, holds up the learner driver's licence that took him more than 50 years to obtain. The 71-year-old pensioner has been driving since the First World War. But he was never checked by police until two weeks ago when they discovered Charlie was unlicenced. He will take his first test "after a little more driving experience".

A Shawnigan Lake summer camp for emotionally disturbed children proved 100 per cent effective according to researchers who put forward their report Thursday.

The two doctors who carried out the study said each of the 22 children had acquired habits and understanding which is helping them in their daily lives.

The study was made under the auspices of the Canadian Mental Health Association by Dr. S. E. Jensen, director of Nanaimo Mental Health Clinic and Dr. Anne McCreary-Juhasz, assistant professor in the UBC education faculty.

Questions completed by parents and teachers showed the 2½-week camp had a therapeutic effect.

Says the report: "The children got something out of it which was useful in their later lives.

"The camp was a healthier setting than a hostel or boarding school type of environment."

In view of the camp's effectiveness, the report stresses the need for a crash program to train professional people in offering the same sort of care.

Children attending the camp were from Nanaimo, Courtenay, Alberni, Lake Cowichan and Cowichan.

Fire Kills Pensioners

BABBACOMBE, England (AP) — Four elderly patients died and another 14 were burned—some critically—in a fire that swept through a home for old age pensioners here Wednesday. Six firemen and one policemen were injured in attempts to save the residents.

School Votes Go Ahead At Cowichan

DUNCAN — Despite misgivings expressed by municipal and city council members, Cowichan school board will go ahead with plans to submit $2,425,758 in school building bylaws to taxpayers on Dec. 10.

Will Dobson, chairman, said at a joint meeting Thursday evening: "It is imperative the vote be held at this time.

"We are throwing ourselves on the mercy of the ratepayers."

Mr. Dobson said the board's plans had been "mothballed" in Victoria since August and the classrooms are urgently needed for next September.

He reckoned the cost at 1½ mills, or $7.50 on a residential assessment of $5,000.

TIME TOO SHORT

Reeve Donald Morton of North Cowichan said: "I'm scared stiff 10 days is not enough time in which to inform the public about the referendums."

Mr. Dobson said: "The board is being bold and hopes its past record will help.

"There is no statutory waiting period if the referenda fail and they could be put again in February."

Kiwanis Village
Porch Light Campaign
MONDAY
DEC. 5th
6:30 p.m.

To the Citizens of the Greater Victoria Area:

You have been kind enough in the past to have contributed to the Senior Citizens project known as Kiwanis Village and we would like to tell you what has been accomplished through your generosity.

Formed in 1952, the Village consists of fifty-four self-contained housekeeping units, housing eighty-eight persons, plus a Villa providing board, lodging and bed-sitting room accommodation for seventy-nine single persons, for a total of one hundred and sixty-seven now residing in the Village.

Largely through the generous donations of the Citizens in the Greater Victoria area, aided by Government grants, donations from Victoria Kiwanis Club, Bank and Mortgage loans, approximately $900,000 has gone into the project to date.

Operating expenses are borne entirely by the income from monthly rentals.

What of the future? Because of the constantly growing waiting list, the Kiwanis Village Society has a long range committee at work to expand the project. There is room for an additional forty housekeeping units on our present property, and, as funds permit, these will be built. Adjoining property will be considered for further expansion in due course and, with the help of the citizens in this area, the Society will continue to work for the betterment of this community project, to which all Kiwanians contribute their time and effort voluntarily. We again solicit your generous support for the Annual Porch Light Campaign. Kiwanis Village is a non-profit organization and as such your donations are entitled to income tax deduction. Residents in outlying districts are urged to use the mail. A receipt will be returned immediately.

If you have only 50% vision then get a partner. The view is exhilarating and reminds one of standing on the North Shore looking over the City of Vancouver (and just think of what those hilltop lots sell for now over there). There are sufficient usable roadbeds through the acreage so one could divide it into 10-acre holdings with a possible worth of about $250,000 in all. CONTINENTAL SHELF DISPUTE

Vast Resources Up for Grabs

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP) — Sovereignty over the continental shelf has been assured Canada since 1958, but whether it falls under federal or provincial jurisdiction is to be decided by the Supreme Court of Canada in February.

On Friday, without waiting for the court decision, British Columbia's Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced that the shelf on the Pacific coast was the sole property of his province.

The move, which adds some 22,000 square miles to B.C.'s 366,255 square-mile area, brought an immediate challenge from Prime Minister Pearson who argued that changing provincial boundaries was a federal right.

Resources Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said the B.C. move did not affect plans to have the matter decided by the Supreme Court. The case was originally scheduled to be heard at the present Supreme Court sittings, but it now appears it will not be dealt with until the February session.

The Geneva Convention on the Continental Shelf, ratified now by 22 countries, was passed in April, 1958. Signatories include Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia. The convention gives Canada control over the shelf for exploration and the exploitation of natural resources.

A report prepared by the department of northern affairs and national resources in 1964 describes the shelf as "the submerged part of the land platform on which the continent rests, extending out beyond the coasts at depths up to 1,200 feet. At its edge, the continental shoulder, it slopes down suddenly into the abyssal ocean depths, two to three miles below."

The report describes the three areas which pertain to Canada on the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific seaboards.

The Pacific shelf is the narrowest, extending 50 to 100 miles off the island - fringed coast. The shoulder is just four miles west of the extreme western edge of Vancouver Island and only one mile off the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The Atlantic shelf extends as much as 120 miles off the Newfoundland coast and the Arctic shelf is known to extend 200 miles seaward from the outermost Arctic islands.

Arguments over the continental shelf are not new. In fact the first explorations of Canada's Atlantic continental shelf resulted from a dispute over fishing rights among British, French and Portuguese in the early 18th century.

Captain James Cook helped settle that dispute by surveys of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland about the middle of that century.

DROPPED WORK

The first explorations of the Arctic shelf were undertaken in 1915-17 by Vilhjalmur Stefansson. However, his work was not expanded until the Canadian government launched its Polar Continental Shelf Project in 1959.

The Pacific continental shelf remained uncharted until the Second World War when the Royal Canadian Navy undertook the task for reasons of national defence.

The significance of the jurisdictional niceties of the problem did not become acute until extensive drilling operations were begun for oil and gas. In the Arctic it has not caused any problems as the adjoining territories are federally administered.

On the East and West coast, however, both federal and provincial governments have been granting research leases and will probably continue to do so until the Supreme Court decision is handed down.

It has become big business with more than 20 companies holding exploration permits covering some 126,000,000 acres. British Columbia and the federal government have issued permits for exploration of over 14,000,000 acres of the Pacific shelf.

The provinces maintain that development of natural resources is given to the provinces under the British North America Act while the federal government counters that territorial waters come under federal jurisdiction.

U.S. SETTLED MATTER

In the United States this battle was fought nearly 20 years earlier and the U.S. Supreme Court decision was something of a saw-off. The states have jurisdiction covering the shelf under the three-mile-limit and the federal government controls the shelf from there out to the continental shoulder.

Canadian provinces would fare better under a similar deal as the government recently extended the fishing limit from three to 12 miles.

Most of the explorations are for oil or gas, but iron and coal are also being sought.

During the ice age the continental shelf was dry land, if being covered by glacial ice can be considered dry. When the ice cap melted some 15,000 years ago the oceans rose to cover these fringe areas of the continent.

Geologists now figure that the land, compressed under a mammoth weight of ice, is now rising and much of the area now under water will eventually be dry land again.

Premier Bennett is not prepared to wait.

New Law Aimed At Vancouver Night Spots

The show will go on in Victoria night spots despite a change Friday in Liquor Control Board regulations.

The change is designed at making all licenced cabarets into high-class night clubs.

But Attorney-General Robert Bonner gave the assurance today that existing city clubs would probably not be affected.

"It's aimed mostly at Vancouver cabarets," said Mr. Bonner.

"In the past they've been able to operate with a city permit only. Now they'll have to have a provincial liquor licence before they're allowed to open."

Under the new rules, they'll also have to provide table cloths; suitable china and flatware on tables; meals and menus; paid entertainers; a dancing area at least one-fifth the total floor area; an "adequate" orchestra and a minimum entry fee of $1.

Victoria's entertainment spots miss the brunt of the new law due to the fact they don't serve drinks.

But anyone trying to open a club could find his hands tied unless the club meets the latest requirments.

Trim Rules Or Face Snarl, Says Hellyer

TORONTO (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer said Friday night the House of Commons will collapse under its own weight of business unless parliamentary rules are changed.

Mr. Hellyer told a meeting of the newly - formed Scarborough West Liberal Association the machinery is not available to cope with mounting volume of legislation.

Dignity will never be restored in the Commons until majority rule and parliamentary rules reflecting the modern age are achieved, he said. The present rules are archaic, designed for a world gone forever.

$6,000 Willed To Society

Two Victorians have bequeathed a total of $6,000 to the B.C. Tuberculosis - Christmas Seal Society.

The money will be used to fight tuberculosis throughout the province, a society spokesman said. This is largely done by mobile units which conduct chest and skin tests in all areas.

In Greater Victoria last spring 103,096 tests were made and the units will return here in April.

Sharp Will Stand Firm Despite U.S. Pressure

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp made it clear in the Commons Friday that the Liberal minority government has made no alteration in its policy restricting the growth of the Mercantile Bank of Canada despite two formal protest notes from Washington.

The question was raised in the Commons by Colin Cameron, the financial critic for the New Democratic Party. He asked if it was correct that the U.S. government has exerted "diplomatic pressure" on the Canadian government to change provisions of the bill to revise the Bank Act.

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian government has received two notes from the U.S. government relating to the proposed changes to the Bank Act. He said, however, it was not the intention of the government to reveal their contents as they are privileged documents exchanged between the two governments.

G. W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) asked if the nature of the communications was of such a nature as to require serious consideration.

ALWAYS SERIOUS

Mr. Sharp replied that the Canadian government always gives serious consideration to representations from the U.S. government.

The first note directed to the Canadian government was based on statements attributed to Mr. Sharp. He had said that he had no intention of altering the position adopted by his predecessor Walter Gordon in respect to the proposed amending clause for the Bank Act which would limit the future growth in Canada of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, the wholly owned subsidiary of the First National City Bank of New York.

The message noted statements made in the press attributed to Mr. Sharp. It urged the Canadian government against taking such action and warned that Canada might leave itself open to retaliatory steps if it introduced such legislation, informed sources said.

SECOND STIFFER

The second note was received two weeks ago in Ottawa. It is reported to be even more stiffly worded. It is said to describe the Canadian action as "unacceptable" and to again warn of retaliation, if the legislation is approved by Parliament.

Mr. Sharp at this stage has no alternative but to stand fast in the face of pressure emanating from Washington. If he had been considering any move to be more flexible he certainly could not move in that direction now or he would be immediately condemned by the opposition as "caving in" under U.S. pressure tactics.

The minister also has to defend the good name of his predecessor Mr. Gordon in the current case. It was Mr. Gordon who first formulated the legislation after a confrontation with James Rockefeller, chairman of the New York bank.

Mr. Gordon has contended that he warned Mr. Rockefeller that if his bank purchased the Mercantile Bank the Canadian government would not approve and might introduce restrictive legislation.

CS Head To Visit Victoria

The national president of the second biggest union in Canada will be in Victoria Monday, Dec. 12, to meet and speak to members of the Public Service Alliance.

Claude Edwards of Ottawa will address a meeting in the War Amputations Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, at 8 p.m.

He will be acompanied by vice-president William Doherty and Jack Maguire, alliance research director.

Gordon Campbell, Victoria area council president, said the national president will have "information vital to every member of the federal public service."

He said the recent founding convention of the alliance, under a resolution, is dedicated to "unswerving responsibility equally to its members and to the public interest."

One of the alliance's principal objects is the "elimination of bureaucrats in the public service who act with the attitudes of indifference or unfairness toward their fellow workers and the public."

Mr. Campbell said the combined effects of the alliance and new federal civil service bargaining rights will be "to revolutionize the entire public service, not only for the benefit of the employees but also for the public at large."

Paper Offers $200 Reward Over Attack

A $200 reward has been offered by Victoria Press Ltd. for information leading to the conviction of two long-haired teen-agers who attacked and robbed a newspaper carrier boy Thursday night.

Brian Stewart, 13, of 454 Gorge Road E., was jumped by the two youths as he made his route collections in the 400 block Garbally. They took $30 and fled.

The boy described his attackers as both about 15 years old with long, dark hair. One was wearing tight grey pants and a brown leather jacket with fancy studs on it. The other was wearing black corduroy pants and a blue ski jacket.

Ferry Back In Service

The ferry Queen of Saanich was back in service today after a breakdown Friday night.

The ferry had to return to Tsawwassen half an hour after leaving for Swartz Bay due to a mechanical fault in her steering mechanism.

Passengers, who were too late to catch the 7 p.m.sailing, were given priority aboard the 8 p.m. vessel. Everyone managed to get aboard.

A. B.C. Ferries spokesman said the fault was repaired in time for the ship to make the 10 p.m. sailing.

Tools Stolen From Garage

Carpenter's and plumber's tools worth $1,500 were stolen from a Colwood area resident last month, the RCMP reported Friday.

The tools, a number of them electric - powered, were taken from the garage of Ian Gordon, 536 Treanor Road, Nov. 4, a police spokesman said.

The owner was out at the time.

Doctors Strike

ATHENS (AP)—Medical services throughout Greece came to a near standstill Friday in a 24-hour strike by 15,000 doctors and dentists. More than 1,400 chemists also closed their drug stores in support.

Foundation Wants To Lower Statistics

The per capita consumption of alcohol in British Columbia in 1964 was 1.85 gallons — considerably above the national average of 1.7 gallons.

The death rate from cirrhosis of the liver in B.C. that year was 12.7 per 100,000 — the highest rate in Canada for the disease often attributed to heavy drinking.

There are an estimated 25,000 alcoholics in this province.

It is factors such as these which have prompted the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. to promote an Alcohol Information Week starting Monday.

Aim of the exercise is to encourage community awareness of problem drinking and early detection of the sickness. Foundation officials say that greater understanding of the problem will help problem drinkers toward early recovery.

Anyone wanting information or advice should contact the foundation's office in Victoria at 1080 Meares Street.

FOR WINGS

Army, Navy Personnel Can Qualify

Certain categories of armed forces aircrew personnel who have not in the past worn "wings" on their uniforms have now been authorized to do so.

Personnel entitled to wear the badge are:

Naval personnel employed as helicopter rescue crewmen and in airborne target towing duties; Members of the cabin-cargo crew in transport aircraft previously known as transport technicians, flight attendants and flight stewards; Army crew chiefs in cargo helicopters and certain personnel employed in air observation duties in reconnaissance aircraft.

The badge authorized at this time is the Airman Flying Badge, which is now worn by RCAF flight technicians. This badge shows a crown above a maple leaf, surrounded by laurel leaves and an upturned wing.

Initially the badge will be awarded on a "while so employed" basis and permanent retention will be subject to having completed 24 continuous months in an established crew position.

Appropriate wings will continue to be worn by pilots, radio-navigators, flight engineers flight surgeons and parachutists.

Poultry Show Winners Named

Ten trophies were awarded to exhibitors at the annual winter poultry and game show held recently at the Saanichton Fair grounds.

Awards went to: Ed Moodie, best standard female (Oprington), best standard male; Ed Lalande, best ornamental pheasant; B. Wooley, best bantam male, best bantam female; Norm Dixon, best ringneck pheasant; L. Ridley, best waterfowl (ducks); B. Wooley, best racing pigeons; B. Pritchett, best ornamental pigeon.

Judges were D. Boulter of Vancouver, Doug Wood, Metchosin, and George Thomas, Victoria.

Fluoridation Vote Open To Everyone

Everyone on the Oak Bay voters' list, and not just property owners, will be able to vote Dec. 10 in the referendum to fluoridate the water supply.

Last year's referendum just missed winning a 60 per cent majority by 17 votes.

Dr. Harold Carter, the retiring member of council who proposed the issue be put to referendum, said the fluoridation issue, unlike money bylaws, is one that all voters may vote on.

Dr. Carter said anti-fluoridationists often make "outright misrepresentations" and he intends this year to check out each source.

After This He Believes In Blooming Miracles

Edward Russell didn't believe in blooming miracles until this week.

But he's not so sure now.

The thing that changed his mind was the laburnum tree at the bottom of his garden.

Without warning, the tree began to blossom and is now in full bloom—just two seasons late.

The other laburnum tree at his home, 3121 Earl Grey, was more conventional and, after blooming in the spring, shed its leaves this fall like any self-respecting laburnum.

Dr. Adam Szczawinski, curator of botany at the Provincial Museum, said it is unusual to find blossoming at this time of year—"but we get freaks in every kind of plant life."

EVER THINK OF ENGAGING A FAMILY TECHNICIAN?

It's fairly reasonable to assume that the vast majority of telephones in Greater Victoria have, somewhere close by, a doctor's telephone number, the number of the police department and the fire department number.

It's also fairly reasonable to assume that very few of them have, equally handy, the telephone number of a plumbing and heating firm.

Strange when you think about it, because the possibilities are, that with water and heat playing such vial roles in all homes, the plumbing or heating specialists will be required more times in the course of a year than either of the other three experts.

Maybe it's because people just never get around to regarding the Journeyman Mechanic employed by local firms as an essential component of modern society.

Or maybe it's because people fight a little shy of having a family plumber while recognizing the need for a family doctor.

No need to be shy. Take one of the names from the list below and you can't go wrong. You will have selected a firm with fine traditions and excellent union technicians.

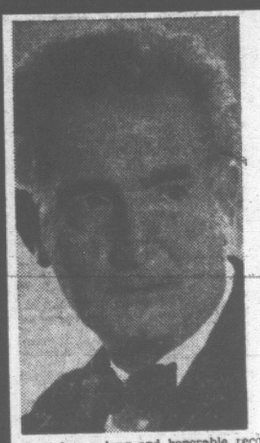
Scott X
FOR ALDERMAN



Scott has a long and honorable record as a fighter against injustices in this city. His foresight and tenacity largely made possible the building of the University of Victoria on the Gordon Head sit. Lawyer's clients owe the existing protection of their property to his fight 20 years ago in this city.

The Establishment
Scott asserts that an ESTABISHMENT has too long been running city affairs. He can give examples.

The Motoring Public
After returning from a recent trip to the major cities of eastern Canada, Scott claims that the motoring public in Victoria are hounded with more traffic fines and meter violations per capita than in any other Canadian city. If elected, Scott will try to find out WHY.

Police Commission
In the interest of the public, Scott claims two of the three members of the Police Commission should be elected representatives. He can give reasons.

Ombudsman
If elected, Scott will function as an unofficial ombudsman. He would invite written complaints from those who feel they have received unjust treatment from the authorities. If he felt the complaint to be justified, he would refer it to, along with his own comments, to the proper authorities.

Victoria's Juvenile Delinquents
Scott claims adults in Victoria, more than youths, are mainly responsible for our youth's healthy and unhealthy revolt against age, law and order. If elected he will invite university students to assist in solving the so-called delinquent problem.

Free Port
If elected, Scott would press vigorously for Victoria's right to become, once again, a "Free Port," with all the advantages that go with this status.
Scott points out that this would revitalize Downtown Victoria, would make Victoria the most prosperous shipbuilding centre in Canada, and would establish it as a terminal port for world luxury liners. It would become a mecca for bargain-hunting tourists as Hong Kong is now.

THIS'LL MAKE YOU SAY UNCLE

I have four uncles whose combined ages are 224 years. Uncle Arthur's, added to Uncle Bob's age makes a total of 92. Uncle Bob's age and Uncle Chester's ages combined total 121, and Uncle Chester's age plus Uncle Delbert's age total 132. If Uncle Delbert is 30 years older than Uncle Arthur, what is the age of each uncle?

Solution: Arthur is forty-one; Bob is forty-one; Chester is sixty-one and Delbert seventy-one.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The stamps issued by Britain on Oct. 14 to commemorate the 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings are now arriving on old country mail.

The set consists of six different designs for the 4d, all joined in a strip; a 6d; and a treble-sized 1sh3d. Each depicts a different battle scene taken from the famous Bayeux Tapestry.

Apart from the set which was issued after the last war, and which emphasized the idea of peaceful re-construction rather than victory, these new stamps are the only ones issued by Britain having a battle theme.

Anniversaries of the country's most notable victories, such as Agincourt, the Armada, Trafalgar, and Waterloo, have come and gone without a single stamp to commemorate them.

But now we have the most decisive defeat in England's history marked philatelically with a series which uses illustrations designed by the conquering Normans, showing Harold and his men being hacked with axes, transfixed by arrows, and otherwise knocked about and put to the sword.

Foreigners must be somewhat puzzled by this issue.

France, by the way, has also brought out a set which features similar scenes of the battle

The U.S. Post Office has ordered that, commencing Jan. 1 all mail addressed to persons in that country must include the correct Zip Code as part of the address — otherwise the mail will not be delivered.

It is a wonder that the Universal Postal Union has given its assent to this ruling.

Tonag's "Gold Coins" series of stamps caused quite a stir a few years ago. Now Sierra Leone is marking the fifth anniversary of its independence with a very similar set.

There are 12 stamps in the group, which are replicas in metal foil of some gold coins which were made for the country by the British Royal Mint earlier in the year.

As they are highly embossed they closely resemble the coins themselves. But as of course only one side of a coin can be embossed on each stamp, some values show the front, and other the reverse.

Personal Peace Bid Thant Aim

UNITED NATIONS (AP) —Heartened by a resounding vote of confidence from the General Assembly, U Thant set forth today on another five-year term as secretary-general of the United Nations.

He told the assembly he would "make every effort on a personal basis" to bring peace to war-torn Viet Nam.

Applause echoed through the hue and gold assembly hall Friday night as the member states unanimously approved a second term for the former Burmese schoolmaster.

Plainly affected by the ovation, the 57-year-old diplomat told the packed chamber he had been "deeply touched" by the warm praise he had been receiving from the delegates.

"I am confronted by an overwhelming weight of opinion that under present circumstances, my continuance as secretary-general for another term would serve the higher interests of the organization and thus represent a positive factor in the current situation."

HAS HOPE

Thant expressed keen disappointment over failure to bring peace to Viet Nam, but held hope for the future.

"The threats to peace in many parts of the world, and more particularly in Viet Nam, are for me a continuing source of anxiety and even anguish," he said.

He was pleased there would be Christmas and New Year's truces in Viet Nam.

"I shall seize every occasion to recall that this war must be ended and I will continue to regard it as my duty to make every effort on a personal basis to help promote a solution which will bring peace and justice to the people of Viet Nam."

EXPECTED REVERSAL

In private conversations many UN diplomats agreed that Thant reversed his stand because he was overwhelmed by the support he received and by arguments that the UN needed him.

Many agreed Thant got little more than token concessions. There is no evidence that he received any assurances on Viet Nam peace or on financial support for United Nations Peacekeeping operations — the two problems he cited Sept. 1 in stating he would not offer himself for a second term.

It was obvious he was unhappy about what he considered the failure of the big powers to make proper use of the UN for resolving disputes.

Most UN diplomats had never accepted his decision as final. They felt that, with the proper amount of world pressure and with an appeal to his sense of duty, he would put aside his personal preference to retire. Diplomats told him that the search for a successor would be extremely difficult at a critical time and warned that the result at best might be the choice of a man of mediocre stature. Thant mentioned his sense of frustration to the assembly.

He added: "Although little has happened to brighten the outlook of the months ahead my conviction stands undiminished that the United Nations remains the best instrument by which nations may co-operate for the development and the peace of their people."

Settlement Rumor Sweeps Rhodesia

Cabinet Meeting Cancelled

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Premier Ian Smith tonight cancelled an emergency cabinet meeting he had dramatically called by radio from the mid-Mediterranean to report on his seaborne summit with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

The meeting — which brought Rhodesian ministers flying into Salisbury from hundreds of miles away — was cancelled without explanation, a spokesman said.

Cancellation of the cabinet session immediately sent a wave of rumors through the city that Smith had reached a settlement with Wilson on the future of breakway Rhodesia.

RADIO TELEPHONE

Smith had sent his summons 4,000 miles from the British cruiser HMS Tiger — apparently using the warship's radio telephone — before or during his five-hour morning session on the warship with Wilson.

The cancellation was announced here about 7:30 p.m., implying Smith had changed his mind during an afternoon session with the British leader.

Political circles felt the reversal possibly indicated that Smith and Wilson had been able successfully to iron out some major point on which Smith had earlier felt it necessary to consult the cabinet.

The latest move also strengthened belief here and in Gibraltar that the crucial meeting on the cruiser might continue into Sunday.

Official details of the talks on the Rhodesian independence crisis, were limited to the fact that they were still going on.

A statement issued early today from Wilson's official residence in London said only that talks were held and would continue today.

Wilson and their advisers boarded the cruiser Tiger early Friday and sailed eastward into stormy seas for a series of working sessions.

The vessel slipped briefly back into the outer harbor here Friday night. A launch, probably carrying urgent mail flown from London, went out to meet it.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

Senior British ministers were reported in London Friday night to be hopeful that the meeting would produce moves by Smith to end the crisis. But they warned, as Wilson did earlier in the week, that there were still major stumbling blocks.

Wilson was reported to have assured a small group of key Labor party MPs a few hours before leaving London there was no question of Smith's returning to Salisbury to consult with his cabinet on the terms.

It was said Smith was told he must enter the summit with full power to negotiate and that no further delay would be accepted by Britain.

Many hardline members of Smith's government and party were reported to be worried just how far the prime minister was prepared to go in pacifying Britain.

U.S. Stages 'Sneak Test' Experiment

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The United States today exploded a nuclear bomb more than a half-mile underground in a major test of a possible "sneak" method of concealing subsurface blasts to long-range detection should they ever be banned by treaty.

The blast, which cost $5,000,000 to prepare and shoot, was touched off at 7:15 a.m. EST, in a huge cavity 2,700 feet beneath the surface of the gigantic Tatum Salt Dome, some 22 miles southwest of Hattiesburg.

Reporters and observers watching from an observation point 1½ miles from the detonation point heard no sound from the blast, which packed the explosive wallop of 350 tons of TNT.

But the needle of a seismograph at the observation point swerved sharply several times at the instant of the detonation.

Reporters also saw a fan-shaped glow resembling a neon light above the distant point. Project officials said that came from an instrument at the site which was supposed to flash a light when the explosion occurred.

FELT NOTHING

Although the seismograph quivered sharply, no shaking of the earth was felt by observers.

The experiment could have international impact in the event that the nuclear powers extend the present limited test ban treaty to include underground tests.

Project scientists had indicated a successful demonstration of the "sneak" technique — technically known as "decoupling" or muffling—might do this:

1. Help toward ultimately developing means of detecting any such sneak tests.

2. Possibly speed ratification of an underground test ban, since all countries would realize that any one of the others could conduct sneak attacks—and thus all would be in the same boat.

Cabinet Shakeup

TOKYO (UPI)—Conservative Premier Eisaku Sato, fighting charges of corruption in his government, fired all but two members of his 18-man cabinet today.

OPENING OF B.C. BANK EXPECTED BY MID-67

VANCOUVER (CP) — Einar Gunderson, a provisional director of the planned Bank of British Columbia, said today the bank could be operating by mid-1967.

Mr. Gunderson, an executive director of the provincially-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, made the comment after the bank bill won passage in the Commons. (See story page 2.)

Mr. Gunderson said the provisional directors will meet shortly—"We have to get busy and start organizing."

The bank hopes to raise between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 in capital, he said, by selling shares of $25 to $30 across Canada.

Six Fastest U.S. Bombers Lost In Day

SAIGON (CP) — Six U.S. supersonic jet bombers were shot down by heavy anti-aircraft fire during raids near the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi Friday, the second heaviest one-day aircraft loss of the war.

U.S. headquarters said all 11 fliers were listed as missing—presumed dead or captured. It was the highest loss of U.S. fliers of the war.

The headquarters said some of the planes crashed with Communist MiG-21, but none were hit by the enemy fighters.

North Viet Nam claimed in a broadcast by its official news agency that 11 planes were downed and a "sizable number" of U.S. pilots were captured.

Five of the planes were Phantom jets, fastest in operational use in the Viet Nam war.

The highest loss of U.S. planes occurred when seven planes were lost Aug. 7 and again on Aug. 13.

The planes were shot down as waves of aircraft blasted a vehicle depot only five miles from Hanoi and struck at the city's port of Haiphong and around Dien Bien Phu, near the Laotian border.

FOUND HEAVY FIRE

The U.S. spokesman said the attacking planes encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire everywhere during the raids.

Friday's losses brought the total of U.S. aircraft downed over North Viet Nam since August, 1964, to 433 by unofficial count.

The report of the U.S. air losses followed word from South Vietnamese government that U.S. troops would move into the vital Mekong Delta where the Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been deadlocked for months.

Prime Minister Guyen Cao Ky told reporters the U.S. forces will begin moving into the delta within three or four weeks. U.S. military officials declined to comment.

JUDY DECLARES:

Fees for MPs 'Not Illegal'

MONTREAL (CP)—"There is absolutely nothing illegal about a Member of Parliament accepting a fee for taking part in a CBC broadcast," State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Friday night.

Miss LaMarsh, the minister responsible for the publicly-owned CBC, was commenting in an interview on reports that the right of such MPs to sit in Parliament may be questioned next week.

The number of MPs who have accepted such fees is unknown, although a news report by Patrick Nicholson in the Oakville (Ont.) Journal-Record put the number at 39 or 40.

The Senate and House of Commons Act says any MP who accepts public money for a transaction—other than his $18,000-a-year salary as an MP—must vacate his seat in Parliament.

The act also provides a penalty of $200 a day for every day he is a member. The money would be paid to anyone who wins a civil lawsuit on the basis of his ineligibility.

GAVE NO REPLY

Written questions were submitted to the government in the Commons last May by Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) asking whether such payments had been made to cabinet ministers. The questions went unanswered and Dr. Brand submitted another set of questions in September. These also were not answered.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in commenting on the Oakville report there is reason to believe MPs have accepted CBC fees and some want the government to introduce retroactive legislation to regularize their status.

"Retroactive legislation of that kind can't be justified in any way," he said.

"The people of Canada are in no mood to add to the sources of income available through the government to MPs."

LaMARSH
. . . CBC spokesman

One possibility mentioned by the Oakville Journal - Record was that the government might have to call upwards of 40 by-elections to fill vacated seats or a general election early in February.

Youth Takes Opening For Freedom Dash

A 17-year-old prisoner escaped from a police officer Friday night, tipped out a third floor window and down a fire escape at his home.

The youth, facing several charges of theft and with a lengthy delinquency record, had been taken from the detention home to his own house to produce goods police believe have been stolen, Chief J. F. Gregory said today.

He and his mother and the officer were standing talking in a third-floor room when the youth suddenly bolted through the window and down a fire escape, the officer did not know was there.

All area police forces were alerted. The youth had not been recaptured by press time.

Pearson Challenges B.C. Shelf Action

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Friday night challenged British Columbia's right to take over the continental shelf off the B.C. coast on the grounds that the changing of provincial boundaries is a federal right.

(See also page 44.)

Mr. Pearson, here to deliver an address to a Liberal dinner, noted that the matter of provincial ocean boundaries is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The decision of the Supreme Court will take precedence over any of Mr. Bennett's orders-in-council," he said in an interview.

He declined further comment.

The Supreme Court hearings on ownership of offshore mineral rights probably won't be heard until February, it was learned Friday.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said B.C.'s action was "not done with the offshore dispute in mind," but added it might have some effect on the hearings.

In Ottawa Friday night Resources Minister Pepin said he stood squarely behind a 1965 statement by Prime Minister Pearson to the effect that "we needed a legal decision on the subject and that such a decision would not preclude political arrangements being made."

PROBLEM NOT UNIQUE

The jurisdictional question was not unique to Canada, the minister said. Every federal state had had a similar problem.

"Those disputes that have been solved — in the United States and in Australia for instance — have usually been solved by compromise."

William Burke-Robertson of Ottawa, who is to plead the B.C. case in the Supreme Court of Canada, said he wasn't aware of the province's action but added it was entirely consistent with the act of ownership.

GOING AHEAD

"It will have no effect on the case going ahead."

Orange Injunction Refused by Court

See Also Page 31)

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justic G. F. Gregory of the B.C. Supreme Court today refused to grant an injunction that would have forced unloading of Mandarin oranges along the B.C. waterfront.

The oranges, aboard ships left idle by a waterfront dispute between West Coast maritime employers and 190 dock foremen, are in danger of spoiling, according to reports from company officials.

The injunction was sought by three fruit wholesale companies against the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association. It would have forced the BCMEA to call out longshore gangs to unload ships carrying mandarin oranges from the Orient.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Nicholson was expected to fill a key role today in the dispute that has halted longshore activity on the Pacific coast from Vancouver to Prince Rupert.

Mr. Nicholson arrived Friday night from Ottawa with Deputy Labor Minister Bernard Wilson and arranged meetings for today with the B.C. Maritime Employers Association and with the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

He promised to remain in B.C. for several days, at least.

INSIDE MUD SHACK IS LIFE OF TORMENT

In one of the slum areas of the teeming city of Mokpo, Korea there is a tiny shack, built of mud, cardboard and bits of canvas.

In it lives one of the large Korean families almost destitute but not despairing, who make up a large part of the population of crowded Mokpo.

A count of their material possessions would take very little time, but they make up for this in courage, which keeps them going in the face of everything.

The father has tuberculosis, as have approximately a million other Koreans.

All day he lies on a pile of rags in a corner of the hovel, staring at the streaked and crumbling walls and the collapsing roof.

In another corner of the shack one of his sons works away at the occupation that must earn the family's keep — food, shelter and warmth for the cold Korean winter.

He is a quilt-maker, making thick, warm coverings that his own family could use so well, but that, he must sell to wealthier Koreans to earn the family income.

Although some of the quilt work must be done by hand, the work is speeded up immensely by use of a sewing machine, which was provided by the Unitarian Service Committee.

Money for this aid, which allows the family to keep going and eke out a miserable living, comes from Canadian funds such as the Times Share with Asian Children Fund.

Victorians through their generosity in supporting the fund, can give a new lease on life to families like this one, whose only hope comes from outside.

Contributions to the Share with Asian Children Fund may be sent care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas St.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, DEC. 3, 1966 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

The other evening we finally got to Dr. Zhivago, a feat which should have earned us a bumper sticker of the sort bestowed on those who have viewed the Peace River dam and other man-made monoliths.

If you have already seen this Hollywood super-epic you'll know what I mean. If you haven't, better catch up on your sleep before you undertake it. Me, I didn't, and in consequence napped three times (once audibly, I'm told) before the ever-loving doctor's long, long trail had finished winding.

Unless you're the sort who can carry a dozen equations or a grocery shopping list in your head, I suggest you also go armed with notepad and pencil. It will help you keep the dramatis personae of Soviet writer Boris Pasternak's tale sorted out.

First, there is Yuri Zhivago, a GP whose medical practice gets almost totally neglected throughout the film. Then there is Lara, a girl who can't say no. Young Doc Zhivago isn't very good at saying no either, and these related circumstances give the story its pliant backbone.

There is a heavy called Victor, whom Lara couldn't say no to either, but shoots non-lethally in revenge for her mother, a redhead who, like her daughter, was apparently slow with a "Nyet."

Give Zhivago a wife — this is Tanya — wed Lara to Trotskyite revolutionary Streiniskov — toss in a few diminutives longer than the characters' given names — and you begin to yearn for the relative simplicity of War and Peace.

But we aren't done yet.

Now, add Lara's daughter by Victor, open and close with Lara's other daughter whom Zhivago fathered, season with priests, peasants, partisans and police, and we have such a mixup as can be achieved only by a writer with a long Siberian winter to fill.

To get you in the right mood, the story opens with a funeral, and a worm's-eye view of Zhivago's mother in her coffin under the earth, a sequence which strengthened my already firm conviction that cremation's the only way.

I don't recall any comedy scenes. If there were such, they must have lightened the Slavic gloom while I was dozing in my scandalously over-priced seat.

There are, however, certain touches of unintended humor. For one plagued by a tendency to laugh at the wrong times, the indefatigable doctor's dashes from wife to mistress proved a sore trial.

We see Zhivago, now reduced to a peasant-type life in a community with a tongue-twister name, sorting potatoes by the hearth he shares with his wife, child and father-in-law.

He gets up. He paces. He makes some silly little excuse, then hurries outside to where a remarkably fine horse has apparently been waiting, pre-saddled, for this moment.

Then he's off at a wild gallop down the road, and when we pick him up next, he and Lara are snuggled in their adulterous nest asking each other tragically what they should do.

To any but the tender-hearted viewer sniffling on my non-wife side this question might seem superfluous, since it is obvious that they've already done it.

This sort of hanky-panky continues through several such mad coursings from farm to town. Then the partisans catch him, and we are shown Dr. Zhivago, for the first time in what seems hours and hours, actually practising his medical profession.

The scenery, which isn't Russian but a montage of Finland, Spain and I believe some bleaker reaches of Canada, is wonderful.

But I could wish those who translated the book to film had taken time to answer a couple of questions.

How, in the midst of a revolution, did the doc and his girl acquire those splendid furs? Also, is it really possible to ride all those nights and days in a crowded cattle-car and step out fresh as a daisy?

TAKING THE LID OFF "police injustices" today was aldermanic candidate Bill Scott. The city's "lighthouse philosopher" stood atop a black coffin outside city hall and proclaimed to a handful of listeners: "Inside this coffin are locked the many police injustices." Mr. Scott, who was fined $10 last week for an infraction of the Pawnbrokers' Act, declared: "A curse shall light upon the limbs of all stool pigeon policemen."

More Unions Demand O'Neal Resign Post

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Fresh demands were made today for E. P. O'Neal to resign from the executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The new moves come on the eve of a royal commission inquiring into the union bugging affair early last month in Vancouver.

Hearings by the commission will begin in Vancouver Monday.

'QUITE A FUROR'

The Duncan - Nanaimo Labour Council passed a motion at its meeting Friday night demanding Mr. O'Neal's resignation.

Council president Fernie Viala of Duncan announced the decision today.

"There was quite a furor," he said. "We feel labor should clean up its own house."

In Victoria, the 700-member Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters also passed a motion calling for Mr. O'Neal's resignation.

MEETING WEDNESDAY

The local is writing to the Victoria Labor Council with the motion and it will come before the council's meeting Wednesday night, along with similar correspondence from other groups.

In Duncan, the executive of the 4,000-member Local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America will hold an executive meeting Monday night on the subject.

In a personal opinion, local president Weldon Jubenville said he wants to "dissociate myself from O'Neal or any other union official who would . . . hire private detectives to spy on their fellow workers."

NO REPLY

Syd Thompson, president of 7,000-member Vancouver local of the IWA, has written the B.C. Federation of Labor saying he has received no reply to his first communication.

In his first letter, he suggested the federation request Mr. O'Neal's resignation and "publicly condemn" him.

The federation issued a press statement saying it will not comment "on the guilt or innocence of any member of the labor movement" until all the evidence is heard."

Mr. Thompson said Mr. O'Neal's admitted hiring of a detective alone warrants his "isolation" from the labor movement and he "strongly" suggested the federation "get off the fence."

Earlier, Mr. O'Neal advised his critics to await the evidence before the royal commission.

A private detective admitted last month that he placed electronic bugs in convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

He said Mr. O'Neal, the former secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, paid him $250.

Mr. O'Neal, regional organizer of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, admitted hiring the detective.

But he denied knowledge that electronic bugs would be used.

NO TRACE OF MISSING HOTEL CLERK

City police have been asked to trace a man who went missing after he left work at the Churchill Hotel last Sunday morning.

Missing without a trace is Wilbert Maier, 45, of 835 Craigflower, a night clerk.

Mr. Maier left work last Sunday at 7:15 a.m. He had no money and wore only his working clothes. His car, a black Oldsmobile, licence No. 10-249, was parked outside the hotel.

He was expected to return home but never arrived. His car has not been spotted either.

Mr. Maier is 5 feet 6 inches tall, 115 pounds and dark complexioned. He has black hair and wears glasses.

PETE LOUDON

Times Man Wins Double Award

Peter Loudon of the Victoria Daily Times was named winner Friday night of a $250 journalism award made by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

He received the award for a series of articles on financial difficulties faced by hospitals.

He also won honorable mention and $100 for a series on property taxes.

In 1964 Mr. Loudon won the firm's top award of $500 for his articles on the B.C. forest industry.

POLLUTION SERIES

This year's main award went to Arnie Myers of the Vancouver Sun for a series on air and water pollution problems. Paul St. Pierre of the Vancouver Sun won honorable mention for a feature on the economics of B.C. cattle ranching.

The awards are presented annually for outstanding articles, columns, new stories or editorials on business and industry.

QUALITY WRITING

Element considered by the judges in deciding merit are promotion of public understanding or enlightenement on questions relating to business and industry, public service, outstanding resourcefulness and quality of writing.

The 1966 awards were presented by MacMillan Bloedel at a ceremony in Vancouver given by the Newsmen's Club of B.C. and attended by former lieutenant-governor Frank Ross.

BED FIRE CLAIMS PENSIONER

A 77-year-old pensioner found lying on his smouldering mattress Thursday afternoon was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

City police are still trying to locate any next of kin of Charles Dundas, lone occupant of apartment 10 at 1216 Fort St.

Investigation officers reported the man was known to consistently smoke in bed.

Discovery of the smoke-shrouded body came after a neighboring tenant, Clarence Tricker, spotted smoke. He and caretaker Tom Craddock forced open the door of Dundas' room and found him lying motionless on his bed, the mattress aflame.

He was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by city ambulance where a doctor pronounced him dead. The firemen said they believed him dead before they reached the scene.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre has ordered a post mortem examination. No word on whether an inquest will be held was immeidately available.

Funeral Monday

Mrs. Nellie Whitney-Griffiths, a former teacher at St. Margaret's School, died Thursday at the age of 79.

Mrs. Whitney-Griffiths, of 3981 Metchosin Road, is survived by her husband William, one son and three grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at St. Mary's Church in Metchosin.

Sentiment Over Lagoon Called Plain Nonsense

Reeve Hugh Curtis today flayed the "sentimental nonsense" being talked about expropriation of 40 acres of land in Metchosin owned by the Witty brothers.

He said it is "cold cash" and not "warm sentiment" that prevents the Wittys from reaching agreement with the Capital District Regional Board.

He said that from the way some persons have been talking "you would think the board is expropriating the old homestead."

In fact, he pointed out, no one has lived on the land in living memory until Stanley Witty moved there a year ago.

And he only lives on it in a trailer.

Reeve Curtis, chairman of the regional board, said the Wittys have tried to sell the property in the past.

"The question is not whether or not they want to sell but the price they want for their property.

FAIR PRICE

"I'm sure we would have no difficulty in getting the land if we offered $300,000. But a professional appraisal decided that $100,000 is a fair price. We can't possibly offer two or three times that figure when we are dealing with public funds."

The board has been negotiating for the land for 15 years without success and finally, this week, resorted to expropriation. The board wants the property for parkland. It has offered $100,000.

Stanley and Leslie Witty, members of the pioneer family that has owned the property for 100 years, have refused the offer, saying they already have been offered $175,000 for the land.

Some Metchosin residents have criticized the expropriation and, in particular, the action of Geoffrey Mitchell, the Metchosin representative on the board, who voted for the expropriation.

Mr. Mitchell said today that his only criticism of the expropriation is that the price offered is too high.

"I doubt if any developer would offer $100,000 for that property."

He said that if the Wittys really want to live on the land they could negotiate with the board to hold on to some acreage on which to build homes.

He pointed out that the old Witty homestead is on another parcel of land unaffected by the expropriation. Leslie Witty has lived in Port Angeles for the past 20 years. Stanley Witty lived for many years at Terrace and now says he wants to live on the family property.

In any event, added Reeve Curtis, expropriation only ensures that the board becomes owner of the property. The price tag for the land will eventually be decided, not by the board's offer, but by an independent arbitration.

Reeve Curtis summed up: "All the sentimental nonsense that is being talked is a smokescreen to obscure the real issue. It's purely a question of price."

Q. What is the Canadian Government Travel Bureau and what does it do? C. J. M.

A. The Canadian Government Travel Bureau is a federal agency charged with broad powers over tourist promotion. According to federal Trade Minister Robert Winters the agency now has a staff of 250 in 22 travel counselling and promotion offices in nine countries. Its 1966 - 67 budget is $8.3 million. Tourist expenditure in Canada in 1966 totalled $825 million and is expected to pass $1 billion next year with the help of Expo '67.

She's Plucked Her Last Ship From Jaws of a Killer Sea

By AB KENT

One of the coast's most famous ships makes its last and shortest voyage next week — across Victoria Harbor to the shipwrecker's yard.

Ss. Sudbury — a legend in marine salvage work during her 12 years, seven months under the flag of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. — will be broken up by Capital Iron and Metals Ltd. for her scrap content.

Costly boiler work would have been required to keep the 2,700-horsepower vessel in service. Another factor which sealed Sudbury's fate is a modernization and replacement program undertaken by ITB.

Island Tug was stripping some of the useable gear and machinery from Sudbury this week.

Next week a couple of harbor tugs will nose her alongside Capital Iron's dock, joining another hull with markings once shared by both ships.

The ex-naval escort there now is a later version of what Sudbury started out to be, a Second World War corvette.

"She had a wonderful war record and she's always been a comfortable ship," said ITB founder H. B. Elworthy, a trace of sentiment in his voice.

It was Sudbury, in her role as a fully equipped marine salvage vessel, one of the most powerful on the coast, that clinched Island's reputation as a rescuer.

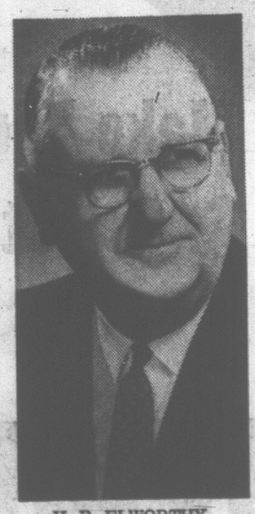
In more than a decade of winter storms that frequently trapped North Pacific shipping, Sudbury consistently plucked broken ships from the jaws of the tempest.

Her most epic accomplishment in some 40 days of turbulence was the salvage of Ss. Makedonia, which Sudbury brought to harbor after 3,000 miles of towing.

That was in November, 1955, just 19 months after ITB got her in a trade for a derrick barge and half a dozen sailing ship hulks that were to be used for barges.

Between dramatic salvage trips reaching deep into the Pacific, Sudbury took part in some record-breaking tows — across the Pacific to Japan, into the Caribbean and back up and down the seaboard.

When she and Island Sovereign brought four old freighters up from Lake Maracaibo in line astern, the tow measured 11-3 miles as the procession passed the Golden Gate, then the longest ever tried.



H. B. ELWORTHY
. . . 'who gambled?'

The Japanese voyages, towing scrap-filled hulls to be broken up for the steel industry, came to some 9,000 miles per round trip.

Island Tug obtained the ship in April, 1954. It had already been converted to a towing vessel and was so registered in 1949.

Badwater Towing Co., a subsidiary of Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd., bought her after the war with three other corvettes which were sold in Belgium.

C-Z used her to tow Davis rafts from up-coast, and she set a record doing that, too.

The logging company spent $200,000 fitting her out, the changes made with a view to her becoming a salvage vessel.

One of the handicaps under which Sudbury worked on long voyages was lack of fuel. She could make up to 21 days without refueling, compared with 56 days for her "sister" ship Sudbury II.

Sudbury is a triple expansion steam-powered vessel, while Sudbury II has four main diesels that turn up 4,000 horsepower.

ITB is careful to point out that selling Sudbury doesn't mean the firm is abdicating the salvage business. Her Sudbury II is capable of far more than the pioneering Sudbury, which set a hard-to-match pattern.

"I wasn't gambling," the senior Elworthy said. "Everybody else thought I was, but I had confidence in the ship and the crew."

His link with Sudbury will remain tangible. As the wrecker's torch cuts into her innards, Sudbury's former owner will be able to stroll along his porch overlooking the sea on Beach Drive where the ship's wheel, compass, telegraph, binoculars and other bridge gear will be mounted.

And the public will be able to see another souvenir to be rescued from the ship. Her twin whistle is going to B.C.Maritime Museum as the first of what is hoped to be a collection of whistles from B.C. shipping.

Capt. Roy Blake, who shipped in Sudbury as both mate and master, and shares with Capt. Harley Blagborne the longest time in command, reckons Sudbury steamed nearly 200,000 miles in ITB service.

"It doesn't matter of it is the old Sudbury or an old car. If you work with them so long you become attached to them and there is a sort of sentiment," Capt. Blake said.

"You do become quite close in some of those trips. After you're ashore and look back at what you've bone and what risks have been taken, you realize how close it has been," he added.

LOOK FOR ANOTHER MASSIVE CHECK SOON

Safety Crackdown Catches 615

City police conducted a massive three-pronged road safety check Friday night and found one car in three on Victoria's streets defective.

In the biggest on-the-spot inspection on record 33 policemen checked a total of 1,777 cars between 7 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. today.

Thirty-three drivers received summonses requiring court appearances. Another 582 got warning tickets which require car repairs within 48 hours in most cases.

Three police teams operated check points at Esquimalt and Tyee Roads Government and Pembroke Streets, Douglas and Francis Streets and Yates and Ormond Streets.

Eight drivers will receive summonses because their cars were found to be without emergency brakes.

Another seven will be summonsed for not having driving licences. Four young drivers are charged with being minors without car insurance and two others with being minors in possession of liquor.

Three drivers will appear in court to face charges of violating their driving licence restrictions. Other summons charges include not having headlights being a student driver unaccompanied and reversing into an intersection.

A total of 170 drivers were given warning tickets when their cars were found to be missing licence plate illumination lights.

There were 68 drivers unable to produce their registration slips and 63 without their driver's licences. Defective brake lights were found on 64 vehicles and faulty headlights on 44.

Police found 33 cars without horns and 10 with windshield wipers which didn't work.

Traffic officers sounded a note of warning for both Christmas drivers and pedestrians today. Another major road check may be held this month they said and officers will be particularly vigilant for the drinking driver.

About 135 impaired drivers appeared in court last year said Sgt. Ron Bentley and to mid-November this year there have been 132.

"Unless people make that last one for the road coffee it's quite apparent this year's statistics will exceed last year's by far" said the sergeant.

Police also intend to crack down on downtown jaywalkers. A city bylaw bars mid-block street crossing in the area bounded by Douglas, Fort, Government and Herald and provides for fines up to $250.

Infractions have been particularly flagrant in the Broad-View area Sgt. Bentley said. For their own safety Christmas shoppers are urged to take those few extra steps to a crosswalk.

INSIDE CITY HALL

It's That Type Of Campaign Among Friends

By JIM HUME

It isn't often that the voters in a community are witnesses to the gentlemanly type election campaign now being conducted in Victoria.

Two of the candidates, Ald., Hugh Stephen and Ald. Clyde Savage, have been companions on council and remain the best of old friends.

Hume

If either one is elected mayor his sincerest regret will be that his good friend had to go down in defeat.

The third candidate, Frank Hunter, is a deeply religious man who would never condescend to enter the normal rough and tumble fight usually touched off when mayor's chairs are at stake.

So, with no surprising controversial issues facing the electorate or candidates the calm campaign jogs on towards next Saturday and polling day.

The only real surprise to date came in Mr. Hunter's long two-column advertisement the other day when the mayoralty candidate noted that he had no party ties and would make a non-party mayor.

That one must have slipped by whoever is editing Mr. Hunter's campaign copy. Few have forgotten that little more than a year ago he was the defeated Social Credit candidate in a federal election.

For the record both Ald. Stephen and Ald. Savage are Liberal in their thinking, but neither of them hold party cards.

So how should people vote next Saturday?

Far be it from this column to suggest where the "X" should be put on the ballot. But there are a few obvious facts to consider.

A mayor is not, cannot be, a dictator. He does not and cannot achieve anything unless he has the confidence and support of his council.

So, when the cross is made against one of the three contenders' names, bear that in mind. Vote for the man you think best as a leader of men.

For good example of what can happen when you have a good, strong mayor who is unable to get his council behind him, Victorians have only to cast their eyes across the water to Vancouver where Mayor William Rathie has had more than his share of troubles during the past two years.

The incessant wrangling which appears to be an everyday mainland occurrence could become part of the Victoria scene if the voters send the wrong man into the mayor's office.

In addition to requiring the full support and confidence of his council a mayor must be able to win similar confidence and support from the often-unsung workers in city hall, the permanent staff.

Victoria could have the best mayor in the world, but if he is unable to win that essential loyalty from the staff charged with implementing council decisions, he could harm the city immeasurably.

It's worth a thought before a vote is cast.

And thirdly, the man elected mayor of Victoria must not only be a sound leader within the city but also a sound leader in the general Greater Victoria area.

He must be able to obtain respect from other councils and offer the historic leadership of the capital city on the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

As the campaign unfolds next week all three candidates will be talking about existing problems.

Some have already started with drum-rolls on the traffic problem the sewerage problem, the hospital problem and the school financing problem.

The electorate, we are quite sure, is well aware of the problems. What it will be looking for next Saturday, what it should be looking for, anyway, is the man they think can lead the council and other councils towards a solution.

Not an easy task, but then, if the three candidates are weighed carefully as to experience and known ability, not a difficult one either.

Sailors, Salesman Plead Guilty

Two sailors and a salesman pleaded guilty today in central court to an assortment of hit-and-run and impaired driving charges.

Naval rating Leo Edward Orr was fined a total of $400 on hit-and-run and impaired-driving charges arising out of an accident on Esquimalt Road Friday night.

About 7:30 p.m. the 28-year-old CFB Naden sailor crumpled the fender of one parked car, then spun off and backed into another. He then fled the scene and was nabbed at a roadblock at Esquimalt and Tyee.

A total of $150 damage was inflicted on the three cars.

Orr was fined $250 on the impaired charge and $150 for the hit-and-run offence. His licence was suspended for six months.

EYES OFF ROAD

Cavill told police he took his eyes off the road for a moment and when he looked back a car was bearing down on him.

He pleaded guilty to careless driving and hit-and-run and was fined $75 and $150 respectively on the two charges.

His licence was also suspended for six months.

The magistrate rejected a 22-year-old "cleaner" salesman's request he be permitted to retain his licence for business purposes after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Harry Burns, of 345 Gorge Road West, admitted weaving at 50 miles an hour around a bend on Gorge Road near Harriet.

When he finally responded to the flashing light of the pursuing police car he pulled over into the ditch, came back on to the road again, then ended up in the ditch, police claimed.

In turning down his request the magistrate noted Burns "aparently not only does his selling at night, he also does his drinking then."

He was fined $250 and his licence was suspended unconditionally for six months.

B.C. Bank Approved By House

OTTAWA (CP) — A private member's bill incorporating the Bank of British Columbia won passage in the Commons Friday after a stormy ride through Parliament that began in 1964.

Amendments made by a Commons standing committee in October now must be passed by the Senate before the bill is given royal assent.

The standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs earlier amended the bill to prevent provincial government officials from becoming executive officers. They may become directors, however.

Another amendment deleted a requirement that a majority of directors come from British Columbia. But the headquarters of the bank will be B.C.

Only Social Credit and New Democratic Party members spoke as the bill underwent clause-by-clause study in the Commons.

SAYS CUTS POWER

Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) and Arnold Peters (NDP — Temiskaming) both said the amendments watered down the intent of the bill.

"This is just another bank," Mr. Peters said, adding that the recently chartered Bank of Western Canada "already is in serious trouble" because of efforts by a company "that is in snaky financial condition" to take it over.

British Columbia had wanted its own bank so that it wouldn't have to go to the United States to borrow money as it did to finance the Peace River hydro-electric development, he said.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said the bill had general support in B.C. because of a popular feeling that it would break the hold of Eastern Canada on banking headquarters and because of "a certain pride" in the fact that the province would have its own bank.

Bert Leboe (SC — Cariboo) and A. B. Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley) supported the amended bill.

Authorized capital stock of the Vancouver-based bank will be $100,000,000. It it wishes, it can use a French version of its name-Banque de la Colombie-Britannique.

Petitioners named in the bill include Einar Gunderson, a Social Credit fund-raiser and former finance minister in B.C.'s Social Credit government.

THE PRE-CHRISTMAS series of lectures, sponsored by the University Extension Association of Victoria, will close Monday evening with an address by Robin Wood FRAM, LRSM of the Victoria School of Music on "music in the community." The well known artist will speak in room 168, Elliott Building, Gordon Head Campus, starting at 8:15. The lecture is open to the public.

Lawyer Killed

. . . INJUNCTION

If he must return to Ottawa later next week, he said, Mr. Wilson would remain here "as long as necessary."

The waterfront dispute began Nov. 17 when about 200 longshore foremen walked off the docks to back up demands for bargaining recognition by the employers. They set up picket lines the following day, which the 4,000 B.C. longshoremen refused to cross.

The lines were removed Nov. 21 on a court injunction, but the foremen stayed out. Longshoremen returned to work and were accused by employers of staging a deliberate slowdown.

After a week of day-to-day hiring and firing of longshore gangs, the employers said Monday they would call no more longshoremen to work until the union gave an assurance in advance of a day's work for a day's pay.

The union has refused to do this, claiming that any slowdown was because of the lack of efficient supervisory personnel—namely the striking foremen. It said employer complaints should be processed through normal grievance channels as outlined in the contract.

More than 75 ships now are idle along the B.C. coast, including 22 in Vancouver waiting to take on grain cargoes and three waiting to unload mandarin oranges. Some freighters have sailed from Vancouver with Christmas cargo still in their holds, others have sailed without taking on expected cargo and two shiploads of oranges have been unloaded in Seattle for trucking to Vancouver.

At least 2,000 loaded boxcars of grain are waiting to be unloaded. The CPR and the CNR have placed embargoes on further grain shipments from the Prairies to the West Coast.

Max Hurren, president of the unrecognized foremen's local of the longshoremen, said Friday that only an undertaking by employers to meet a committee of foremen would end the strike.

sources under the sea bed off the B.C. coast. But all provinces except Quebec and Saskatchewan will present arguments during the reference.

The court is to answer three questions from the hearings.

The first is in relation to Canada's territorial waters but not with respect to the ocean shelf beyond the three-mile territorial limit.

The other two questions apply to underwater natural resources beyond the territorial limit where drilling is feasible.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said his province also claims rights "far beyond the 12-mile limit" but he said his province has not formally stated claim to the whole continental shelf the way B.C. has.

IF YOU THINK ABOUT THE FUTURE

you'll realize that for years Victoria has been accumulating problems. Our harbour has been allowed to decline in importance while others are built up with Federal money. The Gorge waterway cries out for development, yet nothing much has been accomplished. We need a mayor with experience and knowledge, who can get action with economy. Think about this election, then

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The retreat of the cold air in the interior has come to a halt around Williams Lake. Temperatures in the colder air to the north will remain below freezing during the day but rise to near 40 in southern areas.

A large complex storm off the coast will continue to send surges of moist air over the province from the southwest over the weekend. This will result in mainly cloudy unsettled conditions on the coast and give a few showers or snowflurries in the interior.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Determination on my part to avoid being lured into seasonal topics in this corner at least until the true Yule season is upon us, have just been scuttled.

Having moaned over the tedium of long drawn-out exposure to carols, lighted trees and Santas, the moaning itself has become tedious.

Therefore, the resolve: Not to mention the high-priced season for good or ill until the time arrives to say "Merry —— ——" to all.

And here I am. Scuttled. And quite happy about it.

The reason is a record, an LP 33 1-3, which has arrived in the city ideally timed for—it must be said—Christmas.

For a number of people this record will have a particular appeal.

It will appeal to those for whom music is an essential part of the season but who are less than inspired by the trite stuff that is the usual available fare.

And it will appeal to those who have enjoyed many hours of fine music within the walls of Christ Church Cathedral.

This is the second time the cathedral has produced a recording. The first one, Bill Dyson Sings, came out about this time last year, sold 1,000 copies and won praise from musicians over a wide area.

In the current release we have the choirs and soloists, the organ and the bells of the cathedral in one quite delightful package.

There are 12 bands, six on either side. Setting the scene and the mood, the first band is devoted to the summoning voices of the bells, a brief welcome by Dean Brian Whitlow and an organ voluntary that includes the great state trumpet.

Then there follows a well-arranged program which pleases by its very contrasts and balance, frequently is moving and has moments which are really a thrill.

Treble Bill Dyson is featured on the cover as the soloist in Mendelssohn's Hear My Prayer and Handel's Let the Bright Seraphim.

Backed in the first instance by the adult choir and surrounded in the second by eight of the leading boys, these are altogether two impressive performances. They were taped when Bill's voice was at its mature best and plainly reveal his many musical attributes as well as some happy ensemble effects.

Bill's career as the finest of Christ Church Cathedral boy trebles is over now, so for the hundreds of Victorians who have been enchanted by his singing, this record is a salute and a farewell.

But while the record jacket headlines these two items, there are other highlights worthy of notice. Chief among them for me, is the voice of William Broadhead.

This warm, lyrical baritone, backed by a lovely organ accompaniment, is heard in an Epiphany song, The Three Kings, and it is a gem.

Then there are the haunting young voices of Laura Groos and Stephen Horning in separate solo numbers and at the end a pleasing combination of Broadhead with the smooth contralto of Eleanor Ashford, soloists in a Mendelssohn anthem.

Both the adult and boys' choirs are in fine form, particularly in the two headline numbers and in the carols, The Infant King and Ding-Dong Merrily.

Side Two of the record is introduced with a stirring performance of Reger's Organ Toccata in D-minor, played by Richard Proudman.

Organist choir master Proudman has, of course, been the chief instigator of these cathedral recording sessions and through his work with the choirs and soloists, the initiative, imagination and drive by which he has conceived and carried the project through, he has achieved something for which, not only the cathedral, but the city itself should be grateful.

The sound, technically speaking, is good and particularly in regard to the organ, an improvement on the first record.

From many points of view, quality, nature of the music, nostalgia, and appeal to the affections of Victorians, it will add something special to Christmas for a lot of us.

And speaking of records, a few people have been fortunate enough to hear in advance the voice of the Norwegian lyric tenor Rikard Fluor, who will appear in two recitals at McPherson Playhouse, Sunday afternoon and Monday evening.

What we have heard proves that advance reports have been by no means exaggerated.

The gifted singer, who commands numerous languages and sometimes accompanies himself on the guitar, has indeed a rare and beautiful voice, smooth and full with a silver bell-like resonance.

His Playhouse concerts will include an Italian group, seven songs from Schumann's Dichterliebe cycle, arias from Mozart, Massenet and Ponchielli operas, art songs by Edvard Grieg, and folk songs.

Return Of Toad Cheered

It is now six years since one of the most successful family Christmas shows produced in Victoria was first seen at the Langham Court Theatre.

Toad of Toad Hall — an adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's classic Wind in the Willows — drew delighted raves from all who saw Anthony Burton's production.

Its star was Cliff Clarke as the addle-pated reptile with a craze for speeding in soupy sports cars.

Next Saturday the same director and star hope to "bring it off again" in a new Victoria Theatre Guild edition tailored for the stage of the McPherson Playhouse.

In the years between there has been a second successful production, steered by Mr. Clarke as producer, which crossed the strait for a well-received run in Port Angeles.

The current production will run through Dec. 17 at the McPherson for a total of nine performances. There will be matinees on both Saturdays, starting at 2.

In the cast of delightful characters that throng the stage, two leading Victoria character performers will appear.

Singer-actor, Norman Tyrrell, whose wonderful gift of comedy has enhanced many city shows, plays the Judge. His last role was as Ali Hakim, the peddler in Oklahoma.

Rat is being played by another Victoria Operatic Society member, Tony Wilkins.

Musical director for the show is Jack Lanagan and its over-all producer is Edna Kowalchuk.

Tickets are available now at the McPherson box office.

He Likes Cooking Concert Into Shape

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A short, stocky man built like a wrestler walks decisively onto the stage of the War Memorial Opera House with his violin, bows to a flutter of applause and gives the signal for the musicians to tune.

When the resulting cacophony subsides Conductor Josef Krips emerges from the wings to direct another concert of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Who was the first man? He was Concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick, 46, a foremost violinist in his own right but who does much more than just play the fiddle.

"What I do at a concert," Krachmalnick says, "is like bringing the roast beef to the dinner table. I like being the cook much better." Which is his way of explaining he enjoys preparing for the concert better than giving the performance itself.

The concertmaster's job varies with the man himself and the conductor, but in general, here's how it goes:

Before the season begins, Krachmalnick gets together with Krips and reviews the repertoire. Then as the day for a particular concert approaches, he goes over the phrasing and bowing of the string parts.

His master copy is then copied and distributed to the players — which is why, incidentally all the strings play up and down together at the concert. It would be mighty distracting otherwise.

Krachmalnick has other duties. "Maybe a woodwind player has some trouble with his intonation," he says. "I talk to the man who's having trouble and work out the problem."

He also rehearses the orchestra if Maestro Krips is unable to do so himself.

FOUR SEATS VACANT

Seven Experienced Saanich Campaigners

Seven men are seeking the four vacant council seats in Saanich in the Dec. 10 municipal elections.

The number is well below the normal for Saanich, reflecting an off-interest year with no reeveship contest and no referendums.

There are 28,376 eligible voters, up 812 on the figure of one year ago.

Four of the seven candidates are incumbents while the other three have run unsuccessfully for council in the past.

Coun. Harold Todd, 1402 Andrews. A letter carrier, he is completing his ninth year as a councillor and is currently chairman of the civil defence committee.

He favors a regional approach to sewer problems, a greater contribution from senior governments towards hospital construction costs, careful budgeting and "full co-operation" with other municipalities.

Coun. Leslie Passmore; 2873 Austin. A shipyard storeman, he has served as reeve, councillor, school trustee and police commissioner at various times since 1936. He is chairman of the public works committee.

His platform includes getting more light industry into Saanich to relieve the tax burden on homeowners, completion of the capital projects budget and only persons who have sanitary sewers voting on a sewer utility if there is a future referendum.

Coun. Edward Lum, 4879 Patricia Bay Highway. A motel owner, he is completing his first two-year term on council. He is chairman of the parks and recreation committee.

He wants the recreational study to be implemented as soon as possible. On sewers, he says council's next step is to find out the "exact costs and means of implementation."

Coun. Alan Newberry, 4274 Parkside. Principal of an elementary school, he is chairman of the fire committee and completing his one-year term on council.

His program includes expanded recreational facilities, regional leadership on sewers and implementation of the sewerage report, opposition to any rezoning applications leading to an increase in pollution and a training and promotion scheme for the fire department.

Raymond Hayes, 3751 Savannah. An insulator at HMC Dockyard, he ran unsuccessfully for council last year.

His three-plank platform includes pressing for continuation of sewer installations, elimination of pollution where it exists and safeguards against future pollution, and establishment of more secondary industry to aid tax revenues.

Douglas Brown, 3895 Scolton. He is purchasing agent for Oak Bay municipality and was unsuccessful as a candidate one year ago.

He supports an increase in fire department personnel and the concept of building sewer trunks and pumping facilities on a regional basis.

Lionel Speller, 3628 Saanich. A chauffeur at Veterans' Hospital, he is a former Saanich police commissioner and has run unsuccessfully four times for council.

He supports bringing new business to the municipality and opposes the rejection of some commercial projects by council during the past year.

'Shabby Trick' Brings Man Six-Month Term

A Vancouver man, who tried to get a refund on some curtains he said he found, was jailed for six months Friday.

Donald Wayne Dixon, 24, pleaded guilty to false pretences under $50 when he appeared in central court.

Detective Lorne Johnson said Dixon took the $35 drapes to The Bay Thursday, claiming he had bought them for his girl friend and now wanted to return them. He later told police he had found them in a hotel washroom.

Dixon's criminal record includes convictions for theft, possession of stolen goods, false pretences and breaking and entering, court was told.

When the accused said he was employed, Magistrate Ostler asked: "If you were working, why was it necessary to try this shabby trick?"

Beaver Hibernating At HMC Dockyard

Ss. Beaver, the plywood-shelled replica of the ship that first plied west coast waters, is in hibernation.

After 17 summertime visits to B.C. ports the historic vessel has hit the beach at HMC Dockyard where she will stay the winter to await over 50 visits Centennial year.

Apart from a foot-square hole in her siding suffered in docking a few weeks ago, and a boy who dropped over her gangplank ("he wasn't even hurt," said a centennial committee official) the summer passed without incident.

Close to 100,000 trod the vessel's decks over the year.

As many, or more, should pay the old girl a call in her 1967 Pacific Northwest and B.C. tour.

While the Beaver is a B.C. Centennial Committee project, her crew are navy men and will pass the winter in other duties.

U.S. May Lift Ban on Mandarins

SEATTLE (AP) — Mandarin oranges in 1967 Christmas stockings loomed as a possibility Friday.

Homer Bryan, inspector in charge of the U.S. agriculture department quarantine division here, said a proposal is under "study" which would permit importation of the oranges into Washington, Idaho and Montana.

At present Alaska is the only U.S. state that allows distribution of mandarins. Citrus growers pushed for the ban, fearing further importation of the citrus canker.

Bryan said the government is considering letting the bars down on condition U.S. inspectors make sure all the imports come from disease-free sections of Japan and that U.S. inspectors check them on the grading line overseas.

About 11,000,000 pounds of mandarins have been unloaded here this week for transshipment to Canada where a longshore dispute has closed British Columbia ports.

Police Break Up 'Orgy Ring'

CANNES, France (UPI) — Police said today they had broken up an orgy ring which met twice weekly for sex parties with underage girls in this Riviera resort. Authorities said six adults were arrested and charged with "exciting minors to debauch." A number of youngsters, the oldest a girl of 15, were questioned and more arrests were expected.

U.S. Draft Standards Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. defence department has set up a pool of nearly 355,000 men from which it can draft 40,000 former rejectees by Sept. 30 under a new policy of accepting lower mental standards. Department officials said the group included 233,181 whites and 121,676 Negroes declared physically fit to serve in the armed forces within the last four years but previously rejected because of low scores on written tests.

Russia, India In Trade Pact

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union and India today signed a trade protocol for the next year that provides for an increase over this year. Trade between the two countries will total approximately $40,000,000 in 1967. The increase works out to about 10 per cent.

Tug Sinkings Not Coincidence?

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury that will investigate the sinking of the tug Mainland Prince will extend its inquiry into sinkings of other steel tugs. "It may be more than a coincidence that a number of steel tugs sank this year," said coroner Glen McDonald.

Powerful Icebreaker Launched

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Lester B. Pearson today launched the Canadian Coast Guard ice-breaker Louis St. Laurent, described by its makers, Canadian Vickers Ltd., as the world's most powerful conventionally-powered vessel of its kind.

U.S. Stages 'Sneak Test' Experiment

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The United States today exploded a nuclear bomb more than a half-mile underground in a major test of a possible "sneak" method of concealing subsurface blasts to long-range detection should they ever be banned by treaty.

The blast, which cost $5,000,000 to prepare and shoot, was touched off at 7:15 a.m. EST, in a huge cavity 2,700 feet beneath the surface of the gigantic Tatum Salt Dome, some 29 miles southwest of Hattiesburg.

Reporters and observers watching from an observation point 1½ miles from the detonation point heard no sound from the blast, which packed the explosive wallop of 350 tons of TNT.

But the needle of a seismograph at the observation point swerved sharply several times at the instant of the detonation.

Reporters also saw a fan-shaped glow resembling a neon light above the distant point. Project officials said that came from an instrument at the site which was supposed to flash a light when the explosion occurred.

FELT NOTHING

Although the seismograph quivered sharply, no shaking of the earth was felt by observers.

The experiment could have international impact in the event that the nuclear powers extend the present limited test ban treaty to include underground tests.

Project scientists had indicated a successful demonstration of the "sneak" technique — technically known as "decoupling" or muffling—might do this:

1. Help toward ultimately developing means of detecting any such sneak tests.

2. Possibly speed ratification of an underground test ban, since all countries would realize that any one of the others could conduct sneak attacks—and thus all would be in the same boat.

HISTORIC MEETING on Rhodesian crisis aboard British cruiser in Mediterranean sees British Prime Minister Wilson greet Sir Humphrey Gibbs, Governor of Rhodesia aboard warship. Wilson, right, and Prime Minister Ian Smith of colony are seeking solution to problem. (AP Wirephoto).

Talks Continue Aboard Warship

Times News Services

SALISBURY—Premier Ian Smith tonight cancelled an emergency cabinet meeting he had dramatically called by radio from the mid-Mediterranean to report on his sea-borne summit with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

The meeting — which brought Rhodesian ministers flying into Salisbury from hundreds of miles away — was cancelled without explanation, a spokesman said.

Cancellation of the cabinet session immediately sent a wave of rumors through the city that Smith had reached a settlement with Wilson on the future of breakaway Rhodesia.

RADIO TELEPHONE

Smith had sent his summons 4,000 miles from the British cruiser HMS Tiger — apparently using the warship's radio telephone — before or during his five-hour morning session on the warship with Wilson.

The cancellation was announced here about 7:30 p.m., implying Smith had changed his mind during an afternoon session with the British leader.

Political circles felt the reversal possibly indicated that Smith and Wilson had been able successfully to iron out some major point on which Smith had earlier felt it necessary to consult the cabinet.

The latest move also strengthened belief here and in Gibraltar that the crucial meeting on the cruiser might continue into Sunday.

Official details of the talks on the Rhodesian independence crisis, were limited to the fact that they were still going on.

A statement issued early today from Wilson's official residence in London said only that talks were held and would continue today.

Wilson and their advisers boarded the cruiser Tiger early Friday and sailed eastward into stormy seas for a series of working sessions.

The vessel slipped briefly back into the outer harbor here Friday night. A launch, probably carrying urgent mail flown from London, went out to meet it.

STUMBLING BLOCKS

Senior British ministers were reported in London Friday night to be hopeful that the meeting would produce moves by Smith to end the crisis. But they warned, as Wilson did earlier in the week, that there were still major stumbling blocks.

Wilson was reported to have assured a small group of key Labor party MPs a few hours before leaving London there was no question of Smith's returning to Salisbury to consult with his cabinet on the terms.

It was said Smith was told he must enter the summit with full power to negotiate and that no further delay would be accepted by Britain.

Six Fastest U.S. Bombers Lost In Day

SAIGON (CP) — Six U.S. supersonic jet bombers were shot down by heavy anti-aircraft fire during raids near the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi Friday, the second heaviest one-day aircraft loss of the war.

U.S. headquarters said all 11 fliers were listed as missing—presumed dead or captured. It was the highest loss of U.S. fliers of the war.

The headquarters said some of the planes crashed with Communist MiG-21, but none were hit by the enemy fighters.

North Viet Nam claimed in a broadcast by its official news agency that 11 planes were downed and a "sizable number" of U.S. pilots were captured.

Five of the planes were Phantom jets, fastest in operational use in the Viet Nam war.

The highest loss of U.S. planes occurred when seven planes were lost Aug. 7 and again on Aug. 13.

The planes were shot down as waves of aircraft blasted a vehicle depot only five miles from Hanoi and struck at the city's port of Haiphong and around Dien Bien Phu, near the Laotian border.

FOUND HEAVY FIRE

The U.S. spokesman said the attacking planes encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire everywhere during the raids.

Friday's losses brought the total of U.S. aircraft downed over North Viet Nam since August, 1964, to 433 by unofficial count.

The report of the U.S. air losses followed word from South Vietnamese government that U.S. troops would move into the vital Mekong Delta where the Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been deadlocked for months.

Prime Minister Guyen Cao Ky told reporters the U.S. forces will begin moving into the delta within three or four weeks. U.S. military officials declined to comment.

Pearson Challenges B.C. Shelf Action

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Friday night challenged British Columbia's right to take over the continental shelf off the B.C. coast on the grounds that the changing of provincial boundaries is a federal right.

(See also page 44.)

Mr. Pearson, here to deliver an address to a Liberal dinner, noted that the matter of provincial ocean boundaries is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The decision of the Supreme Court will take precedence over any of Mr. Bennett's orders-in-council," he said in an interview.

He declined further comment.

The Supreme Court hearings on ownership of offshore mineral rights probably won't be heard until February, it was learned Friday.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said B.C.'s action was "not done with the offshore dispute in mind," but added it might have some effect on the hearings.

In Ottawa Friday night Resources Minister Pepin said he stood squarely behind a 1965 statement by Prime Minister Pearson to the effect that "we needed a legal decision on the subject and that such a decision would not preclude political arrangements being made."

PROBLEM NOT UNIQUE

The jurisdictional question was not unique to Canada, the minister said. Every federal

Orange Injunction Refused by Court

See Also Page 31)

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justic G. F. Gregory of the B.C. Supreme Court today refused to grant an injunction that would have forced unloading of Mandarin oranges along the B.C. waterfront.

The oranges, aboard ships left idle by a waterfront dispute between West Coast maritime employers and 190 dock foremen, are in danger of spoiling, according to reports from company officials.

The injunction was sought by three fruit wholesale companies against the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association. It would have forced the BCMEA to call out longshore gangs to unload ships carrying mandarin oranges from the Orient.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Nicholson was expected to fill a key role today in the dispute that has halted longshore activity on the Pacific coast from Vancouver to Prince Rupert.

Mr. Nicholson arrived Friday night from Ottawa with Deputy Labor Minister Bernard Wilson and arranged meetings for today with the B.C. Maritime Employers Association and with the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

He promised to remain in B.C. for several days, at least.

JUDY DECLARES:

Fees for MPs 'Not Illegal'

MONTREAL (CP)—"There is absolutely nothing illegal about a Member of Parliament accepting a fee for taking part in a CBC broadcast," State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Friday night.

Miss LaMarsh, the minister responsible for the publicly-owned CBC, was commenting in an interview on reports that the right of such MPs to sit in Parliament may be questioned next week.

The number of MPs who have accepted such fees is unknown, although a news report by Patrick Nicholson in the Oakville (Ont.) Journal-Record put the number at 39 or 40.

The Senate and House of Commons Act says any MP who accepts public money for a transaction—other than his $18,000-a-year salary as an MP—must vacate his seat in Parliament.

The act also provides a penalty of $200 a day for every day he is a member. The money would be paid to anyone who wins a civil lawsuit on the basis of his ineligibility.

GAVE NO REPLY

Written questions were submitted to the government in the Commons last May by Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) asking whether such payments had been made to cabinet ministers. The questions went unanswered and Dr. Brand submitted another set of questions in September. These also were not answered.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in commenting on the Oakville report there is reason to believe MPs have accepted CBC fees and some want the government to introduce retroactive legislation to regularize their status.

"Retroactive legislation of that kind can't be justified in any way," he said.

"The people of Canada are in no mood to add to the sources of income available through the government to MPs."

One possibility mentioned by the Oakville Journal - Record was that the government might have to call upwards of 40 by-elections to fill vacated seats or a general election early in February.

Air Base Blasted

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrilla mortar fire rained on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base early Sunday. One explosion was heard that shook this capital of South Viet Nam and unofficial sources said the Viet Cong had hit an ammunition dump on the base.

Chicken Pox Starts Scare

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (AP) — A smallpox scare aboard the Carinthia delayed passenger disembarkation when the 21,000-ton Cunard liner arrived here today from Canada.

The suspect, a Ghanaian passenger, turned out to have chicken pox.

Dockers had refused to handle baggage until getting a health report on the sick man. He was taken to hospital to be kept under observation for a week as a precaution.

Youth Takes Opening For Freedom Dash

A 17-year-old prisoner escaped from a police officer Friday night, nipping out a third floor window and down a fire escape at his home.

The youth, facing several charges of theft and with a lengthy delinquency record, had been taken from the detention home to his own house to produce goods police believe have been stolen, Chief J. F. Gregory said today.

He and his mother and the officer were standing talking in a third-floor room when the youth suddenly bolted through the window and down a fire escape the officer did not know was there.

All area police forces were alerted. The youth had not been recaptured by press time.

Longshoremen's situation is bad enuff, but there's a threat o' wharf t' come.

OPENING OF B.C. BANK EXPECTED BY MID-67

VANCOUVER (CP) — Einar Gunderson, a provisional director of the planned Bank of British Columbia, said today the bank could be operating by mid-1967.

Mr. Gunderson, an executive director of the provincially-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, made the comment after the bank bill won passage in the Commons. (See story page 2.)

Mr. Gunderson said the provisional directors will meet shortly—"We have to get busy and start organizing."

The bank hopes to raise between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 in capital, he said, by selling shares of $25 to $30 across Canada.

INSIDE MUD SHACK IS LIFE OF TORMENT

In one of the slum areas of the teeming city of Mokpo, Korea, there is a tiny shack, built of mud, cardboard and bits of canvas.

In it lives one of the large Korean families almost destitute but not despairing, who make up a large part of the population of crowded Mokpo.

A count of their material possessions would take very little time, but they make up for this in courage, which keeps them going in the face of everything.

The father has tuberculosis, as have approximately a million other Koreans.

All day he lies on a pile of rags in a corner of the hovel, staring at the streaked and crumbling walls and the collapsing roof.

In another corner of the shack one of his sons works away at the occupation that must earn the family's keep — food, shelter and warmth for the cold Korean winter.

He is a quilt-maker, making thick, warm coverings that his own family could use so well, but that he must sell to wealthier Koreans to earn the family income.

Although some of the quilt work must be done by hand, the work is speeded up immensely by use of a sewing machine, which was provided by the Unitarian Service Committee.

Money for this aid, which allows the family to keep going and eke out a miserable living, comes from Canadian funds such as the Times Share with Asian Children Fund.

Victorians through their generosity in supporting the fund, can give a new lease on life to families like this one, whose only hope comes from outside.

Contributions to the Share with Asian Children Fund may be sent care of the Victoria Daily Times, or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas St.

INSIDE CITY HALL

It's That Type Of Campaign Among Friends

By JIM HUME

It isn't often that the voters in a community are witnesses to the gentlemanly type election campaign now being conducted in Victoria.

Two of the candidates, Ald. Hugh Stephen and Ald. Clyde Savage, have been companions on council and remain the best of old friends.

Hume

If either one is elected mayor his sincerest regret will be that his good friend had to go down in defeat.

The third candidate, Frank Hunter, is a deeply religious man who would never condescend to enter the normal rough and tumble fight usually touched off when mayor's chairs are at stake.

So, with no surprising controversial issues facing the electorate or candidates the calm campaign jogs on towards next Saturday and polling day.

The only real surprise to date came in Mr. Hunter's long two-column advertisement the other day when the mayoralty candidate noted that he had no party ties and would make a non-party mayor.

That one must have slipped by whoever is editing Mr. Hunter's campaign copy. Few have forgotten that little more than a year ago he was the defeated Social Credit candidate in a federal election.

For the record both Ald. Stephen and Ald. Savage are Liberal in their thinking, but neither of them hold party cards.

So how should people vote next Saturday?

Far be it from this column to suggest where the "X" should be put on the ballot. But there are a few obvious facts to consider.

A mayor is not, cannot be, a dictator. He does not and cannot achieve anything unless he has the confidence and support of his council.

So, when the cross is made against one of the three contenders' names, bear that in mind. Vote for the man you think best as a leader of men.

For good example of what can happen when you have a good, strong mayor who is unable to get his council behind him, Victorians have only to cast their eyes across the water to Vancouver where Mayor William Rathie has had more than his share of troubles during the past two years.

The incessant wrangling which appears to be an everyday mainland occurrence could become part of the Victoria scene if the voters send the wrong man into the mayor's office.

In addition to requiring the full support and confidence of his council a mayor must be able to win similar confidence and support from the often-unsung workers in city hall, the permanent staff.

Victoria could have the best mayor in the world, but if he is unable to win that essential loyalty from the staff charged with implementing council decisions, he could harm the city immeasurably.

It's worth a thought before a vote is cast.

And thirdly, the man elected mayor of Victoria must not only be a sound leader within the city but also a sound leader in the general Greater Victoria area.

He must be able to obtain respect from other councils and offer the historic leadership of the capital city on the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

As the campaign unfolds next week all three candidates will be talking about existing problems.

Some have already started with drum-rolls on the traffic problem the sewerage problem, the hospital problem and the school financing problem.

The electorate, we are quite sure, is well aware of the problems. What it will be looking for next Saturday, what it should be looking for, anyway, is the man they think can lead the council and other councils towards a solution.

Not an easy task, but then, if the three candidates are weighed carefully as to experience and known ability, not a difficult one either.

. . . PEARSON

state had had a similar problem.

"Those disputes that have been solved — in the United States and in Australia for instance — have usually been solved by compromise."

William Burke-Robertson of Ottawa, who is to plead the B.C. case in the Supreme Court of Canada, said he wasn't aware of the province's action but added it was entirely consistent with the act of ownership.

GOING AHEAD

"It will have no effect on the case going ahead."

The reference refers to mineral and other natural resources under the sea bed off the B.C. coast. But all provinces except Quebec and Saskatchewan will present arguments during the reference.

The court is to answer three questions from the hearings.

The first is in relation to Canada's territorial waters but not with respect to the ocean shelf beyond the three-mile territorial limit.

The other two questions apply to underwater natural resources beyond the territorial limit where drilling is feasible.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said his province also claims rights "far beyond the 12-mile limit" but he said his province has not formally stated claim to the whole continental shelf the way B.C. has.

B.C. Bank Approved By House

OTTAWA (CP) — A private member's bill incorporating the Bank of British Columbia won passage in the Commons Friday after a stormy ride through Parliament that began in 1964.

Amendments made by a Commons standing committee in October now must be passed by the Senate before the bill is given royal assent.

The standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs earlier amended the bill to prevent provincial government officials from becoming executive officers. They may become directors, however.

Another amendment deleted a requirement that a majority of directors come from British Columbia. But the headquarters of the bank will be B.C.

Only Social Credit and New Democratic Party members spoke as the bill underwent clause-by-clause study in the Commons.

SAYS CUTS POWER

Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) and Arnold Peters (NDP — Temiskaming) both said the amendments watered down the intent of the bill.

"This is just another bank," Mr. Peters said, adding that the recently chartered Bank of Western Canada "already is in serious trouble" because of efforts by a company "that is in shaky financial condition" to take it over.

British Columbia had wanted its own bank so that it wouldn't have to go to the United States to borrow money as it did to finance the Peace River hydro-electric development, he said.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said the bill had general support in B.C. because of a popular feeling that it would break the hold of Eastern Canada on banking headquarters and because of "a certain pride" in the fact that the province would have its own bank.

Bert Leboe (SC — Cariboo) and A. B. Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley) supported the amended bill.

Authorized capital stock of the Vancouver-based bank will be $100,000,000. It it wishes, it can use a French version of its name-Banque de la Colombie-Britannique.

Petitioners named in the bill include Einar Gunderson, a Social Credit fund-raiser and former finance minister in B.C.'s Social Credit government.

THE PRE-CHRISTMAS series of lectures, sponsored by the University Extension Association of Victoria, will close Monday evening with an address by Robin Wood FRAM, LRSM of the Victoria School of Music on "music in the community." The well known artist will speak in room 168, Elliott Building, Gordon Head Campus, starting at 8:15. The lecture is open to the public.

Lawyer Killed

SPRING CITY, Tenn. (UPI)— A private plane piloted by Joseph I. Bulger crashed into a snow-covered Tennessee hillside Friday night, carrying the famed crime syndicate lawyer to his death.

. . . INJUNCTION

If he must return to Ottawa later next week, he said, Mr. Wilson would remain here "as long as necessary."

The waterfront dispute began Nov. 17 when about 200 longshore foremen walked off the docks to back up demands for bargaining recognition by the employers. They set up picket lines the following day, which the 4,000 B.C. longshoremen refused to cross.

The lines were removed Nov. 21 on a court injunction, but the foremen stayed out. Longshoremen returned to work and were accused by employers of staging a deliberate slowdown.

After a week of day-to-day hiring and firing of longshore gangs, the employers said Monday they would call no more longshoremen to work until the union gave an assurance in advance of a day's work for a day's pay.

The union has refused to do this, claiming that any slowdown was because of the lack of efficient supervisory personnel—namely the striking foremen. It said employer complaints should be processed through normal grievance channels as outlined in the contract.

More than 75 ships now are idle along the B.C. coast, including 22 in Vancouver waiting to take on grain cargoes and three waiting to unload mandarin oranges. Some freighters have sailed from Vancouver with Christmas cargo still in their holds, others have sailed without taking on expected cargo and two shiploads of oranges have been unloaded in Seattle for trucking to Vancouver.

At least 2,000 loaded boxcars of grain are waiting to be unloaded. The CPR and the CNR have placed embargoes on further grain shipments from the Prairies to the West Coast.

Max Hurrén, president of the unrecognized foremen's local of the longshoremen, said Friday that only an undertaking by employers to meet a committee of foremen would end the strike.

Sailors, Salesman Plead Guilty

Two sailors and a salesman pleaded guilty today in central court to an assortment of hit-and-run and impaired driving charges.

Naval rating Leo Edward Orr was fined a total of $400 on hit-and-run and impaired-driving charges arising out of an accident on Esquimalt Road Friday night.

About 7:30 p.m. the 28-year-old CFB Naden sailor crumpled the fender of one parked car, then spun off and backed into another. He then fled the scene and was nabbed at a roadblock at Esquimalt and Tyee.

A total of $150 damage was inflicted on the three cars.

Orr was fined $250 on the impaired charge and $150 for the hit-and-run offence. His licence was suspended for six months.

EYES OFF ROAD

Cavill told police he took his eyes off the road for a moment and when he looked back a car was bearing down on him.

He pleaded guilty to careless driving and hit-and-run and was fined $75 and $150 respectively on the two charges.

His licence was also suspended for six months.

The magistrate rejected a 22-year-old "cleaner" salesman's request he be permitted to retain his licence for business purposes after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Harry Burns, of 345 Gorge Road West, admitted weaving at 50 miles an hour around a bend on Gorge Road near Harriet.

When he finally responded to the flashing light of the pursuing police car he pulled over into the ditch, came back on to the road again, then ended up in the ditch, police claimed.

In turning down his request the magistrate noted Burns "aparently not only does his selling at night, he also does his drinking then."

He was fined $250 and his licence was suspended unconditionally for six months.

FLOWER FILLS RIVER

Water hyacinths are so thick in some regions of the upper Nile that a man can walk across the river from bank to bank.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The retreat of the cold air in the interior has come to a halt around Williams Lake. Temperatures in the colder air to the north will remain below freezing during the day but rise to near 40 in southern areas.

A large complex storm off the coast will continue to send surges of moist air over the province from the southwest over the weekend. This will result in mainly cloudy unsettled conditions on the coast and give a few showers or snowflurries in the interior.

IF YOU THINK ABOUT THE FUTURE

you'll realize that for years Victoria has been accumulating problems. Our harbour has been allowed to decline in importance while others are built up with Federal money. The Gorge waterway cries out for development, yet nothing much has been accomplished. We need a mayor with experience and knowledge, who can get action with economy. Think about this election, then you'll reflect that only the Homeowners Grants have made Victoria's tax increases supportable by the ordinary man. The free-spending policies of past years must be restrained right now. No honest candidate could promise tax reductions — but Frank Hunter promises a shrewd look at every city expense budget—and who can do it better than the man who has 38 years' experience as City Clerk? Think about this election, then

IF YOU THINK ABOUT TAXES
